SAYS HE IS GLAD IT WASN'T THE HORSE

Charley, Working for Dennis, Injured by Harrow Tooth

HARROW FALLS ON HIS BACK

Philosophy of German Farm Superin-

Charley, the German who works on John Dennis' place, near town, was injured by a harrow, one day last week, the tooth going into the back several inches, between the ekin and flesh. He was cared for by a passerby, who washed the wound with turpentine. Notice of the injury was brought to Mr. Dennis, who went down to bring his man up to a surgeon. Charley wouldn't listen to the trip, saying it amounted to nothing. "I tell, you John," was mighty glad der hoss didn't get hurt. I can stand it, but the hoss aber nicht."

His position is easily understood when one knows that Charley thinks a great deal of horses, and gives them every possible care.
