HIGH SCHOOL NOTES (By a Student)

The hose and patent fire extinguishers have been installed in the Hillsboro school building, and the principal has given directions for their use. In a fi e drill last Monday morning, the four hundred fifty-four pupils of the Public and High Schools left the building in a little less than one minute.

There are but three years in the High School course at the present time, but we all hope that the fourth will be added next year. As it is, there are forty five enrolled. Two new students are Jose-phine Edwards and Harold Reid.

The High School has a permanent Literary Society with Kingsley Lytle as president; Roy Shroder vice president; and Alice Smith, secretary and treasurer. The meetings are held every other Priday, and each time a short programme is given by the students. Every one in-terested in the work is invited to come to these meetings.

Friday, Jan. 21, President Ferrin, of Pacific University, spoke to the students on "Halley's Comet." He described the orbit of the comet which easily explained the length of the time between its appearences. The haze enveloping it, and its tail, are made by a gas which the heat of the sun causes it to throw off. The tail grows longer as it nears the sun, and shorter as it recedes, and at the point of its orbit fartherest from the sun it disappears altogether. President Ferrin explained that even if

The High School given for practice. The High School song was written by two girls of the club and put to the time of the 'Stein Song " It is as follows:

Give a cheer for our High School With a spirit strong and true; Cheer for Hillsboro High School With vim, and good will, too; For our students are brighest, And our happy hearts the light st, So we cheer for our High School And the notes ring loud and clear; For our happy hearts the lightest, So we cheer for our High School And the notes ring loud and clear. Give a cheer for our High School, And the coiors blue and white, Cheer for Hillsboro High School, We stand for truth and right; We will always love and praise thee, And that's the resson why we Sing this song for our Itigh School And notes ring loud and clear; We will always love and praise thee And that's the reason why we Sing this song for our High School And the notes ring and and clear, Cheer for Hillsboro High School Whose colors we lose to wear:
O Cheer' Cheer' our High School, For none with her compare; She's the pride of the pair West, Alma Mater t at we love best,-So we stig for our High School And the notes ring loud and clear; She's the pride of the fair West, Alma Mater that we love best,-So we sing for our High School, And the notes ring loud and c'ear." Principal Barnes has just received the Bronze medal given by the A. Y. P. E. for school work exhibited at the fair.

Marion Hathaway, though she was not interested in the rights of women, was deeply interested in the rights of a woman, and that woman was herself. Miss Hathaway was twenty-six years old and unmarried when it suddealy occurred to her that there was one right belonging to her that she had been denied, not by any law, but by the most imperious of all rulers, custom.

"A man," she said, "may say with impunity, 'I'm looking for a wife,' but let a woman say the same thing about a husband and she would be considered immodest in the extreme. Indeed, her statement would be held up to ridicule and would defeat her purpose to marry. Furthermore, a man may ask a dozen women one after another to Edward Benson, who had a little marry him, while a woman is forbidmixup with the Portland Humane den to ask even one man. The man who insists on having the last word with a woman probably all on the floor to put on his shoes.

The trouble is that when some of our acquaintances are speaking the truth we have a sneaky feeling that it is ontirely to their advantage to do so.

It may be possible to wear an opti mistic smile over a toothache, but few people succeed in doing it.

Man born of woman may be of few $1.50 per sack, at Connell & Co's days, but his nights are apt to be both

numerous and hilarious
