ALBERT TOZIER WRITES OF OLD HAPPENINGS

Tells of Another County Treasurer Who Passed Suddenly

THOS. PAULSEN AND CHARACTERISTICS

Refused to Take Money That he Had Not Earned

Albert Tozier, now visiting at Tacoma, writes the Argus as follows:

Dear Editor: In reading of the recent death of Washington County's treasurer it came to me that another county treasurer died suddenly at Hillsboro. It was the late Hyer Jackson, who also had been county judge. He left his office in good health one evening and passed away that night. His last words were: "The keys are in my pocket. The money is in the safe." Well do I remember, as a boy, his cheerful words as he passed me that evening: "This is a very good world, isn't it, Albert? You seem to be doing your part to make it cheerful."

I noticed in the last Argus, mention of the death of Thos. Paulsen. There was a time when Thos. Paulsen did all the printing for the state of Oregon on a quarter medium jobber, when the late L. Stinson was state printer. I recall an incident in Thos. Paulsen's life that shows the honesty and fairness of the man. About the session of 1905 he held a committee clerkship. While going to the state house he fell, and was laid up for three weeks of the session. When the pay warrants were drawn for the clerks he was allowed full time, but this he would not accept and returned to the state treasury about $47, or the amount allowed him for the time he did not work—possibly not a similar case on record.

Several former Hillsboro citizens are in Tacoma, and doing well. John C. Weathered is in the real estate business; Elmer M. Brown, a brother of Coroner E. C. Brown, and son of Alvin Brown, of Forest Grove, is a successful practicing physician; Fred Zieber is a salesman with headquarters in Tacoma; Mrs. Edythe Tozier-Weathered is in newspaper work; Miss Mattie Martin is the wife of a Baptist minister; one of Tacoma's wealthy men is C. U. Barlow—one of the three B's when Hon. W. N. Barrett, F. M. Beckwith and Carl Barlow were boarding themselves at Forest Grove and were struggling to get an education at Pacific University a third of a century ago.

I find this quote from a Colfax paper of 33 years ago: "Hon. Jacob Hoover and family, of Hillsboro, arrived in town last Thursday, and propose making this place their future home."

Other Washington County people who may be of interest are Henry Sicade, a Puyallup Indian, who attended Tualatin Academy 30 years ago. He owns about 300 acres within the city limits. Milo Stone, who lived near Tualatin Academy, is in the vehicle supply business. The Misses Minnie and Emma Unthank, formerly of Forest Grove, have been teaching here for 20 years. Mrs. Mary L. Mace, who as Mattie Robinson, lived near Sherwood, is the wife of Wm. Mace, a prominent contractor and builder.

Herman Koehnke, of beyond Jobe's, was in town Monday.

Sam Schmidt, of Laurel, was in the city Thursday evening.

H. R. Ediger, of Bethany, was in the county seat Tuesday afternoon.

John Welch, of Beaverton, was up to the city Tuesday, on legal business.

J. S. Lorsung, the Oak Park contractor, was in town Monday afternoon.

E. F. McNelly and wife, of North Tualatin Plains, were in the city Monday.

Jos. Bucher, the Civil War veteran of above Mountindale, was in town Monday evening.

Grant Mann, of near Cornelius, and who is raising some fine dairy stock, was in the county seat Tuesday.

On Monday, Sheriff Hancock had reduced his corps of prisoners at the county jail down to five—less than had been on the roll for several months.

Hillsboro is still the leading station on the Oregon Electric, beating all points on the line between here and Portland for the number of passengers patronizing the line. The S. P. is now completing a survey to put them into Forest Grove, and it is stated that they will also make a try to get into the business district of the county seat, in order to get a big share of the passenger traffic as soon as they can electrify—which is supposed to take place next Summer.
