Garrison and Roosevelt as contending candidates in the next presidential campaign would be an earnest of a new deal in politics. Both are from New York and both have the confidence of the people in general.

Gifford Pinchot has been given endorsement by Ex-President Roosevelt in his Western speeches, and the man who fought for conservation against all the big grabbing corporations, the Cannomites, and all those who wanted to see the systems have their way, has come into his own.

The insurgent wave in the republican party has struck Wisconsin and LaFollette, U. S. Senator, has been returned by a primary vote of from 3 to 5 to 1, where, if one read the standpat papers, he stood to lose heavily, and forever be barred from the senate, besides being damned. The direct primary tells the story. The people will rule if they are given a chance by the Cannomites. And, by the way, some of the states are taking the chance.

OSTEOPATHIC ANNALS

Osteopathy was discovered by Andrew Taylor Still, M. D., at Baldwin, Kansas, in 1873.

He was a physician and surgeon of the allopathic school and was a surgeon of the Union army throughout the civil war.

The first college of osteopathy was founded at Kirksville, Missouri, in 1893.

There are now eight active colleges of osteopathy in the United States.

The minimum requirements of these colleges for graduation is three years of study of nine months each, or 27 months, as compared with a minimum course of four years of six months each, or 24 months, which is the minimum requirement of the American Medical Association.

There have been about 5,000 Osteopathic Physicians graduated from these recognized colleges.

Osteopathy is recognized as a science of healing by legislative enactment in nearly forty States, Territories and Possessions of the United States.

Secretary N. H. Alexander reports that indications point to a large display of Washington county grown apples at the coming county fair, at least 100 boxes of various varieties having been promised for exhibition. It is the intention of the management to get these exhibitors together, and, if possible, form a Fruit Growers' Association, so that the growers of fruit can in the future realize a legitimate profit, and also raise the standard of fruit up to or above the competing apple growing sections of Oregon. The exhibit at the Washington county fair will be taken to Portland and placed on exhibition with the State Horticultural Society. Mr. Alexander will be pleased to hear from all growers who have apples, or other fruit, which they wish to place on exhibition.
