FREEMAN GETS HOMER AND 3 HITS

Gillenwater Struck out Eleven—Martin
Whiffs Eight

Claude Smith's festive Colts invaded the county seat Sunday, with visions of victory that were never realized—for Buck Freeman was there with the mighty swat that seemed to crimp the zeal of Smith's youngster's from the initial whiff to the plate. Freeman went to the bat in the first inning, and walloped the ball to the fence for a home run and that seemed to settle it. Everything seemed easy, and although Martin pitched good ball, there was nothing to it. Freeman, four times up, smashed out four hits, and scored three of the runs. Smith got one hit; and Gillenwater, two, and that was the demise on Martin's delivery. The Colts got six hits off Gillenwater, but they were rather scratchy. Freeman was shifted to short, and was on his toes all the time. Red Gillenwater surprised himself by getting two smashes—because it generally follows that a pitcher striking out eleven men does very little at the bat.

Mrs. Miranda Tucker and grandson, of near Beaverton, were county seat visitors the last of the week.

Dance at Hillsboro Hall, Saturday evening, July 1. Toelle's orchestra and a fine time. Tickets, $1.

James Barrett, son of N. A. Barrett, was in the city Friday, calling on relatives and friends. He was more than surprised to see Hillsboro growing so rapidly.

The Golden Crown creamery, at Banks, is to be sold Saturday, July 1. This was one of the last creameries to be established in Washington County, and for years it did a thriving business, notwithstanding the condensers. Of late, however, the plant could not be operated with any degree of profit, and the company has concluded to sell.

Col. R. A. Caples, son of the late Judge Caples, was up from Wheeler, Friday, greeting his Hillsboro friends. Col. Caples was secretary for Senator Chamberlain, when he was first elected, and he is now taking the simple life for a cure for all political ills, and years of watching the game as practiced in Oregon. R. A. is this in sotto voce—also one of the best all around newspaper men that ever handled a pencil. Caples says: "Come down to Wheeler, where everything grows. Why! you can plant a wheelbarrow down there, and you'll harvest an automobile."

Thomas Langtree, an old fellow who has been a habitue of Portland for several years, where he enjoyed a few days labor each week from a few of his friends, was arrested at Portland last Thursday evening, and brought to the county seat as a suspect on the Ardenwald murder case. His friends came out from Portland Friday morning, and proved a perfect alibi. The old gentleman was allowed to go, and he returned with his friends. The poor fellow was struck on the head by a board a few days ago, and is not entirely compos mentis.

Jed. Nichodemus lost a valuable mare the first of the week, the animal dying from an attack of lockjaw. The mare tangled with a harrow, in the yard, ten days or so back, and one of the spikes entered the coffin joint. A week afterward the animal seemed to be feeling fine, and the lameness was gone. Saturday evening, however, she became rigid, and in a few hours was dead. She was worth $300, and the loss is not an appreciative one.

Summer Train Schedule, Astoria Division—The most desirable car leaving Hillsboro, to make connection with trains on the Astoria division, for seaside points, is the 7:05 car. This car connects with No. 23 leaving Portland at 9:20 in the morning. Parlor cars and first class coaches will be carried on all trains between Portland, Astoria and Clatsop beach points.—Oregon Electric. 13:f

Miss Eileen Bower, daughter of F. H. Bower and wife, of Prairie, Idaho, is getting along nicely from the injury received a few days ago. She is able to leave the hospital, and loses only a portion of her hand. The Bowers are well known here and at Scholls, having lived in this county for several years.

Owing to the splendid prices for potatoes this Spring the hill men are putting in an exceptional acreage, this season. Some have not yet finished seeding. Washington County has a reputation for producing the finest Burbanks of any section on the coast, owing to the nature of the hill lands.

We have what you want in vegetable plants—over 200,000 kale plants; 100,000 cabbage plants; 50,000 tomato plants, and most any kind of vegetable plants. Come and see for yourself, at Morton's Greenhouse, Hillsboro.

Albert Keehn, of near Elmonica, was in town Saturday. One of his neighbors took down a load of seed potatoes—small Burbanks—for which he paid $1.75 per sack. They were not large enough for the market, or they would have cost about $3 per sack.

Eastbound Yellowstone National Park round trip excursion fares are in effect June 12 to Sept. 12. You had better come in and see Agent Cooper, of the Oregon Electric and Hill lines, about this trip and get literature giving full description. 10tf

The assessments for street paving and sewage were all computed by the first of the week, and placed in the hands of the newspapers for publishing. Some of them loom up like a dividend—but it will pay in the long run.

The Grand Marca is the most wholesome "two for a quarter" smoke on market—made in Oregon, by E. Schiller. When you indulge in a good smoke buy a Grand Marca. 12tf Surveyor A. A. Morrill writes from Harney County that he is camped on a splendid stream, and that fish and game abound. He has charge of a big government surveying contract.

A. E. Peat, of Varley, owner of one of the finest young orchards in his section, was in the city Saturday, scheduled for attendance at the fruit meeting. Keep your chickens enclosed! Just received—a large consignment of poultry wire. Now is the time to buy.—Emerick & Corwin.

AERONAUT MILLER DROWNS IN SNAKE

Had Made Balloon Ascensions in Hillsboro Over 20 Years

WAS ONE OF THE FIRST HERE

Often Admitted That Some Day he Would Die With Tights on

R. J. O'Donnell, of Portland, and better known by his Aeronautic nom de plume of Dick Miller, was drowned Friday, in Snake River, at Weiser, Idaho. Miller had just made a balloon ascension for the amusement of the carnival committee at Weiser, and when he cut the parachute loose from the balloon, the wind veered him right over the center of Snake River channel. He was noticed to have freed himself from the parachute, and as he was a strong swimmer, no one thought that he was in peril. After making twenty strokes toward the bank, Miller threw up his hands, and called for aid. A boat was immediately launched, but before it had been rowed twenty yards, Miller sank, to rise no more. Miller was a fine balloonist, and had made ascensions here in heavy winds, although he used more judgment as he grew older.

