year. The authorities say that the old pest-ridden trees are dangerous, and that orchards close by, no matter how well cared for and kept up, must suffer from proximity. The fruit inspector has many times orderthese old blotches spraced, but they are left untouched. The first through passenger train went through to Tillamook, Sanday. An oldtime engineer states that one would hardly know the line these days, there are so many "shoo-flys" and runarounds, where the big slides covered the track. The Tillamook people are rejoicing over again being in daily communication with the outside world.
