A. E. McCUMSEY
Cornelius, Ore., Route 1

Born, Sunday, August 7, 1910, to Mr. and Mrs. Percy Weik, a daughter.

Born, to Wm. Bretherton and wife, Hillsboro, Saturday, Aug. 6, 1910, a son.

G. W. Morgan, one of the Vineland pioneers, was down to the city Monday morning.

Elmer Schmeltzer, who is threshing on the plains, spent Sunday at his home in the city.

Jacob Raffety, of above Mountandale, was a county visitor Monday morning.

O. G. Barlow, of Portland, was out to the city the last of the week. He contemplates a hunting trip to Southern Oregon this Fall.

J. M. Greear, who has been in the hotel business at Corvallis for a year, was down to Hillsboro, over Sunday, the guest of his son, Roy L. Greear, of the Pharmacy.

Jos. Cawrse, of North Plains, returned the last of the week from a visit to Spokane, where he visited a daughter. Mr. Cawrse says that Spokane is one of the finest cities in the Northwest.

Henry McIntyre went to the Bechen ranch, West Union, Monday morning, where he and his wife will camp while the Bechen home is having its interior repaired.

Nathan Noland, one of the old-timers of Cornelius, and who lived near this city when he was a lad, was down to the county seat Monday.

W. B. Lousignont, of Gales Creek, was in town the first of the week. Mr. Lousignont was one of the early settlers of the North Forest Grove section.

C. Whitmore, of near Laurel, was in the city Monday morning. He states that Sunday evening gave them a touch of warm wave up that way that was not appreciated.

John Herdlein, of near Bloomington, was in the first of the week, and says that while the grain is turning out well in his section it hardly comes up to last year in many instances.

Hon. Ira E. Purdin, who has been away from his North Forest Grove farm for five years, was in town Saturday. Mr. Purdin has been living in Portland for several years, but states he will move back to the old homestead October 1, and try, like Jeffries, to "come back."

Geo. Schulmerich and wife, O. G. Wilkes and wife and Miss Nannie Gillenwater, departed Tuesday for three weeks in Southern Oregon. They will remain a few days at or near Creswell, and from there go to Elk Head, where the gentlemen will try hunting and fishing, while the ladies will cook the game.

Jacob Schmidt, who has been sixteen or seventeen years, off and on, in the Laurel section, was in Monday, bringing in Mrs. Schmidt, who went to Cedar Mill, where there is illness in the home of her relatives, the family of Jacob Trachsel. Schmidt has five brothers in the Laurel section and they are all hustlers.

J. B. McNew, of below Reedville, Monday brought to the Argus office a fine specimen of Maiden Blush apples, raised on a six year old tree. It is a beautiful sample of what Washington County can do in the apple line, and is without spot or blemish—an exemplar of what care in spraying means in apple culture.

Mrs. Frank Wallace, who now resides at Hammond, where Mr. Wallace is in the government train service, has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Alex Scott, of near Gaston. Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Scott were in Hillsboro, Saturday, and went on through to Hammond that evening, where Mrs. Scott will visit with the Wallaces for a week.

About two months ago a yearling buck took a fancy to Sam Raffety's herd of cattle above Mountandale and every night he would come up with the stock. For a week or such a matter his buckship refused to come inside the barn enclosure but he gradually became more domestic and finally went in with the rest of the stock. He became quite tame and was on a fair way to become a pet. One evening, however, about a week before the law permitted the open season, Jake Raffety, a brother, went over to visit Sam, and they went out to look at the visitor. The boys were petting a calf and his buckship objected. In about two minutes he had "bucked" both Sam and Jake out of the barn lot—and this settled his fate. The day after the open season opened they decreed that he must be sacrificed to the pot and skillet. Having been placed hors de combat by the interloper neither felt it would be good form to kill him, so they induced a neighbor to come over and get the deer ready for the "skinning." Only for his combativeness he might still be running at large above peaceful Mountandale.

Current Comment.

Insurance companies are retrenching on account of the high cost of dying. Where's this thing going to end?—Cleveland Leader.

