

MOTHER'S LIFE-BLOOD COULD NOT SAVE CHILD

Surgeons Try to Defeat Death With Transmission of Blood

HEROIC TREATMENT OF NO AVAIL

Dr. Linklater and Associates Try Radical Measure at Hospital

Dr. Linklater and associates endeavored to save the life of the little Seafort boy, accidentally shot at Scholls, last Saturday, by the heroic treatment of transmission of blood from the arteries of the mother to those of the child. The little fellow was rushed to Portland from Scholls, and the congealing of blood seemed to be the child's advantage. When the hospital was reached it was necessary to remove the gathered blood in order to further treat the wound. Knowing that this would mean more or less of an hemorrhage Dr. Linklater suggested a transmission of blood from one of the family to the arteries of the boy. The mother at once offered to be the agency, and it was done. The little fellow collapsed, however, as he was so faintly wounded. The intestines were badly lacerated, and no power or skill could have saved him.

Enroute to the hospital the little fellow was cheerful and self-possessed, but was consumed with a great thirst.

SURPRISE PARTY

A pleasant afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Whitlock, in the South Tualatin-Laurel section, was one of the semi-social events of the Summer season, the occasion being a surprise in honor of Mrs. Whitlock's fifty-fifth birthday. The hours were enjoyed in conversation, and at five o'clock a delightful luncheon was served. The visitors presented their hostess with a beautiful parlor lamp, and at five o'clock departed for their homes after wishing her many more happy birthday anniversaries. Those present were: Mrs. Jack Mainland, Mrs. A. A. Johnson, Mrs. E. Crawford, Mrs. G. S. Campbell, Mrs. Clara Atterberry, Mrs. Jos. Robinson, Mrs. Ed Hope, Mrs. D. C. Whitlock, Miss Jean Mainland, Miss Mary Kirkness, Miss Mary Johansen, Miss Marian Crawford, Miss Olive Campbell.

John Seifert, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seifert, of Scholls, accidentally shot himself with a 22-caliber rifle at his father's home, last Saturday, and died Saturday evening soon after being taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, in Portland. It is supposed that he dropped the gun while out under the cherry trees. The fatal bullet entered his groin and lodged in the abdominal cavity. Dr. Linklater was summoned, but found the wound so dangerous that it was necessary to take him to the Rose City. The lad was a good marksman, and had handled a rifle for four years or more. The little fellow ran towards the house after being shot, but was unable to give a very clear version of the accident.

Mrs. Joseph Wolfersperger arrived from near Yaquina, Friday, to join her husband, one of the proprietors of the City Bakery.

Sam Kunz, one of Orengo's storekeepers, was up to the city yesterday afternoon.

The big cloudburst at Denver, the other day, causing a loss of two million dollars, and the loss of two lives, called forth the following from J. C. Lamkin, who was on the present site of Denver when there was no city there. "I have been over every foot of Cherry Creek, which was the conduit that caused the big rush of waters coming from the cloud burst. Cherry Creek is a tributary of the Platte, and it is a steep and heavy grade. When I was teaming on the Platte, and in the Indian struggles, there would be frequent cloud bursts, and I've often wondered why Denver hasn't before this been visited by a damaging flood. Oregon is the place for me, Mr. McClevery, and don't you forget it. No big storms here; just enough heat in the Summer to get your blood thinned properly, and just enough cool in the Winter to let you know it isn't Summer—and there you are." And with a sigh of satisfaction Jim went after another ten gallon milk can with his soldering iron.

Chas. L. Jennings, of Forest Grove, has sued his wife, Helena Jennings, for divorce, alleging that she refused to go to see him when he was in the Los Angeles hospital after an operation for appendicitis, and he states that after his recovery she refused to come to Forest Grove with him, to make her home. His complaint further recites that she would go on joy rides, and to dances, without his consent, and remain away until the "wee sma'" hours of morning. They were married at Los Angeles, in 1905. Her last known address was Venice, Cal., but he failed to say whether or not she was on "The Bridge of Sighs."

Contractor A. B. Smith, who has the contract of crushing rock for the county at the Oswego quarry, in the city yesterday. Mr. Smith states that the new survey of the electric will pass the Nyberg quarry, and afford another good rock supply for the county. He says they expect to start building in the immediate future, and it will then not be long until the Tualatin quarry is opened.

Where can we play ten-ninnet? The game that is all the rage. This new bowling game will soon have an alley in Hillsboro. Watch for announcement. A light, healthful game—something new. 14-1f

One would hardly know that portion of Hillsboro, from the P. R. & N., west, on Baseline, since so many neat little cottages have been built on the south side of the macadam thoroughfare. The addition practically makes the city extend clear to the old Fair Grounds.

Growers are busy these days, watching out for the festive hop-house, who has put in his appearance in places. The hot weather has given the parasite a run for his life, however.

Hillsboro's school bonds, issued in the sum of $35,000, for site and new building, have been approved by counsel for the bond buyers, and the money is now available.