Every old time visitor of celebrations and carnivals at and around this point knew Miller—with his face ever glowing from his air trips, and his steel blue eyes seemed to be unacquainted with fear. The boys knew him; the old people knew him; and all admired the quiet, taciturn fellow, who for so many years was the pioneer in Washington County balloon experiences.

Two years ago when here he said, one day, after he had alighted on the celebration grounds at the city park, and came near being dragged in the midst of a surging crowd: "Well, I'll get mine some of these days, and I expect to die in my tights. We all get it, sooner or later, and I expect to wake up dead almost any old time."

Miller generally went with the Arrford Amusement Co., but a year or so ago organized the Miller Amusement Co., and was making a tour of the intermountain states when he went to Weiser for a carnival week.

John Oppenlander, of north of Cornelius, was in Monday getting subscriptions for opening a road through to Varley station, so as to get closer connection with Hillsboro. He received much encouragement.

Perry Gardner and wife, of Quatama, departed Monday for an extended visit to Battle Creek, and other Michigan points. They take two of their children with them. It has been 22 years since Perry saw the old boyhood scenes, and this will be Mrs. Gardner's first trip East. They went East via the Oregon Electric and Hill lines, ticketed by Agent Cooper.

Jas. McCain, of McMinnville, was in town Saturday. Me is rounding out a life of law practice, and still has that peculiar influence on juries that made him famous away back in the good old times.

Earl Towne was over from Oak Park, Saturday, carrying his arm in a sling, the result of his accident, mentioned elsewhere. He will get through haying as a simon pure "boss" this season.

Farmers in some sections have started the harvest of clover hay, and the crop that is not a good one is the exception. Many fields are going three tons to the acre—and that means something at $10 or $12 per ton.

Earl Towne, living on the W. E. McCourt place, near Oak Park, while driving a load of hay into the barn, late Thursday evening, suffered a dislocation of the shoulder, and other bruises. Dr. F. A. Bailey attended the sufferer.

D. R. Wheeler and B. N. Sproat, of Wheeler, were in the city Friday. D. R. originally owned a big farm down there, but has seen that section all cut up in small holdings. Mr. Sproat is one of the fruit authorities of the county.

John and Samuel Grossen, of near McMinnville, came down Saturday, and went out to Phillips, to attend the funeral of the late Albert Solberger. They were neighbors of Solberger, in Colorado, and speak in high terms of deceased. While here they were guests of Peter Grossen, of Phillips.

JACK HAMLIN WILL HAVE ANOTHER TRIAL

Man Who Failed to Work a Washington Co. Bank has Career

SERVES TIME, LEAVES PEN, ARRESTED

Local Experience of Jack Hamlin, Alias
J. H. Burke, Forger

Jack Hamlin, alias J. H. Burke, known here locally as having tried to cash a note to which the name of the late Walter Bernards was signed, was arrested the other day, at Portland, after being released from the Salem penitentiary, and will be taken to Colfax, Wash., to be tried for swindling a bank at that place. Hamlin, a few years ago, forged Walter Bernards' name to a note, as surety, and went to the Haines Bank, Forest Grove, where he had made arrangements to cash it. The night before he appeared F. T. Kane had seen Walter Bernards, and casually mentioned that he was going to advance the money on his surety note, when Bernards denied having agreed to signing such a note, and further denied that he had been asked to sign. This aroused the suspicions of Mr. Kane, and he apprised Banker E. W. Haines of the situation. Hamlin appeared, and Kane and Haines held Hamlin with a revolver, and delivered him to the sheriff, then John W. Sewell. Hamlin laid in jail a few weeks, and one night bored his way to liberty, along with John Tom McNamara. The two escaped, and Hamlin was traced to Skamania County by Sewell. He was captured by a half-breed, near Carson, but suddenly bolted, and escaped. Sewell knew Hamlin had a brother in Clark County, and wired the sheriff to watch the Hamlin home for the fugitive. Sure enough Hamlin was in the shanty, and upon approach of the officer, fled. Sheriff Biesacker shot him in the groin as he attempted to run out of the one door of the place. Hamlin fell, and was captured, and brought here. He was tried and sentenced, and earned time by good behavior. After his release he went into Washington and bunkoed several banks, made a stake, bought an auto, and married a young woman—leaving the wife who was faithful to him in his Hillsboro experience. He was caught in Portland, at his new bungalow, and sentenced for defrauding an Oregon bank. He had just left the pen a few days when the Colfax authorities sent for him, and he must again stand trial. It is estimated that Hamlin has robbed banks in his peculiar manner, in a total of perhaps $25,000, besides defrauding a San Francisco hardware company of several thousands.

Jasper Ballard has filed a divorce complaint against Carrie Hawkins Ballard, and the lengthy epistle covers a multitude of abuses, if his assertions are true. He says his wife, with whom he was married in 1908, has called him all kinds of bad names; once threw a water pitcher at him, and struck him on the head; and that once she choked him severely in the presence of his mother, and lately threw their 16-months old child against the wall, making a "big knot" on the little one's head. He asked for a decree and the custody of the child. He also alleges that his wife swore at him and told him she was going to leave him and get another man.

For sale: Altman-Taylor, 307 inch cylinder grain separator; this thresher has been used last season only; weigher and blower complete go with it. Will take $350, cash; or one year bankable note, at 8 per cent.—A. L. Holcomb, Hillsboro, Route 1. Pacific States Telephone Farmers 307. 16-8