They are talking about a "father's day" now, and dad is beginning to wonder what new bills he will be asked to pay as a result.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

It will cost $500 hereafter to swear in Virginia. Grumbling about the weather and kicking the family cat are the only solace to the poor man.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

We have no wish to criticize or find fault, but does it not seem to be a curious provision on the part of nature that when you need ice the most it melts the fastest?—Chicago Tribune.

Tales of Cities.

In the matter of density of population Paris and Berlin lead all the European cities.

Baltimore wants to hold a world's fair in 1914 to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the "Star Spangled Banner," written Sept. 25, 1814, during the British attack on Fort Mifflin, near Baltimore.

Miles City, Mont., holds the record for variation in temperature. The highest temperature recorded there is 111 degrees, which is within 8 degrees of the highest recorded in the United States. Miles City's lowest mark has been 67 degrees below zero, which is truly arctic. The range between these two extremes is 178 degrees, which is a record.

Something Happened.
A train on one of the transcontinental lines running through Kansas City and is usually late was reported on time a few days ago.
The young man who writes the particulars concerning the trains at that station put down his statistics about this train, "No. 410, from the west, on time."
Then he wrote underneath, "Cause unknown."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Fishin' Yestaday.
Not much energy today, not a large one. Somehow wading at the day was steady. Got a kind of dull head—feels if I don't sleep an hour more.
Fishin' yestaday.

Fare is feverish and red-hot as usual. My, but I will hit the red hot as late tonight!
Feelin' kind o' dry on hot—nothing much to say.
Don't care if school keeps in out.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Late Hours.
"I understand that you recently stayed out till after midnight," said the friend in a shocked tone.
"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton.
"Where did you spend all your time?"
"Out on the front step waiting for Henrietta to relent and let me in."—Washington Star.

An Epitaph.
A lovely young lady I mean to my rhyme.
She was pleasant, good natured and sometimes.
Her figure was good, she had very eyes.
And her talk was a mixture of foolish and wise.
Her admirers were many and one of them said:
"She waited rather well. It's a pity she's dead!"
—George John Cayley.

A Distant Prospect.
"And you say you love me?"
"Devotedly!"
"With the cost of living as high as it is?"
"Indeed I do. And when the cost of living is less I will prove my love by making you my wife."—Houston Post.

Apologies to H. W. L.
Under a spreading chestnut tree
The village jocosunda stands
A solemn faced old man is he
With long, pendulous spines
And why he doesn't go to work
No one quite understands.
—Chicago Tribune.

Talked With His Hands.
"I asked him to keep his hands still for a minute, as it would interfere with my trick," said the prestidigitator.
"You ought to have known that he couldn't. He's a Frenchman!"—Yankees Statesman.

Aristocracy.
His father's father ran a dry.
His father learned the liquor trade.
His daughter proudly spouts today
The little woman, with a big air,
By whom her splendid gown is made.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ascribed.
Gyer—That fellow Perkins reminds me of a ball of twine.
Myer—What's the answer?
Gyer—He's completely wrapped up in himself.—San Francisco Star.

The Summer Girl.
She cut quite a figure on the beach
Last winter, so they say,
And now she sits out on the beach
In her bathing suit each day.
—Chicago News.

Cruel Camelback.
"I'm doing my best to get ahead," asserted Dottie.
"Well, heaven knows you need one," asserted Dottie.—Toledo Blade.

Having failed to win success on the water, Sir Thomas Lipton should devise a cup lifting race in the air.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

After all, perhaps, that degree of M. A. which Harvard has bestowed upon J. Pierpont Morgan means "master of assimilation."—Philadelphia Inquirer.
We are sorry to see that distinguished Bostonian John L. Sullivan writing "he has proven that," of course Mr. Sullivan knows as well as Dr. Eliot that the correct form of the past participle is "proved."—Boston Globe.

Aviation.
A national physical laboratory in England uses a whirling table with a sixty foot arm to test the thrust of airship propellers.
A French aeronaut has patented a balloon which when deflated can be packed in its basket and the equipment carried on a man's back.
One of the novelties in the field of aviation is a triplane invented by an Englishman, who guides it from a seat suspended between two sets of three planes each.

Sporting Notes.
The Boston Yacht club has 784 members.
Prizes aggregating over $250,000 are offered for aviation meets throughout the country.
