As seasons pass it becomes more and more apparent that Summer irrigation has come to stay, and like the flag, "will stay put" in Oregon, so far as the Willamette Valley is concerned. Those who have used irrigation can tell of its advantages in increased yield, and Washington County, having an abundance of water supply in the Tualatin and its tributaries, will be one of the districts that will be enriched by its practice.

Banks sustains a real loss in the demise of Lewis F. Carstens. For many years he was a familiar figure in the business life of that section, and no man ever enjoyed a better reputation for honesty, integrity and helpfulness. One could have searched the county boundaries and he would have failed to find one man who could say a word of reproach against his life. The great outpouring of people who went through the heat to pay their last respects at the obituaries, testified to his genuine worth, and the high esteem in which he was held. Rev. Evan P. Hughes, of the Congregational Church, of this city, took occasion, in his Sunday sermon, to pay a remarkable tribute to the life of the man whose death cast a gloom over all North Washington County, and all that he said was merited. There were, and are, few men, as wholesome, as gentle, and as manly as the late Lewis F. Carstens.

DECORATION DAY

Decoration Day was observed in Crescent Theatre, Tuesday afternoon, with one of the finest programs heard for years. The recitations and music were excellent. W. M. Jackson, county treasurer, presided, and introduced L. Jean, who served with Mr. Jackson in the same brigade, in the Civil War. Mr. Jean being in the 50th Indiana Infantry, and Mr. Jackson being in the 33rd Iowa. Mr. Jean, after a few remarks, led in prayer. Rev. Blackwell delivered the address of the day.

Cornelius exercises were held in the grove near the cemetery, addresses being made by Hon. W. N. Barrett, Hillsboro, and Dr. Everest, of Cornelius. Forest Grove held her usual interesting exercises. Graves were decorated everywhere, and at Hillsboro after the floral decorations at the cemetery the usual tribute was given the Naval dead.
