Mrs. Alice Calkins, complainant, alleges that Batts had banked and drew her money for her, in accordance with her wishes, and that before he went away he went to the Beaverton bank and drew out her coin without saying a word to her about it. When she found out that he had started East with his stock she sued out a warrant of arrest. Deputy Applegate found that he was in the Huntington yards and telegraphed ahead to hold him. Others in the Cedar Mill section complain that Batts has misappropriated their funds. His livestock were allowed to go on Eastward to their destination.

STALLION OWNERS MUST HAVE HORSES EXAMINED

State Board Asks That Horsemen Get Busy at Once
UN SOUND ONES NOT TO BE LICENSED
Provision of Statute, However, Qualifies This in Some Cases

Attention of the owners of stallions and jacks is called to the new stallion law which went into effect on May 20, 1911. A number of horsemen have not yet complied with the provisions of this law. It is necessary that all stallions and jacks used for public service must be licensed by the State Stallion Registration Board at Corvallis, and that they must be inspected by an official inspector appointed by this Board. Attention is also called to the fact that, according to this law, stallions which were in the state at the time when the law went into effect and licensed during the first season will be licensed even though unsound, although such unsoundness, if present, will be stated in the license. All horses, however, which are not used for public service and licensed during the first season will be refused license and not allowed to stand for public service unless they pass the proper veterinary inspection. It is very important, therefore, that horsemen who are delinquent in this matter get in their applications at once. Stallion owners who have already received licenses for their horses will confer a favor upon their neighbors by calling their attention to this fact.

Horsemen are also urged to request not to purchase stallions or jacks until after they have been inspected by one of our state inspectors and have received their state license, for otherwise it may prove that such stallions or jacks may prove unsound and hence not eligible to be used for breeding purposes in this state, or it may be found that their pedigrees are bogus and that they will have to be licensed as Graded or Mongrels instead of Pure Breds as represented. E. E. Potter, of Corvallis, is the secretary of the State Board.

BERNARD MARVIN, C. E., AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

Pretender Goes Home to Mother, but Denies he is Her Son
PEOPLE HERE THINK HE IS FAKING
But Also Aver That he Was Rather Queer in Mentality

Is Bernard Marvin, expert draughtsman and civil engineer, who worked for T. S. Wilkes & Son, all Summer, a fake, or is he really affected with a dual mind. That is a question that is being discussed on street corners in Hillsboro. Marvin left Hillsboro some weeks ago, dropping out of sight between darkness and daylight. He went away owing a boardbill and several other small debts. He later appeared over in the Siletz, where he was making love to a girl about 14 years of age. Her brother, noting the disappearance in the papers, wrote Mr. Wilkes that Marvin was over there, and that he was passing under the name of Geo. C. Lewis. He also said he had called on the family.

Later Marvin went to his mother's home fifty miles from Eugene, and asked for work. He was unshaven, and when recognized as her son, denied his identity, and averred that he was Geo. Lewis, a logger, and that he was looking for work; that he had a poor memory, and remembered back but a few months. When she protested that she was his mother, and that his name was Marvin, the young man ran away. Later he was found at Wendling, bucking lumber, at a sawmill. He is now with his mother and she is thinking of consulting a brain specialist.

The story from Eugene says the mother holds that he was assaulted by two men at Hillsboro. This is out of the whole cloth—but there are two or three men here who wouldn't mind assaulting him—just for a very few minutes.

Marvin, while working here, was sore because the Siletz girl of 14 years, refused to marry him. When he came here Sheriff Hancock gave him a piece of money, and attempted to, and did, secure him work. That he is faking the game, for reasons best known to himself, is the opinion of those who met him daily, while he was in Hillsboro. Still, no one but a crazy man would perform such antics. But for a man to get 50 miles up the McKenzie river, where his mother, who is a doctor, resides, is quite a stunt for a man who has a dual mind. Queer, isn't it?

Mrs. C. E. Lieberg arrived here Monday morning, and consulted with Messrs. Wilkes, Hancock and York, as to the young man's surroundings, and says that while the son's mind appears to be absolutely clear, he denies being her son, or ever having seen her. She was given some of his work, and with it hopes to bring him to a recollection of having been in Hillsboro, which he denies, although he admits to her that he was in the Siletz.

The town philosopher says: "Well, we have paved streets in the business section, and a sewer system, anyway, as the result of the Summer's work. If old Dad Hill would come back in his spirit he would think that Hillsboro is a great town."
