

Otto Hensky, who has been in the county jail since November 13, on a charge of defacing a building, and threatening to kill his aunt and uncle, who live near Dilley, was turned loose Saturday by the local justice of the peace, upon his agreement to out booze and behave himself. His uncle, August Legall, was the complainant, alleging that Hensky had threatened his life while in a drunken rage. Justice Bagley was of the opinion that Hensky had been sufficiently punished.
