NEW BOOK FOR FARMERS

An Accurate Business Record for Untold Business Men

The thought has often occurred to us that the farmer should be a business man as well as the merchant, and a few days ago our attention was called to a new publication, called the "Agricultural Log Book," published by the Central Publishing Company of this city. The book is designed for farmers and stockmen and others who wish to keep detailed account of their business transactions. The forms and rulings are so simple, and the printed directions on each page are so plain, that it is not necessary for one to understand the first principles of bookkeeping to be able to keep a strict account of his affairs. This every progressive farmer should do. As a rule, farmers desire to be progressive and to profit by past experience; they buy improved machinery and in many ways keep abreast of the times, but in the matter of bookkeeping he seems to be a little careless.

In this wonderful age of steam and electricity as motor powers, with all its improved machinery, producing the most satisfactory results from the least amount of capital invested and labor employed, farmers and all others who hold on to the old methods, to the careless practices of their fathers and great-grandfathers, will not be recognized as competitors by those who are systematic in their affairs.

As the number of acres of land assigned to each farmer is being rapidly diminished in this country by our increasing population, the importance of bookkeeping is more clearly demonstrated. If the art, as applied to farming, stock-raising, etc., as arranged in the above work, were taught in our country public schools, incalculable benefits would be derived therefrom; the sons and daughters of farmers would be better satisfied to remain in the country in the country and to devote their time and best energies to developing the natural resources of the soil, to the raising of domestic animals, and to building for themselves beautiful homes. Instead of "flocking" to the cities for positions as operatives at barely living wages.

The mechanical part of the work is artistic, as well as substantial, while the very reasonable price asked will bring it within reach of all.

We hope that every farmer in this country will have an opportunity to examine the same for himself, and that finding it, as we believe it to be, just what he needs, he will secure it as an important guide in his business.—Kansas City, (Mo.) Times.

As this marks the beginning of our fifth year in the tile business we wish to thank our customers for their liberal patronage. Our trade has grown beyond expectation, and our yard has been cleared of all sizes below 12 inch. April 24 we are burning a new kiln, and as soon as completed we will have all sizes up to 8 inches, and we will endeavor this season to supply all demands including the 16-inch, if our patrons will let us know their wants in time. (We also have a fine stock of building blocks and brick.) As to tile, we will not carry a stock of over the 8 inch size, as we find the trade is uncertain on larger sizes. Parties wanting over 8 inch should order by June 1, as these are run but once a year. Parties wishing to haul drain tile during summer months for fall and winter laying, can have them and pay for them Sept. 1. We are still in the lumber business, and are well supplied for the trade. Parties wanting extra lengths should order at once as we can not drive on the river much longer. Again, do not forget that building blocks make the best and cheapest foundations, and they are excellent for milk and fruit houses, and our trade has increased greatly in this product—more than any other. Investigate this building block feature if you are going to build. We are figuring on a tile machine which will dig ditches cheaper than by hand, and if we can get 30 miles of ditch to dig we will put one in. If you contemplate putting in tile let us know by mail.—Groner-Rowell Co., Scholls, Hillsboro Route 2.

He is temperate in his habits; can neither read nor write the English language; and has been a bachelor all his life. He was ordered committed to the asylum.

The City Council has ordered that all persons using water for irrigation must use a water meter before water can be used. The meters require a deposit of $10 on the part of the consumer. This is done, the council states, to prevent waste of water. The town will sooner or later have to dig another well, as the patronage has increased to that extent that every gallon of water must be husbanded.
