CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR ROCK HAULING

Wolf Brothers are Lowest and Get their Bids Accepted

MINIMUM 12 CTS; LARGEST, 42 CTS.

Successful Bidders Put up a Certified Check to Sign Contract

The county commissioners' court had a meeting Saturday and took up the matter of rock hauling for Hillsboro, Cornelius, and Forest Grove. There were but three bidders, and the prices offered ranged from 12 cents to 85 cents for the first quarter of a mile and a minimum rate of 42 cents and maximum rate of $1.10 for the sixth quarter of a mile, on continuous hauling.

The bid of Wolf Brothers was the lowest, their bid being 12 cents per yard for the first quarter mile haul; 18 cents per yard for the second quarter mile haul; 22 cents for the third quarter; 27 cents for the fourth quarter; 34 cents for the fifth quarter, and 42 cents per yard for the sixth quarter mile. Their bid covered hauling for Hillsboro, Cornelius and Forest Grove. J. F. Haynie gave a minimum of 19 cents and a maximum of 60 cents for Hillsboro; 16 cents and 57 cents for Cornelius; and 12 cents and 55 cents for Forest Grove.

Contractor Loring submitted minimum bids of 85 cents and maximum bids of $1.10 for Hillsboro only, and offered no figures on Cornelius and Forest Grove.

Wolf Brothers will sign up a contract at once and put up a bond for the faithful performance of his contract. J. B. Trullinger, who is superintending the Oswego quarry and crusher, says if nothing intervenes rock will begin shipment next week.

A. W. Mills, the Banks horse-man, was in the city Monday.

Dr. A. B. Bailey was a Portland visitor Monday.

Geo. Bacon and wife and two children spent Sunday at and below St. Helens.

L. A. Rood is still in the treasurer's office at the court house, during Mr. Jackson's absence to the coast.

J. B. Stewart, of South Tualatin, was in Saturday, and says that the dry weather has cut the prospects for late grain.

Hinkle did not play with the Cardinals, Sunday, owing to the fact that he has been enjoying his vacation. Mr. Hinkle works for the O. R. & N. general freight offices in Portland.

Thos. Caudle was a Seattle visitor the last of the week. He had made up his mind to go back to St. Louis, but concluded to cancel his trip and come back to Washington County.

Wm. Batchelder, of near Glencoe, was in town Monday afternoon. He is driving Wallace Drew, one of the best roadsters in Washington County, having recently purchased him from John W. Connell.

County Treasurer Jackson and wife and R. C. Vaught and family, returned Saturday evening from a two weeks stay at Timber, on the Nehalem. Mr. Jackson and his son, Walter, of Portland, started for a week's trip to Newport, Monday morning.

I wish to announce that I will operate a first class hay baler this season, and parties wishing baling done may apply to me by letter at Cornelius, Route 2, or by phone (Pacific States) Farmers' 275, Forest Grove.—E. A. Hohman.

J. M. Greear, who is running a hotel at Corvallis, and who is met by many Hillsboro people enroute to Newport, will leave that place about Sept. 1, his lease expiring about that time. He still owns the ranch at Summit, between Corvallis and Newport.

Minnie Canfield, who married J. E. Canfield in Portland, Feb. 2, 1908, asks for a divorce on the grounds that when she wedded Canfield she had not been divorced six months from her former husband, William P. Stephenson, of Clackamas County. She says Canfield told her she could marry without waiting the statutory 6 months, and she believed him. She now wants to have the Canfield marriage declared null and void.

Thos. A. McBride, well known all over this county, is one of the Republican nominees for the Supreme bench. Judge McBride is one of the ablest jurists on the Oregon bench, and that he will be elected goes without saying. The Judge was district attorney here for many years, and then succeeded to the judgeship. He is a pioneer of Oregon, and when a boy made frequent trips into Washington County.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Washington County

G. H. T. Atwood, Plaintiff,

vs.

Margaret Atwood, Defendant.

To Margaret Atwood, defendant above named.

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above-entitled court on or before the expiration of six weeks from and after the date of first publication of this summons, to-wit: on or before the 15th day of July, 1910, and if you fail so to appear or answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will apply to the court for a decree of divorce from you, and for such other and further relief as may to the court seem just and equitable.

