WILL WE HAVE A BIG COUNTY FAIR?

Agitation For a Renewal of the Old Times

HILLSBORO MAY AWAKEN SOON

A Revival of The Pioneer Days Being Advocated

There is considerable talk among horsemen over the advisability of Washington County taking up the proposition of a county or District Fair. The members of the legislature are now being asked to submit a bill to the legislature creating a district fair section comprised of this and Yamhill and Polk Counties, a fair to be held in each of the counties annually. If this shall fail, in all probability local horsemen and business men will take up the question of having a purely local county fair with the usual race contingent. Hillsboro and the surrounding country has a fine lot of good horses, and this is the home of the progressive stock man. A good county fair, if handled properly, would pay from the start, because of our proximity to the Northwest metropolis. Here is what the Rural Spirit has to say of the matter, in a recent issue.

There is talk of reviving the Washington county fair and race meeting at Hillsboro, Ore. In early racing days in Oregon, Hillsboro was known to be one of the best racing points in the state. The track has been kept intact and is now right in town and is one of the best on the coast. With a good county fair, liberal purses and a date on the circuit, Hillsboro would again spring to the front as a racing center. Electric lines will soon be connecting Hillsboro with Portland, a distance of scarcely twenty miles, which would give Portland people an opportunity to attend the meeting and return home every night. The idea of holding a fair and race meeting there is a good one and should materialize in reality. A big county fair would help Hillsboro help Washington county, help the state of Oregon and could be made self-sustaining.

Western Oregon could arrange a circuit that would put many more horses in training locally, and would not in any way interfere with the North Pacific Circuit and would not come in contact with it except at Salem. Commencing at Roseburg, then Eugene, Albany, Salem, Independence, McMinnville and Hillsboro, would give seven weeks racing right here in the valley where the cost of shipping would be very light and horsemen could afford to race for smaller purses. This would not interfere with our big circuit, for all the last horses would follow the big circuit on account of the rich stakes. Every year we see dozens of horses dropping out after the Salem fair because they were not fast enough to continue on the circuit. This valley circuit is merely a suggestion of ours, and if it is worth considering let some of the places mentioned correspond with the other place and try and get a meeting of the secretaries to arrange dates. They could meet at the same time and place as the North Pacific Fair Association, but a movement will have to be started prior to that time in order to get them together.

REV. NICHOLS DEAD

Rev. Danforth Bliss Nichols died at his temporary home in Forest Grove, Dec. 8, aged 90 years and 2 months. He was born at Rebo-bath, Mass., October 8, 1816, and educated at Oberlin College, from which he graduated in 1839. He became a minister of the Congregational Church and devoted all his long life to educational and reformatory work. He was the first superintendent of the Chicago Reformatory School.

During the Civil War he was superintendent of the contraband camp at Washington City, residing there for 11 years in various positions. He was one of the founders of Howard University and connected with its management for some years. Later he returned West and was settled at Rockford, Ill., then for ten years was pastor of the Congregational Church at Bonhomme, S. D. In 1889 he founded the town of Mission Hill, in South Dakota, and was pastor of the church there until two years ago.

Rev. Mr. Nichols was married in 1843 at Des Moines, Ia., to Miss Elizabeth Booth, who has been at rest for many years. Two of their children still survive: Mrs. Lyda B. Thomson, of McMinnville, and Mrs. Sarah S. Smith, of Whiteson. In addition, there are ten grandchildren, 11 great-grand children and three great-great-grand-children.
