Ephraim Platt, who farmed on the Griffin place 30 years ago, came down from Seio, Linn County, the last of the week, and was a guest of his brother-in-law, Wm. Wolf, of North Hillsboro.

Oliver Huston, a former Hillsboro boy, has been chosen track captain at the State University, Eugene, where he is a student, and where he has established a splendid record in class work, as well as in athletics, as a sprinter.

John Vanderwal, who is widely known all over the county as a banner insurance writer, is as proud these days as King Edward. His elation is due to the arrival of a young colt, whose "daddy" Hal D. has a record of 2:04, and whose mother is a daughter of Lovelace. If blood tells, the youngster may some day clean out the coast and be taken back on the grand circuit and sweep the east—and here's hoping he does.

FIFTY ACRES UNDER IRRIGATION HERE

Zina Wood Ranch has Innovation in Farm Work

PUMPS WATER WITH ENGINE

Will Irrigate Alsike, Oats, Kale and Corn all Summer

Very few people know it, but Zina Wood is in the irrigation business within a half mile of the city limits. He has lateralled fifty acres of bottom land and Monday morning commenced to irrigate by means of pumping from the Tualatin River, using a traction engine as motive power. He will irrigate oats, corn, Alsike and kale, and expects good results. He experimented last year and found that it was a paying proposition. When this has proven a success there will be hundreds of acres irrigated along the lowlands of the Tualatin, and that will increase production fifty per cent. seems to be consensus of opinion. This is the second big irrigating plant—as they go in the valley—Geo. R. Bagley having the other, installed by the government experimental department last season. Irrigation will some day be a great feature on the plains of the Tualatin and Dairy Creeks, and the sooner it comes the sooner it will rival the fertility and production of the Nile in the days of the capricious Cleopatra. There is water enough going to waste to water all accessible lands, and in time it will come, and be universal.

ALVAH EARL RICE

Alvah Earl Rice died at his home 2 miles west of Hillsboro, Thursday, June 3. He was born in Western New York in 1832, and when a child his parents moved to Ohio, and later to Illinois. During the Civil War and the events that led up to the catastrophe, he was an abolitionist, and was what was known as a "conductor on the underground railroad." In 1852 he attended school at Kossuth, Iowa, where he married Margaret Bergen, who died about two years ago. To this union were born nine children—Julius, of Hillsboro, Iowa; Wm., of Goldendale, Wash; Edwin, of Palacios, Texas; George, of Eerdido, Cal.; John, of Hillsboro, Ore.; Mary (Mrs. F. C.) Taylor, of Forest Grove; Harriet (Mrs. E. M.) Cheadle, of Forest Grove, and Alvah and Ella, deceased. He was converted at the age of 13 years, and has ever since been an influential member of the Congregational Church, his most fruitful work having been at Franklin, Nebraska, from 1876 to 1890, when he helped to found and establish Franklin Academy. In 1890 he moved to Hillsboro, Oregon, and bought and cleared up the place on which he lived until death came. The funeral took place Sunday, Rev. Frank H. Adams, the Congregational minister of Hillsboro's church, officiating. Mr. Rice was highly esteemed, and leaves a host of friends who extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

GRANGE PICNIC

To the patrons of husbandry and Farmers and all citizens of Washington County: You are cordially invited to join in a public basket picnic to be given under the auspices of Hillsboro Grange No. 73 to be held at Hillsboro, in the City Park, Tuesday, June 15. Speakers will be present to explain our principles and what we stand for. Come one and all, with your baskets well filled, and join with us in the festivities of the occasion. Hillsboro Grange No. 73.

Dave LaBeau, of Scholls, was in town Monday.

Anton Hermens, stockman and ranchman of Centerville, was in town Saturday, and called.

Fred Paetech, the Shady Brook farmer who was badly crippled up by a log, last year, was in the city Monday.

Dr. J. E. Adkins went to Browns ville, Tuesday, to attend the funeral of Rev. C. C. Sperry, pioneer minister, well known here and at McMinnville. Rev. Sperry was Dr. Adkins' father-in-law.

Jas. H. Sewell thinks he is the earliest to begin picking hops, this season. He has concluded that he will not cultivate, and placed about 450 sheep in on his vines, the past week. This will be the first time he hasn't harvested the product in many years.

John W. and W. C. Jackson, of Glencoe, were in the county seat Saturday.

T. G. Meacham, of Mountaindale, was in with a big load of cedar posts the last of the week.

Chas. Holcomb, of near Bethany, was in Saturday, and says Washington County is good enough for him.

J. A. Kirkwood, of Reedville, was in town Saturday, looking like "his ol' self," as they say down in Dixie.

Jake Milne, who is running one of the big farms on the North Plains, was in the county seat Saturday.