This summons is served upon you by order of the Hon. J. W. Goodin, judge of the county court of the State of Oregon, for Washington County, which order was made and entered the 28th day of May, 1910, and the date of the first publication being the 2nd day of June, 1910.

M. R. MEACHAM,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

We manufacture rough and dressed lumber of all kinds, and out of fine timber. If you are going to build, give us a chance to figure on your bill. Will figure at yard, or deliver. ## A Sketch

By ETHAN ARBUCKLE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was sketching in the country. With my portable easel before me, seated on my three legged stool, I was doing a bit of landscape when a girl came by who surely did not appear rural. Her dress was ragged, her hat, a straw, darkened by the weather and having a tawdry ornament, while over her shoulders she wore a faded shawl.

Had I not, with the habit of an artist, kept an eye open for models I might not have noticed a certain kind of beauty under these frayed garments. The girl took off her hat and displayed a wealth of hair, with just enough red in it to make it gold. The day was hot, and she threw back her shawl. Then I noticed that her bodice was cut low and revealed a superb neck set on a pair of well rounded shoulders.

"Why do you wear that kind of dress at this time of day?" I asked.

"Because I haven't any other."

"Do you live about here?"

"No. I don't live anywhere. I'm tramping."

Then she cried:

Not a slip to grammar, not an unrefined expression, escaped her. She had evidently seen better days. Indeed, she might have lived in luxury.

"If you will let me make a sketch of you," I said, "I will pay you well for doing so."

"What will you do with the sketch? Will everybody see it? I wouldn't wish them to see it at home."

"I will put it in my portfolio. I don't think any one who knows you will ever see it."

She consented, and I made the sketch, putting in the colors exactly as they were. I gave her a good price for the pose, which she clutched eagerly. I believe she was hungry. While I worked I was talking to her with a view to learning something about her. But she would tell me nothing willingly, and I was unable to induce her to give me any information by artifice. At last I was obliged to let her go her way.

But her picture—it was a fine representation of "From Affluence to Poverty"—remained with me, gazing out at me from the sad eyes, and I found myself constantly taking it out from among my other sketches and looking at it. Indeed, I found myself unfit for work, so complete a hold had it taken upon me. I slept that night at a farmhouse and woke in the night depressed by a feeling that the girl was wandering about with no home, no money, nothing to eat and obliged to wear anything she could get to cover her. What a selfish world! Why had I not taken her into my heart and provided for her wants?

Then I remembered that there is a barrier which prevents young men from assisting young women. As to taking her into my heart, that I had done, though I did not realize what a foothold she had gained there.

One thing about her was patent. She was pure. No such beauty as hers need go in rags except through purity. It was this doubtless that prevented my banishing her from my mind and drew me toward her.

I have always had a habit of reading the personals in newspapers. I do so because I like to have my fancy started in wondrous stories that the few advertised words indicate. One day I read the following:

Information wanted of Gladys Seymour, twenty years old. When last seen she wore a dark blue dress, cut low neck; eyes dark brown; hair the same, with a tinge of red in it.

I saw the subject of my sketch described in this personal. I called immediately on the advertiser and found a lawyer. I showed him my sketch, and he showed me a photograph. They were identical save as to dress. That of the photograph was silk, that of the sketch rags. He told me that the girl had been driven from home by the cruelty of a stepmother. She had gone vowing never to return. The stepmother had died, and the girl's father, who was alone, was anxious to find his daughter, but had little hope of doing so.

I determined to hunt for Gladys Seymour myself. Taking my sketch with me, I went to the place where I had made it, then started in the direction she had gone when she left me. I spent a day in discovering where she had slept that night. A farmer's wife had taken her in and given her a bed and a supper. Having learned the direction she had taken the next morning, I went on and tracked her in a direct line to a little town, where I lost her. But, showing my sketch and making inquiries, I traced her to a store, where she had been given work behind the counter. There I found her, though in a better costume than that in which I had met her.

I don't know which was more affected by the news I gave her, I at telling it or she at learning it. She went at once to her employer to say that she would like to go to her home, and he excused her from remaining. I furnished her with the means to get there—not as charity, but as a loan.

