

FORMER RESIDENT OF THIS COUNTY

Arrested in Tillamook County on a Serious Charge

FAMILY OF TWELVE CHILDREN

Statutory Crime on His Daughter

Who lives on the Little Tillamook county, is now in the county jail at Hillsboro, charged with a statutory crime against his own 15-year-old daughter. He was arrested on the above charge, and before Justice of the Peace, and was bound over to the County Court, and in the meantime locked up in jail. Davis is a family of twelve children, and is practically destitute, it is believed. Davis was too ill to support them. Washington last week was cared for by his family. He would have worked last week at $3 a day, but was unable to do so, as his wife is ill.

STRANGE CHASE

appeared on the streets of Hillsboro, Tuesday forenoon, one of the most eccentric characters ever seen in this place. A diminutive man hunched over an old rambling vehicle, which looked as though it might have been with him in the ark, and while the owner was engaged in buying some supplies from one of the stores, the jackass began to giggle and was quickly surrounded by a curious crowd, who indulged in all sorts of speculation as to the identity of the man, and why he should choose such an outfit, with the semblance of civilization. When the man appeared, one of the by-standers undertook to interview him, but failed. The stranger refused to be catechized. "The less I like you people, the better I like my horse," he said. "I will sooner have your ill will than your good will," he snarled. "I turned the jackass around and started up the street toward me, and the animal keeping to the left, while the man took to the right. The man was perhaps 60 years of age. His hair was long and unkempt, and he was roughly dressed. Evidently, he was soured by the jackass, who knows? It is a faithful companion, and seems to be faithful, and somewhat obedient, even obeying his motions, as if a sweep of his long arm, he would it down the road. In his hand he carried a buggy, there was a profusion of things, including frying pans, a gold pan and a fishing outfit. Who this strange character is, and what his history, perhaps never be known by Hillsboro people who saw him.

CHINA WEDDING

Mrs. W. O. Donelson celebrated their twentieth, or China wedding anniversary, at their home on the corner of Third and Maple streets, on last Saturday evening, December 21, 1907. The evening dinner in playing Five Hundred until 11:30 o'clock. Refreshments were served by Wehrung and B. W. Barnes. The first and second prizes, respectively. Mr. Sholes performed a marriage ceremony in a pleasant and unique manner, much to the amusement of those present.

COUNTY JUDGE GOODIN TALKS ABOUT ROADS

Puts Matter of Macadam up to the People

ASKS SOME POINTED QUESTIONS

Thinks the Voters Should Know how Candidates Stand

The road question in Washington County is full of perplexities, and each year sees thousands of dollars spent on highways, and no permanent results. The time is now ripe for a change. The road tax should be expended on permanent work. County Judge J. W. Goodin is an enthusiast on a change in road expenditures, and expresses himself on this important question in the following emphatic manner:

The good road movement throughout the county, in my opinion, has reached the stage in Washington county where the taxpayers are demanding that a greater percentage of macadam roads. Some of the roads leading to the central trading points in the county and to the county line on the different roads to Portland, as well as stretches of road across bottom lands and on hillside throughout the county, have been kept in repair by corduroying and plank for a number of years, and each year several thousands of dollars of money is raised for road purposes is spent in this manner. The price of lumber and corduroy the past year has been so high that the cost of a well-built road of this material will cover nearly the cost of good macadam within 3 miles of the quarry. Such roads are not only makeshifts, but become a menace to travel unless replaced every few years. It is apparent that the most economical way to improve the roads that we are adopting is to improve to macadamize. I will not attempt to discuss the cost nor estimate whether or not this manner of improvement pays. I believe the progressive people of Washington county have an understanding of the value of good roads and that they are wise enough to invest money for their construction. The main purpose of these remarks is to bring the question before the people for discussion.

The following questions present themselves for discussion:—Should the road laws be so amended as to give the county court authority to levy a special tax to raise funds to be used for permanent work only? Should the county court expend money from the general fund to assist districts which have voted a special tax on their property for permanent work? If so, to what extent?

The matter of voting a tax in the districts is in line with the state aid plan now so universally acknowledged to be the only successful way for carrying on this work. The district, the county and the state, each paying a share of the expense.

New Jersey was the first state to adopt this new law in 1891 and now 21 states are improving their roads under this plan and under state supervision. One reason why this system commends itself is that not one state has adopted the law and then turned back to the old system again, and several of the states have increased the percentage of the share paid by the state, notably Connecticut, which pays three-fourths of the whole amount.

The candidates for the state legislature and for county commissioners soon will be presenting themselves before the people and I believe the people should know how they stand on this important question before electing them to office. I feel a great responsibility in this matter and believe that the duty lies at the door of the county court of our county, and it immediately should be accepted and acted upon.

