AGED J. P. GARDNER FATALLY INJURED

Jumped on by Fractious Horse,
Dies a Day Later, Near Quatama

LACKED BUT FEW DAYS OF 80 YEARS

Was Well Known Hillsboro Mechanic for Many Years

J. P. Gardner, the well known aged blacksmith, died Friday evening, from injuries received while attending a fractious horse in the barn of his son, Perry, near Quatama, Thursday afternoon. Mr. Gardner had been warned that the horse was treacherous, but he wanted to clean out the stall. No one was present when the accident happened, and the aged man could not tell just how it occurred, but it is supposed that he went into the stall to take the animal out, when it jumped on him. His cries were heard in the house and when assistance came he was prostrate on the floor. Medical aid was summoned, but his injuries were such that he passed away about six o'clock the next evening.

Mr. Gardner was born in Seneca County, New York, July 14, 1828, and moved to Michigan when a young man. He was married to Sarah Allen Williams, at Homer, Michigan, November 2, 1851, the wife dying in this city, Dec. 29, 1901, shortly after the couple had celebrated their golden wedding.

Mr. Gardner came to Oregon in 1888, and shortly afterward opened a blacksmith shop in Hillsboro, on Third Street. He continued in business for many years, but was finally forced to lay off his apron because of advancing age. After the death of his wife he made his home with his son, Perry Gardner, the well known young ranchman of East Plains.

Mr. Gardner was, in his prime, one of the best mechanics at the trade, and he worked early and late. He was energetic, and even after he went out to the ranch he worked a little at his trade for the farmers in the vicinity. He is survived by the following children:

Clark E., Portland, with the Southern Pacific as a mechanic; Chas. J., Fulton, in the blacksmith business, and U. G., of Hillsboro, the well known Third Street blacksmith, and Perry, for a number of years in the transfer business in Hillsboro, and who has farmed east of this city since in the nineties.

The funeral took place, Sunday, West Union Church, and interment was by the side of the wife in the West Union cemetery.

W. Wilson, of near Kinton, was in town Monday.

Miss Lela Patterson, of Portland, was in town this week, the guest of relatives.

This is the season for the harvest of the crawfish fisherman, and they are making big catches. Jake Whitmore landed over 160 dozen Saturday and Sunday, after the big ones had been sorted out for shipment to Seattle. They are especially fine eating at this time of year, before the water gets too warm.

Dr. F. A. Bailey and wife leave the city in the morning for a trip to Los Angeles, where the National Medical Association is about to convene. Some time this Summer or Fall they will take a trip to the East and South, via the Yellowstone National Park. Dr. Bailey has practiced medicine 45 years in Washington County, and expects to gradually cease practice after this year.

John Gibson, of the John Day, had a sale of 28 bunch-grass horses, last Saturday, and Auctioneer Cornelius succeeded in getting fair prices for all of them—much better than expected. One man who bought had lots of trouble with his purchase, and the animal finally killed itself before the buyer was ready to take it away. Mr. Gibson promptly gave him another to replace the loss. Jack Robinson, of Scholls, rode a couple of the "bronchs," and was the recipient of one neat little tumble, while off his guard. Robinson again mounted and rode the buckner to a standstill. The bunch was very quiet for the usual run of bunch-grassers.

Strawberries, Marshall, Oregon and Magoon, for sale. Will deliver, if ordered in sufficient quantities. Geo. Vedder and G. Krogh, 14 miles north of Oreno, Call Geo. Vedder, or G. Krogh, Pacific States Telephone, Hillsboro central. Look out for big pennant, "Hazel Ranch." 13-5

Workmen are nearly through with the brick and concrete walls for the Greear building, on Second, next door south from the Pythian structure. The doorway has been cut through the wall from the landing at the top of the stairs in the Pythian building, and the occupants of the upper story will use the same entrance as the Pythians.

Ex-United States Senator Geo. W. McBride died in Portland, Sunday, after an operation. He was a brother of Hon. T. A. McBride, well known here for many years as district attorney and circuit judge, and who is now associated judge on the bench of the Oregon Supreme Court. The dead Senator was 57 years of age, and was raised in Yamhill County.

Eastbound Yellowstone National Park round trip excursion fares are in effect June 12 to Sept. 12. You had better come in and see Agent Cooper, of the Oregon Electric and Hill lines, about this trip and get literature giving full description. 10tf

Miss Hattie Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nelson, of Portland, has just completed a full commercial law course at St. Mary's, Portland, and is now qualified to do any kind of stenography or book-keeping. Miss Nelson is well known in the West Union neighborhood, where she was raised.

Douglas Leisy, raised at Leisyville, was out to the city several days the first of the week. Leisy is now connected with the Portland police force, and is taking his vacation. While in the city he was the guest of Henry Schmelzter.

First-class driving horse for sale. Will also work. Inquire of O. G. Wilkes, at Wilkes Bros. Garage, Hillsboro. 11-1f

Thos. Henton was in from Leisyville, Monday, and says that crops are looking fine out his way. He reports a slight patch frost out in his section, Sunday night.