Gladys Seymour did not remain at home long with her father, for I stepped in and took her away from him. There was a bone of contention between me and my wife for a long while. She wished the sketch I had made of her when she was tramping destroyed. I loved it and wished to keep it. But the period was so painful to her that I finally consented to burn the picture.

Clay Pipes.

The largest clay pipe factory in the world is in Appomattox county, Va. The clay found in that section is specially adapted to this use.

Density of Population.

The density of population in the German empire is 303 in the square mile. What that means may be grasped by considering that if the United States were as thickly populated as Germany it would have 900,000,000 people—ten times the present population.

The Circus Band.
Over the hills and far away
I hear the horns of the circus play.
Every day more loud and clear
As the gilded caravan draws nigh.
"Com-pah-son!" goes the silly-broncho,
With a festive note in its strident tone,
While the fluttering sign of banners gay
Wave over the hills and far away.

There's nothing can thrill in this whole broad land
Like the blare and the glaze of the circus band.

The tunes are old, and the playing's new,
But you tap to the music of the drum.
The "com-pah-son!" of the wide domain
—Epiphane Epiphonem-Review

Ingratitude.

Halfrume had invited his friend
Hungerford to dinner at Mrs. Shantlie's boarding house.

"How's this for a chicken dinner old man?" whispered Halfrume proudly.

"Just about it," said Hungerford merrily, "but I usually eat more than a chicken does."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

A Great Reservoir.

The reservoir created by the Roosevelt dam on the Salt river, in Arizona, is the largest artificial body of water in the world. Its capacity is 60,000,000,000 cubic feet, and if its waters were spread over Delaware it would cover the entire surface of that state a foot in depth.

Old Glory.

The United States flag is twenty-four years older than Great Britain, 100 years older than that of Germany or Italy and thirteen years older than the French tricolor.

Sickness and Death.

For every person who dies in a year there are two persons constantly ill.

The Coliseum.

We boast of stadiums when we meet 40,000 spectators of modern sports and forget how much more imposing and immense the Romanesque stands, their Coliseum, where 87,000 could sit and 14,000 more find standing room.

Midway East and West.

The geographical east and west center of the United States is near San Francisco. That city is about midway between the easternmost point in Maine and the westernmost point at the tip of the Aleutian Islands extending from Alaska out into the Pacific ocean.

Pure Water.

Water in a state of purity is 83 times heavier than the air.

Jay Gould's Tomb.

The late Jay Gould rests in a mausoleum on a circular plot, 170 feet in diameter, at Central and Observatory avenues in Woodlawn cemetery, New York. The mausoleum is of granite, 33 by 32 feet, with a height of twenty feet. The entrance door is of brown eight feet high, and weighs two tons. There are twenty catacombs within.

Western Siberia.

Western Siberia is seven times as large as the German empire.

The Biggest Church.

St. Peter's, at Rome, reared centuries before the age of steam and electricity began, is still the biggest of churches, the most colossal of all places of worship.

Paul Revere.

Paul Revere probably was America's first engraver. He did much work for the provincial congress, including the engraving and printing of banknotes such as the issue of 1,000,000 of silver notes in 1775 and also various commitments for engraving on silver, copper, etc.

Repmaking.

The United States makes 127,500,000 pounds of rope a year—enough if reduced to clothingline size to encircle the earth sixty-eight times.

Fruit Trees and Bushes.

It is estimated from statistics that fruit trees and bushes will bear for the following periods: Apple, twenty-five to forty years; blackberry, six to four years; currant, twenty years; gooseberry, eight to twelve years; plum, fifty to seventy-five years; pear, twenty to twenty-five years; raspberry, six to fourteen years.

Madder and Indigo.

Chemical processes of making madder and indigo colors have changed the face of those industries. One-half of the entire consumption of indigo is now produced in German chemical plants.

Two Oceans Pass.

There is a spot in the Yellowstone National park where the same stream sends water to the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans at the same time. It is called Two Oceans pass. When the stream overflows, the water spreads over the continental divide, some going east and some west.
