SPIRITED FIGHT AGAINST LICENSE

Rev. Daniel Staver Dons War Paint And Fights In Court

LINDGREN GRANTED SALOON LICENSE

Court Found That Petitioner Was Four Signers To The Good

Two days were practically consumed to give the county commissioners' court a line on whether or not a saloon license should be granted Chas. Lindgren, of Timber. Mr. Lindgren had a very strong petition and published according to law. Rev. Daniel Staver and associates, of Gales Creek precinct, circulated a remonstrance, and as is generally the case, many signed the opposing paper who had also signed the petition. When the fight simmered down to an actual count, Lindgren had about four of a majority, and he was given the license.

The saloon would be nowhere near Gales Creek, and would be on the line of the Tillamook road now being built by Mr. Lytle. However, the Gales Creek ministry has always strongly opposed a license in that precinct, and ever made a desperate fight when a man asked for a saloon privilege. The November election in Gales Creek registered a vote of 1 in favor of Home Rule; beat prohibition 52, and beat the proposed search law by 54 majority.

MRS. J. J. KURATLI

Mrs. J. J. Kuratli, wife of J. J. Kuratli, of Phillips, died at the family home Thursday evening, April 6, 1911, at eleven o'clock in the evening, after an illness that covered many months. Her maiden name was Theresa Bolag, and she was born in Canton, Argau, Switzerland, September 17, 1841. She was educated in the schools of Switzerland, which have always been noted for their efficiency. She was married to Mr. Kuratli in 1866, and they came to New York that year. For three years they lived in Lynchburg, Virginia, and then resided three years in Philadelphia. They came to Oregon in 1875, and settled near Phillips, which was then practically a wilderness. Mrs. Kuratli was a member of the German Presbyterian Church, and was noted for her hospitality, enjoying the esteem and respect of the entire community. The funeral took place Sunday at the German Presbyterian Church of Bethany, and interment was in the church cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss the husband and the following children: Emil and John C., in the real estate business in this city; David, Cashier of the Hillsboro National Bank; Mrs. Anna B. Dysle, of Portland; and Samuel and Henry C., both of Phillips. Emil I. was Recorder of Conveyances of this county for two terms, and all the sons have a wide acquaintance throughout Washington County.

Mrs. Kuratli will be very much missed by a wide circle of friends who have known her in her 35 years of life in this county.

The funeral cortege was the largest in the history of the section, the carriages extending for over a mile. The church was unable to accommodate the many neighbors and friends who attended to pay their last respects to the woman revered and esteemed by all.
