The Portland police auto patrol, driven by Policeman Douglas Leisy, well known here, struck a man by the name of Maurice Costello, on Union Avenue, Thursday night, the victim dying in a short time. The machine was speeding to make an arrest, two policemen being in at the time. A street car had stopped, and Leisy, answering a "Hurry-up" call, says he was going at 25 miles an hour, sounding his siren all the time. A street car had just stopped, and Costello had just alighted. He was struck by the fender, knocked against the curb, and rendered unconscious. The two policemen put the speed of the car at 18 or 20 miles an hour. Leisy is well and favorably known out here, and has been on the police force for a good many years, having held his position through civil service. The fatality was one of those apparently unavoidable tragedies.

Forty years a thresherman—that is going some. "To be sure," as John O'Brien, of Cedar Mill, would say. But that is the record of Eugene W. Dant, of Reedville, who started, Tuesday, on his fortieth season threshing Washington County grain. He has during all these years threshed on many of the self-same ranches, year in and year out. Every season he thinks he will quit the old separator, sell it, or give it away, and he still stays in the ring, buying a new outfit every few years. Forty years is some time, nearly as old as some men; and older than a woman ever becomes.

John H. Smith, who has been with the Warren Construction, here, since last August, has gone to Tillamook to work with the paving crew in the coast city. John H. has been one of the boys always on the work, and as he never became saucy has made many friends. He remained here all winter, and watched the heating plant at the S. P. depot.

The State Fair will hold from September 2 to 7, inclusive, this year. The early date was put on in order to keep the big show out of the Wet "zone." As well, it was decided to also keep away from the Pendleton roundup dates, which always proves a winning card in Eastern Oregon, as well as draws plenty of people away from the Salem frolic.

A pair of gold-rimmed glasses, bows, were found on the street by Mrs. M. M. Hughes, and turned in to the Argus office, last Thursday. They evidently belong to some elderly person—whichever lost them can have them by calling and proving property.

O. Jacobs went up Scoggin Valley, the last of the week, and landed one of the largest three-prong bucks yet killed this season. Jacobs has hunted up that way for a good many seasons, and knows where the finest ones grow.

Miss Ruth Ennes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Ennes, departed Saturday for Fresno, Cal., where she will make an extended visit with her aunt, Mrs. Geo. Pickett. Mr. Pickett owns a raisin ranch near Fresno.

Not a word has been heard from E. J. Lyons since he started to Mexico. He would have been at the border about when the revolutionary success made a momentary flare, and he may have waited until things settled.

Sheriff Hancock made a trip to Roseburg, Thursday, returning Friday, bringing with him C. G. Staley, who pleaded guilty to giving liquor to a minor. The young man was fined $50, which was paid.

Chas. K. Henry, well known here, has decided to go out of business as a real estate dealer, in Portland. Mr. Henry has decided to quit business after many years of hard work.

Creigh and Carol Long, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Long, are over at Garibaldi, camping, and expect to remain several days yet.

The crawfish season has been on in all its glory, and many fine shipments have been made from the Tualatin River to Portland and Seattle, for the Epicurean appetite.

Mrs. Homer R. Emmott and daughters, Miss Grace and Cecil, and son, Wayne, departed yesterday, for a two weeks' stay at Newport.

Smokers want the best—there fore call for a Schiller or a Grand Marca, when you want to see the blue wreath curl.

Gus Kleier, of near Laurel, owner of the Fred Bulling ranch on the mountain, was in the city Friday morning.

J. A. Zimmerman, of Roseland Farm, below Witch Hazel, was up to the city Saturday.

Mrs. A. B. and Mrs. H. L. Flint, of Scholls, were in the city Friday.

E. L. Mapes, the Chehalem Mountain hop grower, was in town Monday.

Miss Stella Smith, of Portland, is the guest of Miss Ona Foord, this week.
