 John Dorland, of Shady Brook, in Tuesday, and says that pasture is getting mighty short up his way. But it will rain—never fail—and we will have plenty of grass late in the season.
 Th. Nissen, who in two years has cleaned up and put under cultivation 30 acres down near Scholle, is up Friday.

George Ross, running the DeLashmutt hop farm, near Witch Hazel, was in town Friday, and called on the Argus. He says his vines are looking fine, and he has 20 acres to harvest.
 Douglas Leisy, of north of town where he was raised, is still on the Portland police force, and is one of the "finest." Doug. is considered one of the really efficient members of the force.

JUST A HEART BEAT

Supreme Judge Hon. Thos. A. McBride, perhaps the best-known and one of the most appreciated circuit judges who ever held tenure in Washington County, writes County Clerk Bailey a letter, private, but at the end adds:
 "I am getting along pretty well here, but felt better with the old crowd around me—the associates of my best years—remember me to them and assure the boys that I still love them."

It is this human note in "the

Every year the Argus has chronicled some loss from forest fires. The Oregon State Board of Forestry of which R. O. Stevenson Game Warden, of Forest Grove, is a member has sent out to the press a circular, asking its publication, in conservation of our timber, and to avoid attendant losses by fire. It is estimated that $13,000,000 in timber is burnt in Oregon each year. Washington County yet has millions of dollars worth of timber. The circular says, in speaking to campers, woodmen and those living in the mountains or timber districts: "Don't toss away burning matches or tobacco; Don't make a camp fire of leaves, rotten wood, or against logs, where it may spread, or where you can not be sure it is out; Never leave a fire until it is out; Never burn your slashing in the dry season without a permit; Put out any fire you find if you can—if you can't, notify a fire warden, some other public officer, or the land owner; Remember it's the little fire you can put out which may later become a big one." This is fine advice and that which might well be followed, with a little thoughtfulness.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Landess, of Hillsboro, Friday, June 18, 1909, a 13-lb. boy.

old man," as the boys call him, that endeared Judge McBride to his fellows. Judge McBride was recently appointed to the Supreme Bench, and while the honor was long overdue, he very much regretted leaving his old haunts—his old friends—and the old scenes, in the four counties over which he was so long presided, first as district attorney and then as circuit judge.

P. S. Anderson, merchant farmer of Reedville, for years, and now in the mercantile business at Ballston, was down to Hillsboro Friday, on business. P. S. is the same "old sixpence."

Jasper Keffar, of Glencoe, was in Saturday. He says that the saw-mill with which he has been connected is sold to Wohlechelegel Bros., of near Scholle, who moved it down there the first of the week.

J. C. Schulmerich, of Banks, accompanied by wife and child, were down Saturday evening, guests at the Ed. Schulmerich, and attending the reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schulmerich.

A. A. Phillips, of Camas, Wash., where he is engaged in running a store, is in town this week. A. A. is an oldtime Cornelius resident.

J. T. Morrison, of Farmington, and who some time since bought the W. H. Miller place, was in Saturday. He is preparing to put in a pipe line and irrigate about 40 acres from the Tualatin river, by means of a pumping station. He may add a reservoir and use gravity, if he concludes this will be the more practical. Mr. Morrison lived for a number of years in the Grants Pass section, where he raised fruit on irrigated lands, and is therefore familiar with the work of watering lands. After 19 years of experience in that part of the state handling water he is in a position to make the best of Summer irrigation down in this end of the state.

The J. Millar place, below Reedville, has a black calla lily plant in its garden that this year raised nine blooms. The bloom is a purple, and the center piece is as black as the much mooted black tulip. The black callas are very rare in this section. The Millars sent up a beautiful specimen to Prof. Powell, and the specimen was about eight inches in length.

Seth Sesley, pioneer of 1852, and who has resided at Scholle for 40 years, was up to the county seat Tuesday.
