

JUDGE McBRIDE SAYS S. HILLSBORO IS WET

Record of Precinct Gives Wet Majority of Twenty

SUPREME COURT DECISION GOVERNS

Issues Order to County Board to Revoke Prohibition Order

The recount of the ballots cast in the June election in South Hillsboro precinct was concluded Tuesday, being the result of an order for such recount made by Judge McBride, at the beginning of the present term, when Fred Cornelius, a Hillsboro liquor dealer, filed a motion for a recount, alleging that many of the ballots voted for prohibition had thereon distinguishing marks, etc., which entitled them to be called illegal, etc. The result of the recount, which was had before Judge McBride, gives 148 votes for prohibition and 168 votes against, leaving a majority of 20 votes against prohibition. The judge ruled that the ballots thrown out had plain, distinguishing marks thereon, which under the Supreme Court's decision in the Crabtree and Van Winkle case, gave him no alternative, but to declare them illegal. In view of the change made by the recount, the judge made an order directing the County Board to annul the proclamation recently made, declaring South Hillsboro to be a "dry" precinct, and he further held that his order should stand as an order of vacation, until the county board shall act as instructed. The recount, with respect to the McCormick-Bailey contest, results in a loss to McCormick of 25 votes on defective ballots, and gives Bailey a lead of 41 votes, in South Hillsboro precinct. It is understood that both F. E. Cornelius and W. V. Wiley reopened their places of business this morning.

Mrs. Minna Peoples, of near Beaverton, has requested Sheriff Hancock to apprehend her daughter, Miss Martha Peoples, aged 17, and who left her home last Friday. The mother says that she thinks her divorced husband might have persuaded the daughter to leave the home, and thinks the girl might have gone to Seattle. Mrs. Peoples procured a divorce from the father last Fall, when he was in California. Peoples came home last month, and is now in Portland. The daughter is about 54 feet in height, has brown hair, is freckled, and wore a yellow straw hat with blue ribbons. The runaway speaks good English.

Rufus Mallory, of Portland, one of the attorneys in the condemnation suit brought by the Oregon Electric Company against the Righttoe, is 77 years of age, and is still a formidable antagonist in a lawsuit. Old timers will remember that in the campaign of 1866, Mr. Mallory was elected to congress over Jas. D. Fay, of Southern Oregon. Mr. Mallory ran on the republican ticket, and was known as the "silver-tongued" orator. He was an effective campaigner, and he could hold his own with the best of the stump speakers of that time. He has grown rich in the practice of his profession, and with him the practice of law, at the present time, is more a matter of choice than necessity. In the convention of 1866, he defeated the late Wilson Bowley, of this county, for the congressional nomination. Dr. F. A. Bailey, who used to meet Mr. Mallory in political debates, in years gone by, renewed old acquaintance with the latter, while he was in the city, and the twin chatted interestingly over old political and other incidents, which belong to the events of three or more decades past.

W. L. CROCKER

On July 24 1908, W. L. Crocker, a pioneer of 1863 died in Portland, following an operation for strangulated hernia. He was thought to be doing all right by his physicians, when death came suddenly. Deceased was born in Lee county, Iowa, in 1845, and came to Oregon with his parents in 1863, settling near Hillsboro. A son, Everett Crocker, and three brothers, J. P. Crocker, Los Angeles; J. C. Crocker, Mountaineer, and Chas. Crocker, Hillsboro, survive. The dead man was prominent in Christian church circles here and was highly esteemed.

The funeral services were conducted at the Christian church, Sunday forenoon, by Elder Beery, and interment was had in the Masonic cemetery, on the same day.

GEO. W. RICE

Geo. W. Rice died at his home in Rainier, Ore., Thursday, July 9, 1908, of Bright's disease. Deceased was born in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, Jan. 11, 1857, and came to Oregon in 1884 residing in Washington county for a number of years, where he had many friends. He leaves a wife, five sons and four daughters, besides an aged mother and one sister in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. Deceased was a son-in-law of J. Q. Adams, of Witch Hazel.

On Saturday last, Butler Raffety, while baling hay on the S. A. D. Meek place, near Glencoe, met with an experience, which he is not anxious to have repeated. In some manner the young man became entangled in the baler rope, and was carried toward the machinery, when, fortunately for him, the rope was switched into the cogs, and out off, releasing him. Raffety sustained numerous bruises and cuts, and partially dislocated the elbow joint. Had Raffety gotten into the machinery, in all probability he would have been killed. Dr. F. A. Bailey attended the young man.

BAILEY WILL STILL BE COUNTY CLERK

Eleven Precincts Re-counted Give Him Lead of 50

MAKES NET GAIN OF 36 VOTES

Ten More Precincts Remain to be Re-counted

The Clerkship contest is more than half completed. Today, at noon, 11 precincts had been re-counted, which gave Bailey a net gain of 36, which, added to his majority in the June election, gives him a clear lead of 50 votes over McCormick. In Buxton precinct, where it was alleged that there were irregularities, which upon a recount would give McCormick a majority, Bailey gained 3 votes, and in Banks he lost only one. At the beginning of the recount, Bailey's attorneys agreed to stipulate that the matter of the recount should be left to the circuit judge, without regard to distinguishing marks, etc., the judge to take into account the probable intention of the voter, but McCormick's attorney refused. The recount probably will be finished this week. It is not likely that under most favorable conditions, McCormick will be able to overcome Bailey's lead. Everything now points to the confirmation of Bailey as county clerk, with a larger majority than was given him upon the face of the returns in June.

The Oregonian correspondent at this place says there will be a movement on the part of admirers of the late Col. Jos. L. Meek, to ask the next legislature to appropriate a sum sufficient to erect a monument to the memory of the brave old pathfinder and patriot. Some action in that direction should have been taken years ago. Oregonians erected a monument to the memory of Dr. McLoughlin, who was a British subject, at the time Col. Meek called on the settlers at Champeog, to "divide" on the question of the "United States" or "Great Britain."

Remember, the Oregonian and Argus, only $2.25.
