President Taft's latest speech on public conditions was a cry of alarm over threatened incursions on the constitution. Mr. Taft is a very amiable gentleman, but he is voicing a cry that today is unheeded. It was the cry that carried voters along in 1896; in 1900; 1904 and 1908—but it no longer has the magic power to frighten the general ballot. It is the cry that defeated Mr. Bryan three times, but lost out in the last campaign. Constitutions must change as people change, and the people are the arbiters of organic law. Organic law is sacred just so long as a majority of people hold it sacred, and no longer.

Portland manufacturers have at last started a campaign for interesting the public in the use of Oregon manufactured product wherever possible. Washington state long ago started to educate its people along these lines, and they found that it paid. The more Oregon manufactures the more men are employed, and the greater is the home market for Oregon farm products. This is a case of political economy that should appeal to every buyer.

The disaster at the mouth of the Columbia River is not more than might happen any harbor bar in any country. The Columbia's mouth has been signally free from fatalities, considering all things, while Puget Sound has been a boneyard for vessels these many years.

Washington County has been shipping out livestock by the [illegible]ad the past few months' and [illegible]ern Oregon is getting the [illegible]nments. And yet, the supply of milk increases right along in old Washington County.

H. AESCHBACHER

H. Aeschbacher, of Hillsboro, died the first of the week, and the funeral was conducted from the Donelson Undertaking parlors, yesterday, by the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, deceased being a member of that faith. The services were conducted by Conference President E. J. Solomon, the singing being by a mixed quartet, consisting of Elder H. A. Benson, Pres. M. J. Ballard, Miss Mary Mendenhall and Mae Carlyle. Prayer was offered by Elder Wm. Dopp, followed by the song, "O, My Father," by the quartet. The speaker was Melvin J. Ballard, president of the Northwestern Mission. The benediction was pronounced by H. L. Jepperson and the grave was dedicated by Elder Solomon. Interment was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, purchased in part by members of the church who attended from Portland. President Ballard dwelt upon "Pre-existence—where we were before we came here, and what our mission is here on Earth, what benefits we shall derive for having been here, etc; also that God had spoken from the Heavens and again delegated his powers and authority to men, and urged all men to think.

Elders Dopp and Jepperson came to Hillsboro some days ago and assisted in caring for deceased on his last sick bed, and were joined later by the remainder of the party, who are laboring in Portland and vicinity, without remuneration so far as this world is concerned. They assisted in paying for the cemetery lot and the funeral expenses.—Contributed.

O. E. Edson, who has been running a flouring mill at Goldendale, Wash., was here the first of the week, visiting with his family, at Third and Oak. Mr. Edson has been on a lawsuit, as a witness, in Portland, in the Columbia River Orchards case, where the mill in which he worked was traded for stock in the bubble that burst. The former owner of the mill, however, took time by the forelock, and sued out an injunction against the Orchards people selling his mill, asking the court to award it back to him. This was the case just tried.

Depth of the Atlantic.

It is not possible to assert that in but few places has the Atlantic a depth exceeding 3,000 fathoms, or three and one-quarter miles. Its greatest depth is about a hundred miles north of the island of St. Thomas, where it reaches a depth of 3,875 fathoms, or about four miles and a quarter.

Alaska.

Alaska is in the same latitude as Sweden, Norway and Finland, has a much better climate, more fertile land and is much larger than all three of those countries put together.

Hot Water Heating.

Use of hot water for heating purposes dates from 1715.

Pig Iron.

It takes 4,221 pounds of ore, 2,310 pounds of coke, which means about 25,000 pounds of coal and 1,147 pounds of limestone, a total of over four tons of ore, coal and limestone, to make a ton of pig iron.

Wild Boar of India.

Terrible as is the tiger in India, the wild boar is even more savage and dangerous to attack. His tusks frequently grow to nine or ten inches in length and are as sharp as a razor. Tigers have a special dread of him, and in their encounters, which sometimes happen, he nearly always comes out victor.

First Coach Passenger.

A woman—the queen of Charles of Anjou—was the first person to ride in a coach. In 1280 she entered Naples in that manner.

Herring Fisheries.

The earliest mention of the herring fishery dates from the year 709.

Prescott, the Historian.

William Hickling Prescott, one of America's most eminent historians, was afflicted with imperfect vision at the age of twenty. His "Ferdinand and Isabella," "Conquest of Mexico" and "Conquest of Peru" were written under most trying circumstances, owing to his partial blindness.

England's First Cricket Club.

The first cricket club founded in England was the Hambledon (Hampshire) club, which began in 1750 and lasted till 1791.

Sweden and the Census.

Sweden was the first European country to make a complete enumeration of inhabitants, that census having been taken in 1749. Spain's first census was taken in 1768, while Great Britain and France did not begin to ascertain their population until 1801. The first census of the entire United States was taken in 1790.

A Definition of Man.

Man, said Huxley, the scientist, is a mixture of "horse nervousness, ass stubbornness and camel malice, with an angel bobbing about unexpectedly like the apple in the posset."

Panama.

It is supposed by some that Panama derived its name from the native word for butterfly. Explorers of the interior tell of swarms of butterflies which at times rise on the slopes of the mountains in dense clouds, darkening the sunshine. Others maintain that the name is from an Indian word meaning abounding in fish.

EAST AND WEST MEET

Walter McCormack, Famous Grand Opera Tenor, makes Friends with the Blackfeet Indians from Glacier National Park

The East and the West came together in a rather striking and unusual fashion at the recent concert given by the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra in the Auditorium at St. Paul. The Indians attended the concert as guests of L. W. Hill and were very appreciative not only of the splendid solos sung by Mr. McCormack, but of the rather intricate and high-brow type of orchestration rendered by Prof. Rothwell and his well-known orchestra.

Chief Fred Big Top, in referring to the concert, said he enjoyed it very much—"some of it was just like Indian music."

The Indians applauded long and loud at times and attracted considerable attention themselves. While the elite of St. Paul were present in evening dress they had nothing on the Indians, who were very elaborately attired and carried themselves with dignity and ease.

After the concert, the Indians were introduced to and photographed with McCormack as shown in the picture above. They extended him a cordial invitation to visit their native home, Glacier National Park, Montana, this summer.

OREGON AT THE NORTHWEST PRODUCTS EXPOSITION

The state of Oregon was fully represented at the Northwest Products Exposition by the finest collections of fruits, grains, grasses and vegetables that the state has ever sent East to an industrial and agricultural show. In charge of the booths were Messrs. O. E. Freytag of Oregon City, J. E. Sawhill of Bend, and M. J. Duryea of Eugene, Oregon.

All three gentlemen were prominent speakers at banquets given by the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association during the course of the land show. Thousands of booklets, leaflets and folders of handsome appearance were distributed to the land seekers who crowded the show during the entire two weeks.
