An Oregonian editorial says that hop picking is the "poetry of toil, and that it is "More like play To stand all day," in the cool breeze with the dim September sunlight.

Argus and Journal, $2.25. J. D. Housley, farming at North Yamhill, was in town today.

P. M. Hermens, an old-time Verboort boy, now of Sublimity, writes the Argus that he wants it another year, and says: "Find check and never stop it."

Mike Kohrli, well known in the Bethany and Cedar Mill section and who has been running a dairy over near Milwaukee, for some months, was in town yesterday, taking in the cow sale.

Edward Rood, of two miles north of Sebolla, had a shoulder dislocated this forenoon, while adjusting his binder, which had been disarranged by reason of his team running away. Dr. Linklater attended the injury.

John Hauge, of Galesville, Wis., was the guest of C. F. Bunsen and wife, yesterday. He was one of the lucky first 200 who drew a Couer d'Alene ranch, last week.

The P. R. & N. is hauling comparatively fair sized freight trains these days, but the present will be no better as compared to what will be brought in as soon as the line is established into the mountains.

UNDER THE SURFACE

An Incident That Brought Content to a Dissatisfied Woman.

By ROY RICHARDSON.

"I'm sorry we're invited," observed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they dressed to go out. "We shan't have a good time."

"Why?" her husband inquired. "I always liked Ned."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Edmonds. "I like them both, but Will, try as hard as I may, they make me absurdly jealous."

Mr. Edmonds grew serious. "The old excuse, Grace. I thought you had outgrown that bad habit. We've got so much that they can never have. There!" he cried, pinching her cheek.

"Let's put it aside. We have each other, while you know they quarrel. We must have them here some evening soon. You can sing while I juggle the chaffing dish. Ned Constantine never could make a decent rabbit. His wife won't let him learn how."

Mrs. Edmonds sighed even at her husband's picture of a pleasant evening at home. "I shall depend upon you," she said as they rang the Constantine doorbell, "to keep me contented tonight, Will."

It was quite an affair. Mr. and Mrs. Constantine, whatever they might be when alone, were a charming host and hostess.

"How well they do it!" exclaimed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they sat eating. Then, with a dangerous tone in her voice, she said, "I wish oh, so much, that you and I—"

"There, there," Edmonds broke in gently. "We're not going to speak of that, dearie. By Jove!" he ejaculated suddenly. "I do believe there's old Tom Goodwin over there all by himself. You remember Tom, don't you, Grace—the fellow who was too poor to come to our wedding and who said he was sending forks instead of buying a railroad ticket? I haven't seen him for months. He writes things, I believe. You must meet him, good old chap."

can hardly turn around and where you meet starved musicians, impecunious actors or authors who hope to startle the world some day. Perhaps you would like to change places with them."

"I may have to," Constable murmured, "before it is all over. Come, Annie, the people are going. We must get downstairs."

Goodwin and Mrs. Edmonds arose, he serious, she trembling. "Tell me," he asked her, "should we have gone away?"

"Yes and no," she answered. "We couldn't without their knowing." Then, putting her hand in his as they came to Mr. Edmonds, she observed seriously: "A little while ago I was jealous of them, Mr. Goodwin. Now I am not, and my little place where you can hardly turn around seems sweet and good to me. Come and see us in it. We will welcome you, and you may get an idea how nice humility is. Good night. I thank you for being here."

As Grace and Will stood again in their own house later that night she said to him as she kissed him, with tears in her eyes: "I thank the Lord, Will, dearest, for our little place where some people can hardly turn around. Shut your eyes, Will, and say it after me: 'Bless our little place where you can hardly turn around. Amen.'"

A Romance Spoiled. A Chicago paper says that Jim Hellso, who is himself, won the Arizona Kicker on a hand at poker. We are sorry to spoil the romance, but at the time we founded the Kicker we didn't know the ace of spades from the jack of clubs.

A new chef arrived at the Royal hotel last week, and his doings are the talk of the Gulch. He has made coffee stew that was positively entrancing, and his potpies made from corvete and prairie dog have caused a rush of boarders to the Royal. He says that he can serve mule meat in five different ways and that in throwing away ovals and wood-hucks and river rats we have almost committed a crime. We wanted something to come along to boom the west, and here it is.

Netting Unnecessary. A friend from the north had gone to visit the colonel, who lives in the swampy Mississippi river bottoms of Louisiana. There was no mosquito netting over the bed, and in the morning when the negro came with the water and towels the tortured visitor asked: "Sam, why is it that you have no mosquito netting over the bed? Doesn't the colonel have any in his room?"

Mathematics Made Easy. Little Doris could not count beyond four. One day, when she was showing me five berries that she had picked, I asked, "How many have you, Doris?"

A Strange Case. Beacon—Fusser doesn't anticipate his vacation. Hill—No; says he can't enjoy the thoughts of some one else doing his work.—Boston Globe.

Good Luck Rings. A man stood on a lower Broadway corner with a box of good luck rings. They were horseshoe nails made into rings, bright like silver, glittering in the sun. It was amazing the number of people who went up and bought these rings of the man, fitting them carefully on their fingers, paying for them, walking off with them, turning them this way and that to admire them, though their price was only a nickel.

A Hint to Travel. Weary Walker—What! Don't look like a sailor? Why, I've been following the sea for thirty years. Farmer Haycrop—Well, you keep following it for thirty years more, and perhaps you'll catch up with it.—New York Life.

A Proposal. A love smitten youth who was studying the approved methods of proposal asked one of his bachelor friends if he thought that a young man should propose to a girl on his knees.

NORTH YAMHILL DEFEATS CARDINALS. Will Take Another Game to Decide The Series. HEATEN SUNDAY TEN TO NINE. Broke Against the Hillsboro Nine and big score. The Cardinals went to North Yamhill last Sunday and were taken into the fold at the time of the seventh. Both pitchers were hit hard and the game was not close in regard. The Cardinals made 17 safe hits and the Yamhillers made 17—everybody hit out the ball and nearly everybody scored. Baseball luck, however, went against the Hillsboro nine, and it will take another game to decide which nine is the champion. The Portland Gun Club will be here Sunday to take on the Cardinals, and the locals hope to take their flintlocks away from them.
