J. C. Corey and W. W. Williams, two of the big fellows of the Mountindale section, were in town Friday, talking over old times with their friends.

John Peugh, who is farming near Mountindale, and who chinks the valley beats the Eastern Oregon section, where he lived many years, was in town Saturday.

John Fisher, of West Union, and who owns one of the finest little places in his section, was in town Saturday. He says that crops are looking fine.

Richard Beamish, of Cedar Mill, was up Monday, and delivered a registered Jersey bull to W. E. McCourt, for his dairy ranch, southwest of town.

Albert Bunning, of Cornelius, and who has been rural carrier on Route 3 out of that place for a number of years, was in town Monday.

A. Reutten, who was in the creamery business in Centerville before the days of the big condensers—which put all the co-operative creameries out of the running—was in town Monday.

Adam Beil, the Centerville blacksmith, and who has been a follower of old Vulcan for these many years, was in the county seat Monday.

L. J. Francis, of near Tualatin, was in town Monday, and called on the Argus. Mr. Francis says that upland is selling at $300 per acre in his vicinity, in many instances, and that when a man has to grain a place of this kind it makes him hustle to get interest on his investment.

Some miscreant last week stole four buggy wheels—taking them off the vehicle—from Robt. Johnson, who lives near Cedar Mill. The thief also froze to a buggy cushion. Sheriff Hancock tracked the guilty party as far as the Cornell road, and from there it is more than likely that he made Portland and disposed of his booty.

J. C. Lamkin's black cat, Sam, that lives at the tinshop, knows no dog-fear, and he is the terror of all canines that come his way. Sam always rather courts a little trouble, and never draws the color line, but the feline is now heartsick. He ran across Linklater's Betsy goat, which is yet in the "kid" realm, the other day, and the animal is a poser for Sam. It is too quick for Samuel to scratch, and as soon as the feline makes a pass, the kid also makes a pass with its front foot; then works a little bucking seance; and then jumps clear over its black friend. Sam has the dumps in consequence, and looks as blue as the patriot who is divided between the assembly plan and the direct primary.
