The remaining 24 will therefore be called on the Rosclair murder case, but it is not likely that the dozen will be sufficient to fill the panel, as many will doubtless be excused. VERDICT OF SUICIDE

Ernest E. C. Brown went to Holla, last Thursday, and held a request on the body of Emil Stark, who has killed himself that morning by shooting himself in the head. Dr. Linklater went with him, and they found that the shot had taken effect above the eye, and had split the dead man's head part. He evidently had placed a muzzle of the 30-30 Winchester against his forehead and had reached down with one hand and pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous.

The jurors selected were W. E. Simpson, J. A. Russell, Geo. H. Taylor, Geo. Scher, E. C. Hanson and Frank Fischer, and they brought in the following verdict:—

"We, the jury, after investigation of the case of E. C. Stark, agree that he came to his death by his own hands, in a cabin, at about 7 o'clock a. m., Nov. 10, 1909, by means of a rifle wound in his head."

Fred Notke was the first witness. He knew the dead man very well, and had known him for about 4 years; that he lived in a cabin on the dead man's place; was still living there, and had worked for him; was in the section when Stark bought the place. Said Stark's mind was affected a few years ago, and that he went to the Crystal Springs Sanitarium, and returned cured. Stark had been well until the night before, when he went over to Notke's cabin and complained of trouble with his head, and said he could eat nothing. They engaged a team to go to Sherwood to get a keg of beer on the day of the suicide. Witness went over to the Stark cabin at 6:45 that morning, and returned some tobacco. Stark seemed in good spirits, when he started back to his own cabin, and when he reached his door, heard a noise, and then a shot. Looked back—the door of Stark's cabin was open—and saw Stark on the floor. Ran quickly, and asked, "What have you done," but received no answer. He then went to Koerber's place and notified that neighbor. Witness did not know anything of Stark's financial condition, and that all accounts were paid between them.

Ernest Stark swore that he was a brother of the deceased, that the dead man was a native of Germany, and was 29 years old. Witness had lived down there fourteen years, and that Ernest came about 7 years ago. Said that when the brother was living with him, some years ago, he occasionally talked of shooting himself, but since his return from the Sanitarium was not indulged in such talk. Said the news of the suicide was a surprise to him since his brother had been rational all the time since his cure. Emil had never been married, had had no trouble with any neighbors, and that the dead man was on good terms with his brothers and sisters. Thinks brother had money in bank, somewhere, and owed no one.

H. C. Atwell, the Forest Grove fruit grower, and who is president of the Oregon State Horticultural Society, calls for a state meeting in Portland, December 5 to 9, inclusive, and a display will be held in the Meier & Frank building. Apples of all varieties will be on exhibition and there will be many prizes.

The saloons of the city are busy this week putting in the glass doors, the panes being not five feet above the sidewalk level. These windows will disclose the entire room on Sundays so that all can see that the laws are being observed. The strange part of the feature is that the saloon men advanced the idea to the city attorney and asked that it be incorporated into an ordinance.

Contractor Moore finished the concrete walk for the county, Monday evening, after several days of battle against the rains. The walk is now built on the east and south sides and there is an entrance to the building from the corner of Second and Main. Mr. Moore has nearly finished the lower part of the Pythian Building, the upper story being already completed. He expects to be ready for settlement with the building committee by the middle or last of next week.

City Attorney H. T. Bagley called a number of boys and young fellows in their teens, the last of the week, and gave them a lecture for the depredations committed on Halloween. The boys took their "carpet calling" with fear and trepidation as it was whispered around that arrests were forthcoming. The attorney told them that if they would restore the property injured and straighten up the buildings which they had toppled over they would not be molested by the law. All were contrite and willing to tell who were in the crowds except one young fellow, who was rather backward. When he found, however, that all the names were known he hastened to get into the "class of penitence and absolution," and was ready to get busy. The sidewalks have been fixed; the toppled outhouses fixed up, and all will be serene until next year, when, if more property is damaged, there will be arrests and all offenders will be subjected to fine, or imprisonment, or both.

Albert Lincoln, of Glencoe, was in town Monday.

J. B. Stewart and wife, of South Tualatin, were in town Monday.

Henry Hogrefe, of Blooming, and who for several years farmed the Hon. James Withycombe place, was in town Monday.

PRIZE FIGHT FIZZLE AT BEAVERTON

Two Portland Pugs Advertise a Glove Contest

SHERIFF HANCOCK PUTS ON DAMPER

Tame Exhibition and Then a Small Collection

Two young fellows under the soubriquets of "Kid White" and "Kid Parsons" advertised a ten-round glove contest at Beaverton, to take place last Friday evening, in Beaverton Hall, the price of admission being $1. The hall was hired and the two pugs put in an appearance. Sheriff Hancock went down and as soon as the manager found that the official was to be present he hunted around until he found him. The sheriff told him he could pull off all the contests he wished provided it was an exhibition only—but if a fight were pulled off there would be arrests. The fight promoter told the principals of the situation so they agreed to put on a four round exhibition for points, charge no admission, and then take up a collection, which was the program followed.

It was rather a tame affair, as each seemed to fear that if too much steam went into punches an arrest would ensue. After four rounds of windmilling, the hat was passed—no blood was drawn—and very little coin of the realm reached the bottom of the chapeau.