BRAKES PUT ON TO WATER CONSUMPTION

Irrigation of Lawns Forbidden Through Committee and Co.

WATER SUPPLY TO BE PROTECTED

One Big Reservoir Held Apart For Use in Case of Fire

Superintendent Turner yesterday conferred with the water committee on the matter of water supply, and after a candid statement of the situation steps were taken to prohibit the use of water for irrigation until the Forest Grove supply is tapped. The superintendent stated that there was plenty of water for domestic purposes, but that he had but one big tank full, in case of fire.

He said that on a trip about town early yesterday morning, he found scores of watercocks turned on full blast on lawns, many of which appeared to have been running the entire night. As the pumps are kept constantly at work in the wells, in order to keep up a supply, and a reserve, it was thought best to take time by the forelock, and shut down on irrigation entirely until the Forest Grove main is connected with city distribution. Accordingly the committee and the company issued a circular, which reads as follows:

"To Water Consumer: In order to assure water for domestic purposes and fire protection, and to maintain sanitary conditions, all irrigation is hereby forbidden until situation is relieved by connection with Forest Grove system, which is expected to be within ten days. This order will be strictly enforced."

KRAUS—FICKEN

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Sherwood, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ficken, Sunday, July 14, 1912, at 2:00 in the afternoon, when their daughter, Ellen, became the bride of Otto B. Kraus, of Cornelius, Or. Rev. H. Koll, of the German Evangelical Lutheran Church, officiating. The simple, yet impressive, ring ceremony was observed. The bride wore an elaborate hand-worked silk gown, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. Immediately at 2 o'clock, the bridal party entered the parlors to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Otto Ficken, a brother of the bride. Miss Rosa Ficken attended as bridesmaid, with Miss Emma Kraus as maid of honor. Rev. Rich. Kraus, of New Plymouth, Idaho, and Alwin Ficken officiated as groomsmen. After the ceremony the entire wedding party was seated to a sumptuous wedding dinner, such as in enjoyment in good, old, German hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Kraus are both favorably known in Washington and Clackamas Counties, the bride being a daughter of J. Ficken, a prominent hopgrower, whose hospitality and amiability have won a host of friends for himself and family.

The groom is one of Washington County's popular school teachers, born and raised at Cornelius, and having eight years of school work to his credit. He graduated from the Oregon Normal, last June, receiving a life diploma. Mr. Kraus has been engaged as principal of the Gaston school for the coming term.

Mr. and Mrs. Kraus departed from Sherwood, Monday, on a honeymoon trip to Salem, the capital city, and will be at home to their friends, at Cornelius, after August 1. The young couple have the best wishes of their respective communities for a happy journey through life.

STOCK ORDERED SOLD

The stock and fixtures of the T. W. Wyatt & Co. Store have been ordered to be disposed of. Mr. Gettleman, the appraiser who will be in charge, has instructions to wind up the business in ten days in order that all the assets in the store may be converted into cash quickly.

An egg drink, such as put up by the Den of Sweets, is a good substitute for lunch in warm weather.

Architect Newton C. Gaunt states that Hillsboro is getting some mighty fine structures for the money. He says that nowhere in the Northwest have the prices on building been as low as at Hillsboro. The school building, at eleven hundred dollars under his estimate, was a sample of what competition will do.

One of the ablest demonstrators in Portland will be at Mrs. Bath's store, all day tomorrow, to demonstrate what "Try-New-Life" will and can do for ailing people. If you are not right, and wish to see what his great invention can do, call if you are able. If not able to walk, then hire some one to take you there.

The grand jury is investigating the gambling question for Hillsboro, and it is said that scores have been indulging in the friendly game of draw. One party is out on $200 cash bail, while another who was the subject of investigation, and for whom a warrant was issued, has skipped to the big, wide way, and is probably across the British line. One party is said to have dropped several hundred dollars, and an issue of a check against which there was not sufficient deposit started the stampede of the grand jury's analysis of the question. Many staid old "cits" are on the list as having indulged in the smiles of the tiger, and the end is not yet. A few tried the game, evidently, for the sport that was in it, while others, according to reports, were very expert in manipulating the pasteboards, and were heavy winners.

Own a home—just like paying rent. Five room bungalows, on Macadam street. Easy terms. Fifty dollars down.—In Pattison & Morans' addition. Inquire at the addition, Baseline, west of P. R. & N.

Last Sunday while Adam Hergert and J. E. Reeves were returning from a Mission picnic, above Dilley, the horse became fractious over the giving away of a breeching strap, and started to run. Mr. Hergert was driving, and managed to guide the runaway animal through the stumps, into the clear. He had the animal well towards control, but when they were obliged to make a short turn into another road the buggy was overturned on Mr. Reeves' side, throwing him out. Mr. Reeves sustained a broken leg, the bone being fractured in two places, once above the ankle, and once in the instep. Dr. Linklater reduced the fractures, and Mr. Reeves will be out on crutches in a few days.
