BEECHER

Beecher, Black Registered Jack, will stand at my barn, 1st avenue north, Forest Grove, from March 15 to July 1. I am permanently located here and expect to remain with you thru fortune or failure. I am making a special study of foal production, and will be glad to answer any and all questions pertaining to the breeding business. I hope to have your support in improving the mule flesh of this district. Your loss is my loss, and it is my business to see that my customers get their mares in foal. I have learned much in years of experience pertaining to this subject which would interest you. You will see bills of Beecher posted, giving terms, or call and see me. Yours truly,

A LITTLE SENTIMENT A WONDROUS THING

The Way That Woman Looks at
Past is a Revelation to all

WORK OF DAY CHERISHED 36 YEARS

Jar of Blackberries Picked in '76 Still Graces Pantry

A little sentiment is a wondrous thing, and sentiment has ever made the world brighter and better; made better men and better women; made better nations, and made all mankind better to meet that vast hereafter—that hereafter of which we can only conjecture.

"Strange is it not that of the myriads who Before us passed the door of darkness thro' Not one returns to tell us of the road, Which to discover, we must travel, too."

And this leads the writer to remark: Jos. Williams, one of the pioneer hopmen of Washington County, of above Gaston, was in town Tuesday, accompanied by his son. Mr. Williams has eight sons living, as well as three daughters, and the sweetheart and wife of his younger years still lives, and clings to sentiment like the woman she is.

In her larder, today, reposes a jar of wild blackberries, which she and her husband picked and canned in 1876—centennial year, on the rolling hills of Washington and Yamhill counties. It was a good year for blackberries, and they garnered many, and preserved them. When the fifth anniversary of their wedding came, a jar was served; with the tenth, another; with the fifteenth, another; 20th, another; silver wedding, another; 30th, another, and 35th, another—and there is the one jar left—the jar that bespeaks the hope of youth, love's fond dream, and all that goes to make life that grand sweet song and still that jar of blackberries, picked with the Summer sun shining on heads not yet touched with gray, repose in the recess in the pantry—symbolic of woman's sentiment. How long it will remain there is only known to the woman who has been the husband's faithful companion through years of adversity and prosperity—the object of sentiment—a sentiment that ever means the salvation of the race.
