WASHINGTON COUNTY, OREGON Population, 20,000. First County in dairying; 1100 cases condensed milk daily; two big condensers; billions of feet merchantable timber, thirty million feet annual cut, will nearly double product this year; richest of garden lands in the world; bulk of county can drive to Portland and return in a day; finest market; great hop district; fine school system; finest climate on coast; mild winters; no county debt; best natured and best read people in world, population considered. Best in everything.

HILLSBORO County seat; 2,000 people; Six churches, Protestant and Catholic; two banks; two telephone systems; big milk condenser; sawmill; two railroads; and electric line coming. AND THERE YOU ARE!

Mr. Harriman promises that we shall have no car shortage, such as has hampered us the past ten years. That's cheering news, and of a nature calculated to cause the shipping farmers to rejoice.

Owners of timber land, bought for speculation, will probably let go of their holdings and cause hundreds of mills to start in this section in the not distant future. Taxation on timber will tend to develop our timber sections.

It's a mighty mean democrat that can't give President Roosevelt credit for bringing into the fold thousands upon thousands of voters who a few years ago would have been insulted if you had told them that the corporations were controlling the dominant party in American politics. Through Roosevelt although he has many shortcomings on enforcement of law, they have found out that millions of money was spent to elect presidents, and that the corporations were controlling our legislation at all points. The same grafters are now after a ship subsidy bill; and an asset currency law; and want the tariff left severely alone. Unfortunately for the morale of those who must have a leader in order to formulate ideas of economic worth or unworth, Mr. Roosevelt supports the ship subsidy measure. But he will be forgiven this lapse if he will take hold of real tariff reform and stop tariff robbery.

The Deacon Remembers a Gambler They say that Billy Ayers is dead, An' gone to his last rest, That never again he'll place his bets Where chances lead the best— His form aroun' the ol' gran' stan' We'll never see agin'— For Billy Ayers had sed his prayers, An' left the ha'nts of men. When ol' Hilltown had races fine, An' horses fit fer kings, Bill Ayers was here, an' didn't keer For losses an' sech things— He'd bet his money on a hoss, An' if he won the race, You couldn't tell that Billy'd won By looking at his face. He allus looked so very grave, The while his eye was kind; Somehow you kin'd like the man, An' to his faults was blind. 'Way back in Eighty, at a Fair, At Hilltown's ol' Fair ground, I saw ol' Billy turn a trick That had a golden sound. A crippled lad was hunchin' long The street one Autumn day, An' he was broke, an' hungry, too, So Billy heard him say— The gambler pulled his wallet out, An' called the lad aside, Put fifty dollars in his hands— An' then, the cripple cried! That made me love ol' Billy Ayers, He'd many sins, I know, Yet had a heart as big as part Of Ringling Brothers' show— An' when ol' Billy meets St. Pete Up at the golden gate, I'll bet you Peter lets him in, An' sponges off the slate.

or four pages of manuscript in his hand and a troubled look upon his literary brow. He read a part of a page and then looked at the cat; then he read the other part and looked at Mrs. Bowser and finally said: "I know how it will come out if I ask your advice and assistance, but I always make a fool of myself in such things. You've got an idea that I don't know enough to come in when it rains."

"On the contrary," replied Mrs. Bowser, "I think you are a very clever man. Please explain just what it is this evening."

"Well, an agent for the 'Universal Biography of Famous Americans' was in the office this afternoon. He came in on other business, not knowing whose office it was, but when he heard me spoken to as Bowser he couldn't sit still. He said he had been reading and hearing about me for the last ten years and that I must have at least two pages in the book. I am to have the pages next to President Roosevelt."

"I am to write whatever I want to, and he will publish it word for word. It is a work such as has never been undertaken in the history of America before. There will be a thousand famous men, and no scrubs can get into it at any price. Whatever is said about me will be read by future generations for a thousand years to come."

"And what is it to cost you?" "Only $50. Some men have paid more than that to be mentioned in a daily newspaper. Let me read—" "Mr. Bowser was born of poor but honest parents. He had no rich ancestors to help him to start out and he simply BOWSER SEEKS FAME Writes Himself Up For the Universal Biography of Americans.