Paul Landsauer, who came here a few years ago from the land of cyclones, was in from West Union, Saturday.

W. W. Williams, of Mountaindale, and an oldtime Hillsboronite, was in town Saturday. "Light hay crop," he says.

Geo. Hathorn, who has eight acres of fine hops, and which are looking fine, was in town Friday, greeting friends.

David Wenger, of Helvetia, and who will take the field with a fine threshing outfit at harvest time, was in town Saturday.

E. F. Willis, the Banks hardware man, was down Friday, on legal business. He is interested in the Banks' new sawmill project.

J. C. Bichen, who made the buy of his lifetime when he bought the big Freeman farm a few years ago, was in the county seat the last of the week.

Dorr Waggener, who has been running a transit on the United Railways, was up the first of the week, the guest of his sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Wilcox.

N. H. Alexander and wife will occupy the Susie Morgan house, on Baseline, while the P. R. & N. engineer, Chas. Follett, and family spend the Summer at Buxton.

Save the little chickens from indigestion, diarrhea, etc. Conkey's Cholera Cure in the drinking water is guaranteed by R. C. Hartmann Price, 25c and 50c. 11-4

Marshall Baker, who has put in 30 years over in the Laurel section, was in Saturday, and called on the Argus. Marshall now starts on his 16th year of Argus reading.

Andrew Westberg, of near Farmington, says he will have a nice crop of Kings, Spitzbergs and Baldwins, this year, as the frost and cold failed to injure them.

Henry Matthes, of Laurel, was in Friday, with the finest span of two-year Percherons seen in the harnes for many a year. Mr. Matthes says that for 11 years he has heard naught of his brother, Jos., who mysteriously disappeared in Portland, at that time. He thinks perhaps he was foully dealt with in the metropolis.

Sam Moon, the Centerville dairyman, was in Saturday, and says the haycrop will be considerably short this year, and that dairymen will suffer loss accordingly. Clover is scant; timothy is short; and unless we have a little more moisture this month the corn, which is used as green fodder, will not be as luxuriant as it should.

Jabez Wilkes, who helped Arch Wilkes and Dave Kuder build the sawmill up on Kuder Creek, above Banks, away back in the dark ages, says this was not the first mill in the county, as reported, but that the first sawmill was built by Chas. McKay, on Jackson Falls, in 1843. Jackson Falls is above Glencoe, and was later owned by the John B. Jackson estate.

The Banks Lumber Company has been incorporated by A. John Stephenson, Portland, and W. E. Davis and E. F. Willis, Banks. The articles of incorporation cover all the necessary avenues of the lumber business, and capitalization is at $30,000. Banks is close to a fine timber belt, and the new firm will do a big business. The mill will mean Banks' first good payroll, and the little and growing town is feeling good over the new enterprise. The company expects to build as soon as possible, and this Summer will see it accomplished.

Wm. F. Nelson, aged about 39 years, and a native of Oregon, died at Seattle, last Friday, succumbing to an attack of paralysis. Mr. Nelson leaves a wife and four small children. He was prominent for years in railroad construction, and built the state portage road; the Dufur road, and ran the first survey into the Des Chutes country, now being contested by the Harriman interests. His widow was Miss Martha McCourt, sister of W. E. McCourt, Mrs. Jos. Downs and Mrs. Chas. Kooz, of Hillsboro. The remains were brought to Portland and interment was in River View cemetery.

BIG GRANGE PICNIC AT THE CITY PARK

Noted Speakers Will be in Attendance

BASKET DINNERS AND GOOD TIME

The Public is Invited—No Restrictions Made

Hillsboro Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, No. 73, have everything in readiness for their big basket picnic at the city park next Tuesday morning and afternoon. The Grange represents ideas and principles that stand for advancement, and a noted Grange speaker, J. J. Johnson, the state lecturer, will be in attendance. Besides this gifted Granger there will be others who will address the assembly. All Grangers in the county, and all farmers and their families, and the general public as well, are invited to attend this meeting and enjoy the festivities of the day. The Grange element has been a power in the advancement of conditions for the farm element, and they have left their impress upon the statutes of the state. They are conservative, yet progressive, and nearly every law initiated by them has been voted into law by the people.

Washington County has been honored by the state and national Granges. B. G. Leedy, of Tigardville, and Austin Buxton, of Forest Grove, have each filled the chair of State Master, and represented their state in the National sessions. The local committee extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend this session next Tuesday.

Mrs. Anderson sold 50 feet off the south end of the property, for which the company paid $1,000. The company will move her house to the north. The deal leaves her three or four of her trees. The depot proper will be near the corner of Third, and the Anderson property was wanted in order to lay switches.