Money to loan on real estate security. We sell farms. Try us.—The Webfoot Realty Co., Hillsboro. 12tf

Perry Watson, well known in the Northwestern section of the county, was down to the county seat Monday. Perry is now in his 65th year—but he still looks like a youngster.

For Sale: Fine driving mare, young, sound, gentle, at a bargain if taken soon. Address Box 234, Hillsboro. 13-5

The county court will hereafter put in concrete culverts in places where there is any considerable drainage. One was put in recently on the road near the Connell place, a mile north-east of town.

If you want to sell your farm list it with Mr. Sparkman, Third Street. Independent Tel. West 314.

Chief of Police Blaser has had all the planking taken up on Second and Main, and all the debris on Second, between Lincoln and Main, has been hauled away or burned.

CARDINALS SHUT OUT BY THE BANKS TEAM

County Seaters Connected for
But six Scattered Hits

BANKS—THIRTEEN HITS—7 RUNS

Carstens, Banks Pitcher, Rounding into Good Form

Every man but one on the Banks' team hits the ball on the nose for one or more hits at the game on the Banks' grounds, Sunday, and as a result the county seaters came home on the excursion, beaten by a score of seven to a heroic Carlstens. Carstens was on the mound for Banks, and although he struck out but five batters, the hits he allowed were few and far between, and there was not enough on them to permit a score. On the other hand, the Banks' smashers smashed out 13 hits, and it was a romp. Banks played to but one error, while Hillsboro made but two miscalculations, and these were charged to one man, Williams, who pitched for Hillsboro, struck out two, and allowed passes to two. Carstens allowed no bases on balls.

Banks played a shut-out game with Forest Grove, two weeks ago, with Carstens as pitcher.

"The best laid plans of men and mice oft gang aglee"—is best portrayed by a visit to the famous Pence flume, running along the mountain from Holbrook to the East fork of Dairy. Pence sunk something like $150,000 in the venture, and great aspirations were fallen when the big waterway was allowed to go to decay. Pence was a Colorado man, and had been in congress. He saw big possibilities in using a flume to hydraulic the hills of suburban Portland, and also saw where thousands of dollars could be made floating wood and lumber down the flume. But money finally failed him and no one would come through to put up finance to complete the gigantic task. Miles upon miles of the flume still lay, uncompleted, and decaying, and the business of building was wound up with insolvency—but not until after many thousands had been spent in the enterprise. The Guarantee Title and Trust Co., which went to the wall, had many thousand dollars in the project.

LARGEST NURSERY IN STATE OF OREGON

Situated at Oreno, a Few Miles
East of Hillsboro

COVERS ELEVEN HUNDRED ACRES

Advance of Realty Alone Would Make Owners Very Rich

One of the beauty spots of Washington County is the Oregon Nursery Company's holdings at Oreno, where the firm owns 1100 acres of the finest land that ever laid under the rays of old Sol. This land was purchased in the main a few years ago, and if the holders should now sell the advance over the purchase price alone would mean a small fortune—and not so small, either. M. McDonald and A. F. McGill, for years in the nursery business at Salem, are the principal holders of the company, and before purchasing here came to the conclusion that the site was ideal for their business. They not only found the ideal nursery site, but they have seen values of land advance two and three-fold, and have built a little city, besides. The last issue of the Northwest Horticulturist has the following to say of this Washington County concern:

The Oregon Nursery Co., located at Oreno, Oregon, is a most complete plant in every way. The grounds consist of 1,100 acres of land, well suited to nursery purposes, nearly all level, with just enough roll for drainage, all tillable. The rotation is clover two years, second crop plowed under, then in trees for several years.

Their plant this year is: 550,000 apple grafts, 200,000 cherry, 200,000 pear, 150,000 plum, and 40 acres of peach pits were planted. Besides, they are growing a large stock of ornamentals and shade trees. Over 1,400 varieties of trees and plants are produced on their grounds. This requires the care and work of 185 men. Their packing shed covers more than one and a half acres, being 265 by 315 feet and is ideal in every respect for handling trees with rapidity and accuracy. This part of the nursery is in charge of A. McGill.

The selling department is under the supervision and care of M. McDonald and requires the work of more than 100 hands, including the office force.

The offices are commodious, neat and shows system of the most up-to-date approved style. Every possible check to prevent errors is employed and from all appearances the whole plant comes pretty near being a "perfect machine."

SOME IRRIGATION

Zina Wood Jr. is now irrigating about 150 acres of his bottom land, between the town and the Tualatin river, and he will experiment this season on another proposition, entirely, from that of the past. He has sown English rye grass, alsike, and timothy, and is pasturing his herd on the tract while he irrigates. He wants to see what can be done with Summer irrigation in the dairy business, without the use of mill feed, and if it shall prove a success he will continue the method. He is now milking 1,200 pounds of milk per day, and is using no other feed than the pasture, which is kept green and tender by the constant application of water. He keeps two gasoline engines pumping the water out of the Tualatin river.