READS IT TO THE DRUGGIST. That Individual Puts a Decided Crimp in His Customer's Ambitious Design.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcellis. Instead of sitting down to his cigar and newspaper after dinner the other evening Mr. Bowser entered the library and closed the door, and it was a quarter of an hour before Mrs. Bowser awoke to the fact that there was something mysterious going on. Then it occurred to her that Mr. Bowser had seemed uneasy and nervous and had little to say. She gave him five minutes more and then rapped on the door and said:

"Very special, my dear," he answered. "I may be writing here until daylight. You can go to bed whenever you get ready."

"But what is it that you are going to write about until daylight? Don't you have time to write your business letters at the office? If it's anything outside of business perhaps I can help you."

"Mr. Bowser looked at her longingly, but doubtfully, and finally replied: "Give me seven minutes more, and perhaps I will consult with you."

"He has met mad dogs and earthquakes." or four pages of manuscript in his hand and a troubled look upon his literary brow.

"I know how it will come out if I ask your advice and assistance, but I always make a fool of myself in such things. You've got an idea that I don't know enough to come in when it rains."

"On the contrary," replied Mrs. Bowser, "I think you are a very clever man. Please explain just what it is this evening."

"Well, an agent for the 'Universal Biography of Famous Americans' was in the office this afternoon. He came in on other business, not knowing whose office it was, but when he heard me spoken to as Bowser he couldn't sit still. He said he had been reading and hearing about me for the last ten years and that I must have at least two pages in the book. I am to have the pages next to President Roosevelt."

ply skinned around and got a good education and when he had reached the age of twenty no man in America could sell him a patent washing machine.

"I don't think you have overdrawn it," said Mrs. Bowser as he stopped to look at her. "What else?" "In his eventful life Mr. Bowser has owned groceries."

"He has brought out five different patents. "He is the only man that ever beat a gas company. "He has met mad dogs and earthquakes. "He has been engaged in scientific discoveries.

Had Made Discoveries. "He was the first to discover that if a man put his ear to a hole in the ground at night he could hear the grating sound of the world turning on its axis."

"He made it first known that a rabbit's hind legs were the longest, so that he could run backward when tired of going ahead. "It took Mr. Bowser five years to discover that cockroaches devoured microbes by the thousand.

"It was through his indefatigable efforts that the world came to know why nature made the cucumber as we find it. "During the past ten years Mr. Bowser has been offered various political nominations, but has always declined. When the presidency is offered him, however, which is sure to come about, he may break over his rule."

"He is not a man of one idea, as was Play, Cleo and Caesar, but has dealt in hogs, chickens, cows, orphans, tramps, fire escapes, burglar alarms, spring tonics, hair dyes, busted water pipes, gas saving arrangements and many other things."

"That's as far as I have gone," said Mr. Bowser as he sat down. "It won't make more than half a page, but if I once get a start the rest will come along. What criticisms have you to make?" Mrs. Bowser had made up her mind right at the start what to do, and not the shadow of a smile had been seen on her face during the reading. When she appealed to her opinion she said:

"It would look almost like presumption on my part to criticize. I wish you would go over to the druggist. You know him to be somewhat literary, and he will surely tell you just what he thinks."

"He can think only one way unless he is jealous of me." "But I'd drop in and see him anyway."

Would Ask the Druggist. "Well, I guess I will. He isn't generally busy at this hour of the evening. I'll ask him to just run over what I've written and tell me what he thinks."

Mrs. Bowser was sorry to see him go, and yet she had read in the paper that the "Universal" was a swindle, and she felt that he needed heroic treatment. At the end of half an hour she heard a fussing at the front door, and thinking some child was trying to ring the bell, she went down the hall and opened it. There was Mr. Bowser, with a man supporting him by either arm, and one of them queried:

"This is where he lives, isn't it?" "Yes, what on earth has happened?" "He got a shock down in the drug store, ma'am."

Mr. Bowser was assisted down the hall into the sitting room and laid on the lounge. After the men had been thanked and departed Mrs. Bowser took the sheets and found an extra one, and on it the druggist had written:

"Notice to the Public.—The bearer of this is not dangerous, and children can stroke him without fear. He is simply an easy mark." "Poor Bowser!" she whispered as she looked from the cruel words on the paper to the man who lay on the lounge with closed eyes and a hopeless expression on his face. M. QUAD.

DOCTORS MISTAKES Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and is especially beneficially feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.
