POSTOFFICE CLOSED SUNDAYS HEREAFTER

Appropriation Bill Carries Law for No Opening on Sabbath Day

APPLIES TO HILLSBORO OFFICE

Usual Sunday Morning Gathering Will be Seen no More

Hereafter there will be no Sunday mails distributed in Hillsboro or Forest Grove, for Uncle Sam has decreed that all offices of first and second class need deliver no mail to lock boxes on the day of rest, and nothing but special delivery letters need be put through routine work. This being the case the usual Sunday morning gatherings at the Hillsboro and Forest Grove offices will not be in the lobbies awaiting mail distribution. The new order of things will mean more business for the dealers of newspapers from Portland. J. Wesley Cave wil! have more business for the Oregonian; hence, he is not at all sore; the Journal agent will also have more to do and more income, and he therefore isn't inclined to kick at the order. It alone will be the girl looking for a letter or card from the sweetheart, or the chump who thinks he is everything to some girl somewhere, and is looking for a letter, who will be disappointed over the new ruling. Mail trains will carry mail, however, to offices not in the presidential class, and meantime we will get our daily papers delivered at the house,

Housewives in the two cities will probably welcome the new condition, for the head of the house will no longer have an excuse to go down town Sunday morning, and miss going out with Mrs. Head-of-the-House to church. The postoffice employees always have a heavy mail Sunday morning, and they are not at all complaining about the situation but Monday morning they will have a double mail to take from the bags.

GASTON STEEL BRIDGE

Gaston, Ore., Aug. 24. The new streel bridge across the Tualatin near this place was opened for traffic yesterday. This bridge is a great improvement, and too much credit cannot be given Supervisor B. Fleischauer, and County Commissioner McClaran, for its rapid construction. Gaston hopes that before long there will be a steel bridge spanning Scoggin Creek near the Scoggin Valley Forest Grove road, as it would appear to be poor economy to replace the old bridge with another wooden structure, J. A team laden with potatoes from the Connell ranch, North of town, indulged in a runaway, Monday afternoon, starting on Second St., North, and ran clear to the S. P. depot. A sack fell off in front of the load, and struck their heels. Mr. Calef., Mr. Barlow and the hired man were all on the wagon, and all were spilled before the frightened horeses reached Main Street. Potatoes were scattered all along the line until the depot was reached when the team was stopped.
