The seven year old son of Banker J. W. Shute, while picking a giant powder cap with a pin last Friday afternoon, near Mr. Shute's residence, northeast of town, exploded the cap, with the result that three fingers of the left hand were mangled so badly that the ends of the digits had to be amputated. Dr. Tamieie was called and performed the amputation. The little fellow, in company with some other school boys, found a sack containing giant powder caps, under a culvert, near the school house, and all had been playing with the dangerous things for several days. The wounded boy at first thought that some one had shot him, not knowing that the caps were expl. sive. The caps had been placed under the culvert by some men who had been blasting out stumps along the road, and who supposed the explosives would remain hidden, until wanted again.

With a gas range the exact heat for all kinds of cooking can be governed like the flow of water from a faucet. There is nothing to learn about it, it is as simple as the match that lights it. No trouble—no odor—no worry; there is however a great saving in cost of fuel and light. Put an improved Gas Machine in your store, it is better than any other light you can have because pure white light is the best in which to show colors to night shoppers. F. H. Miller, the plumber, is ready to install the plant complete and guarantee its satisfaction or your money refunded.