There is no reasonable excuse today for expending the money of the taxpayers as has been done in former years, when no uniform methods were employed, but simply a "guess and do it again process." I will have more to say on this question and invite anyone interested to discuss and to criticize our plans to establish throughout the county a system of well-built macadam roads.

GARDEN HOME MAN IN TOILS OF LAW

Charged With Attempted Burglary of a Dwelling

IS NOW IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Brought to Hillsboro Today, by Beaverton Deputy

Ben. Schnoor, of near Garden Home, this county, is now in the county jail, charged with an attempt to commit burglary. The particulars are decidedly meagre. It appears, however, that Schnoor was arrested on complaint of a man named Bradley, who charged that Schnoor bored holes in the floor of a dwelling, with the intent charged.

EXPERIMENT WITH ALFALFA

Frank Schultheis, of Bethany, was in town Tuesday. Mr. Schultheis has had experience with alfalfa crops on his ranch. His tests of that forage plant has resulted in the opinion that alfalfa, without irrigation in this climate, is good for two crops, the first being the best. A decrease in vitality is noticed in the second crop, and the third year it dies out. Examination of the roots of the plants the third year shows that it rots off about an inch below the ground. Mr. Schultheis thinks that the disease is due to worms or other insects that prey upon it. He thinks it pays to raise it, even though it has to be re-seeded every two years. He is also of the opinion that Hillsboro ought to have a cheese factory. The poorest kind of cheese now sells in the markets at 20 cents a pound. With a factory in this place, the farmer could save the whey, which would prove valuable as food in growing pigs and fattening hogs. Whey is also one of the best egg producers known when fed to poultry in winter, according to Mr. Schultheis.

MARSHALL-FRAZIER

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized, December 25, 1907, at one o'clock p. m., at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sewell, in Hillsboro, Oregon. Rev. Howard Gilpatrick, of the First Congregational Church, officiating, when Miss Anna Masie Frazier was given in marriage to Mr. Joseph N. Marshall, of Rome, Georgia. The bride was given away by Mr. Sewell. The beautiful home was splendidly decorated by F. J. Williams, the bride's uncle, and Miss Clara Imbrie, the parlors being decorated in Oregon Grape and white carnations, with white satin streamers, and the dining room in Christmas green and red.

The ceremony was performed under a beautiful wedding bell, in the bay window. The bride wore a handsome gown, princess, white Duchess satin, elaborately trimmed in fillet and Valenciennes, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Grace Rubl, of Portland, was gowned in white silk net over silk with tint of blue, and carried white carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. George Frazier, a brother of the bride. The wedding march was played by Miss Jessie Donelson. After the ceremony the wedding party enjoyed a sumptuous repast.

The groom is a great grandson of the late Chief Justice Marshall, the eminent jurist, and is prominent in business in his Georgia home. The bride is a daughter of the late Collin C. Frazier and Matilda Frazier, the mother being well remembered by pioneers as the daughter of the late Samuel Williams, early pioneers.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. William Frazier and Charles Frazier, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Williams, Misses Mabel Northrup and Lura Williams, and Claude Williams, of Mountaineer; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Williams and family, J. H. Sewell and Miss Alice Sewell, Mr. and John Kulow and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Imbrie and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Imbrie and family, Mrs. Joseph Downs and Ward Downs, and Miss Jessie Donelson.

After a short visit with relatives in Oregon, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will go to their home in Rome, Georgia.

An inhuman mother was arrested in Portland, Monday, for mistreating an infant, which she carried in her arms while on a drunken spree with a longshoreman named Thiessen, who, earlier in the day, had accompanied the woman out to Beaverton, where they both got drunk. When they returned to Portland, they fell into the gutter, and the babe narrowly escaped being crushed to death. The mother, at one stage of the proceedings, tossed the infant to the longshoreman, who caught it. At another time she kicked the child. The longshoreman was arrested with the woman. The woman has a husband, whose name is Denney, and they have other children at Beaverton.

Robert Krumbein, who lives north of the old Dudley mill, lost a valuable saddle horse, Christmas night, which he was leading on the corduroy road, south of the mill. The road is said to be badly out of repair at that place, and the animal stepped upon a loose pole, which flew up and entered its flank, making a wound from which the entrails protruded. The animal was valued at $200, and had to be shot by one of Mr. Krumbein's neighbors, to end its suffering.

Lost—Between depot and Grange shed, Hillsboro, an envelope, marked "bills," containing a sum of money. Return to address on envelope, or leave at Argus office, and receive cash reward. 40-1

While working on his new barn, just west of the court house yesterday, Capt. Guiles fell to the ground, a distance of eight feet, striking upon his head and right shoulder, sustaining some severe bruises. The cause of the accident was the giving away of a nail in the scaffolding. Although badly bruised, the Captain is around on the streets, and says he doesn't propose to be killed off in that manner, after following the old flag for three years in the civil war.
