THE MAJORITY ARE FROM FARMS

Selections are Made From Every Precinct in Washington County

One of the tasks of the county board, at the annual county court session in January, is the selection of 200 names, or more, from which the clerk and sheriff are licensed and authorized to select the jury venire for circuit court service. These selections are taken from the tax rolls, or from the registration books, as the case may be, and it is one of the tedious burdens of the January term. Before adjourning last week, the board selected the 1911 jury list, as follows:

Geo. Krebs, who owns a place at Helvetia, and who is now conducting a dairy on the Sandy River, near Clome, was over to Hillsboro the last of the week, returning home Friday morning. Geo. recently received a carload of registered Holstein cows and heifers from the East, and is going into the dairy business good and proper. He also bought him a fine registered Holstein to lead the herd, and he now has 150 head of stock on the ranch, which comprises several hundred acres. Geo. says that he still thinks old Washington County is the place, however, and he has no idea of letting go of his holdings here.

Chas. Crocker, of Newton, was in town Monday, and says that he thinks Albert Tozier is wrong as to who first brought a bicycle into Hillsboro. Mr. Crocker thinks that a man by the name of Failing brought in the first high-wheeled bicycle. Failing kept a store on Main, between Second and Third, in the building now used by Kerr, the blacksmith.

The new Catholic church at Buxton will be blessed by His Grace, Archbishop Christie, on Wednesday, Jan. 25, 1911. A most cordial invitation is extended to all by the Rev. T. J. Damm, who is in charge of the mission. The ceremony will take place shortly after the arrival of the morning train, which leaves Hillsboro at 9 o'clock.

Gus Mosier, a prominent Portland attorney, said Monday: "Well, I see the old town is getting right to the front with modern improvements, and that you are to have paved streets, a sewerage and drainage system, and that you are getting some nice buildings. You will have a nice little city inside of 5 years."

Earl W. House, a son of L. W. House, of this city, has a fine article in the Sunday Journal, describing the early struggles of Pacific University, and setting forth the names of those who ardently worked to found the institution of learning. The article is well written and is worthy the pen of a veteran writer.

Roy Heineck, Frank Brown and W. N. Hathorn, of Laurel, went to Scappoose, last week, and brought back two registered Holsteins to head their dairy herds. Mr. Heineck and Mr. Brown bought one jointly, and Hathorn purchased one for his herd. This is the way to build up dairy herds.

The rural mail carriers had a cold time of it the last of the week, as mercury was playing tag with the bulb Friday and Saturday. Handling mail matter at every mailbox when it is bitterly cold isn't the finest thing in the world.

When the kitchen is properly equipped there is sunshine in the house. Come in and see our Champion and Charter Oak ranges. They are the best.—Emrick & Corwin

H. T. Koeber is getting along nicely with his reconstruction of the Warren building, bought a few days ago, and into which he will soon move his confectionery.

For sale: Baled hay, mixed clover and timothy, good quality. On farm of T. H. Sims, Farmington, Ore. Independent phone, Scholls line. 44-6

J. O. Crandall and wife have bought them a farm near Rancher, Montana, and expect soon to leave for the state of mountains and plains.

E. A. Wolf, of near Reedville, was up to the city Saturday.

A. W. Walker, of South Tualatin, was over to the city Monday afternoon.

Ben Thurnher, of near Blooming, was down town Monday, greeting his friends.

August Wedeking, of Scholls, and Carl Wedeking, of Portland, were in the city Saturday.

For Sale—Registered Poland China boar, yearling. Apply to John Vanderwal, Hillsboro. 42-4

Messrs. McGill and McDonald were up from Orengo, Monday, interested in a case in circuit court.

Fred Rood, who is in the hop business below Newton, was in the city Saturday afternoon, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wall were in Portland Saturday evening, to see the famous actress, Maxine Elliott.

Those Electric Irons at G. R. Stovers are going, and if you are thinking about getting one, you had better get your order in.

I. R. Payne, who has been out on Route 1 for some time, has purchased a 200-acre stock ranch over at Harlan, Lincoln County, and will soon leave to take possession of his new purchase.

W. E. Boucsein writes from above Mountaineer that he is penned in with the snow, and that a good bark-fire beats getting out to the county seat, "Nothing but snow up here," says Boucsein.

The Washington County delegation came down from Salem Thursday, and rested until Sunday, to await the appointments of committeemen by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house.

W. H. Hay, for years a resident of Hoquiam, and who has big property interests there, is over to Hillsboro and vicinity for a few weeks visit. He now resides at Montesano, Wash., and is traveling about looking after some good timber buys.

Thos. Talbot, of Cornelius, was down to the city the last of the week. Cornelius did not grant O. B. Gates a water franchise at the last session of the city council. Mr. Gates, however, has a franchise along the county road to Hillsboro, on the Baseline, from the Grove, here.

