Timber land is again commencing to move in North and West Washington County, and several hundreds of acres have changed hands recently. Within a few years this timber will all come into the market and will make these sections hives of industry.

There is more than likely a fine prospect for a shortage of potatoes next Spring, owing to the severe weather in November and December. It is said that the tubers yet in the ground are frozen to a considerable per cent, and if this is the case look out for high prices from now on until the new crop comes in.

UNION STOCKYARDS

Receipts at the Portland Union Stock Yards since September 15th, at which time business was commenced, have been 23,026 cattle, 32,016 sheep, 34,328 hogs, and 509 horses. The ready support given by the livestock raiser and shipper of the Pacific Northwest to the market established at Portland is an evidence of the utility and need of such an institution as the Portland Union Stock Yards. Established along open and competitive lines, this healthy young market will continue to grow until it will take its place among the big live stock centers of the United States

The selection of Portland as a livestock market center was made after due consideration by men whose success in the meat industry is a result of a lifetime in the business, and the people of the Northwest are to be congratulated that they have at hand a place where they can find at all times a ready sale for the animal products of their farms and ranches.

The approximate value of the 1490 cars of live-tock received since the stock yards began business has been $2,235,000 and there have been several features worthy of note in the short life of the market.