Sleighting was of short duration the past week. A few farmers rigged any old kind of a sled and came into town. Friday and Saturday the roads were sufficiently frozen to make fair sledding. Peter Joss, of West Union, was one of the first to make the city with a sled.

Mrs. Geo. M. McDowell, of Portland, died the last of the week. She was aged 35 years, and was the wife of the Oregon Electric Right-of-Way agent, well known in Hillsboro, and all along the line of the Electric. The husband and two small children survive.

Skating was the order of the day, Sunday, and Leverich Lake, northwest of town, was the scene of a merry crowd. Every pair of skates in the town was brought into service, and while the ice could have been better, it was good enough. There were no accidents. Snow commenced falling long towards evening and this put an end to the gaiety.

"Organization of hopmen," said J. C. Buchanan, the other day, does not work like organization of union men, or wool men. If quite a per cent. of hopgrowers organize there are always a lot who stay out, and they will sell at the first little raise. This has a tendency to keep the market down to a certain extent, and if those who organize hold out until toward Spring, then those in the organization have to take just what they can get.

Sure—I'll favor organization for everybody else, and stay out of it myself." And that is about the way all prominent hopmen feel about organization.

Jack Wood, who is conducting a hotel and rooming house on Fifth & Burnside, was out to Hillsboro the last of the week. He is entirely recovered from the stabs given him by a salesman, whom Jack was evicting from the house for disorderly conduct. The knife blade punctured Mr. Wood in two places, and one thrust would have been a very bad one had it not met with obstruction. The case of Wood's hunting case watch caught the point of the knife fair in the middle, and it made a great dent in the lid. Had it not been for the watch the blade would have entered Wood's body to the hilt.

STATE FILES ESCHEAT CASE, M'NULTY ESTATE

District Attorney E. B. Tongue and Jay H. Upton File Case

THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS INVOLVED

State Claims That Heirs are Falsely Representing Heirship

District Attorney E. B. Tongue and Jay H. Upton, the latter being appointed by Acting Governor Bowerman to assist, have filed a suit in circuit court, asking the Judge to decree that the famous James McNulty estate escheat to the State of Oregon. Suit is directed against W. T. Finnigan, administrator, and all claiming to be heirs, to appear and show cause why the estate shall not be turned over to the State of Oregon until the true heirs shall be found and proven in court. The complaint alleges that those claiming heirship at the present time are not heirs and that justice will not be done to allow the property to go to them. As the state law stands, the property does not go to the state as a gift at this time, but is merely held in trust until heirship shall be proven.

Judge Goodin has already decided that Kate McNicholas and Mary McAndrews, of Pennsylvania, and James McNulty, of Ireland, are the heirs, but subsequent to the decision another heirship filed an affidavit for reopening the case. The claim, however, seemed to be so remote, that the claimant it is said, has settled his prospect.

The state may now be shut out of the proceeding, unless it shall come up on review.

The backbone of the property is a landed estate at Sand Pit, in a very rich section of the county. Bagley & Hare, who represent the heirship which has been decided upon favorably, think they will have no trouble in meeting the suit of the state.

Rendering Account

As one of the important public institutions and potent moral forces of the city of Hillsboro, the growth and progress of the First Congregational Church of this city is a matter of public interest. Every intelligent, high minded citizen, apart from creed or no creed, will rejoice in the upward movement of an institution that makes for clean life, civic righteousness and noble American citizenship. For this reason the report of the year's work and accomplished results, given at the annual meeting and re-union last Thursday night, is cause for felicitation and congratulation. Beginning the year with discouragement and despondency, a very different ending of the twelve months was witnessed last week. Every lapsed agency of the organization has been re-established and placed on a working basis, audiences have been increased, the Sunday School has made a 300 per cent growth, new members have been received every communion, and an atmosphere of hope and expectancy has displaced the rather doleful discouragement of twelve months ago. This is good news, and here's wishing a continuation of the prosperity and growth of last year during 1911. Under the leadership of the old minister, Evan P. Hughes, who can give only a part of his time to the work, there is promised a year of sane, intelligent, balanced, enterprising and enthusiastic ministrations in the higher levels of human effort and activity.

Ervine Burkhalter and W. E. Smith, of South Tualatin, were in the city Friday morning, getting ready for the cold snap.

The funeral of Amanda Lee Holcomb took place at West Union, Friday afternoon, the services being held at the West Union church. Rev. Blackwell, of the Hillsboro M. E. church, officiating. Although it was very cold, there were a number from Hillsboro in attendance at the last rites of the splendid pioneer woman, who had been in Washington County since 1847, and who lived continuously at the Holcomb home since 1850, except the few years spent in this city. Among those who were in attendance from Hillsboro were: J. A. Imbric and wife, C. E. Deichman and wife, Geo. Kirkwood, J. C. Lamkin and L. A. Long.
