

INSPECTOR F. C. ORTH EXPECTS FINE SEASON

Says Milk Supply for Condensers is Better Than Last Year

SAYS DUE TO MANY SMALL TRACTS

Thinks the Condensers Are Now Here to Stay as Industrial Factor

F. C. Orth, milk inspector and traveling representative of the Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Co., with factories here and at Forest Grove, was in town Saturday. He said to the Argus reporter that the milk supply in March, this season, is better than it was at the corresponding period last year. "I do not know that there are so many more milk cows here, but there are many more who have one or two cows, than usual. This is due to the fact that many people have bought small tracts, and are keeping one or two cows on them, and it is a matter of fact that where people keep but one or two dairy producers they always crowd them to the limit, to get as much profit as possible. It means, of course, more feed, but it pays them to keep up their stock. In Reedville and Aloha district, where we formerly had only a stub, we have been forced to put on a regular wagon, due to the fact that the Shaw-Fear people have sold many small homes in the past year. We had a good season last year, and I think this year will be the banner for production.

It looks to me as though Washington County is getting into shape for more prosperity, and it is going to be due to the cow, the mainstay of the small farmer, as well as the bank account of the big dairyman."

Mr. Orth has been with the company several years, and he knows the county better, perhaps, than any other man in the section.

BEAVERTON ATHLETICS

The young men of Beaverton met in the Morse building recently and organized an Amateur Athletic Club, electing as officers: Arch Christolm, President; John Cornely, Vice-Pres.; Victor Emmons, Sec.; J. L. Hardy, Treas.; L. Wolfe, Sergeant-at-Arms. On the start 25 members answered the roll call. The Beaverton Club has joined the Pacific Northwest Association and is strictly confined to Amateur Athletics. In their gymnasium is erected a large boxing arena, punching bags, exercisers, etc. The club will hold monthly entertainments in which the best Amateur talent from the Multnomah, Columbus and Brooklyn Amateur Clubs, of Portland, will take part.

FORGED DEED FILED ON VALUABLE TRACT

Covers One Hundred Twenty Acres Near Witch Hazel, on S. P.

LAND WORTH TWENTY THOUSAND

Grantee Has Never Shown up at the Premises—a Peculiar Case

Harry A. Anderson, of Portland, owner of a saloon on Fourth St., opposite the Chamber of Commerce, came out to Hillsboro the other day to pay taxes on a 120-acre tract he owns on the Clatsop Stewart claim near Witch Hazel, and was told that his land was assessed to one Oscar E. Carlson. Investigation showed that a deed signed by Harry and Emma Anderson had been executed at Spokane, Wash., Oct. 1, 1910, before a notary by the name of Claude Hamilton Paxton, with A. E. Fox and Martin Freese as witnesses. The deed covers the property of the Portland Harry Anderson to a niece, but the owner says he never knew an Oscar Carlson; and was not in Spokane at that time. He pronounces the deed a forgery.

The land in question is probably worth $200 per acre—and may be worth more as soon as the Southern Pacific is electrified.

It is thought by some that perhaps local parties might have made the deed and then made their getaway, but the strange feature of the case is that the Carlson has never been around the place, nor does any one in the Reedville-Witch Hazel section know an Oscar Carlson.

Anderson has had a tenant on the place all the time and has always received his rental. To say he was surprised goes without saying, for it would surprise almost anyone in moderate circumstances to find twenty thousand dollars worth of property deeded away. He will at once enter suit to get title quieted.

REASONER'S REPLY

The Oregonian of Sunday contained the following statement about the Rex-Tigard road: "I find that before I was elected County Judge the members of the Portland Auto Club appeared before the County Court and stated that if the county would pay $3000 toward the improvement of the Rex-Tigard road the club would complete a stretch of road, giving it a macadam finish—the proposed stretch being about eight miles in length. The court agreed to this, and operations were at once commenced. The County Court of Washington County has contributed something like $2250, 78 and the club has paid out $6,404.83, and there has been about three miles of road dressed with rock. Whenever the outsiders pay enough in to complete the eight miles, the present County Court will come through with the balance of the promised $3000, but not before. I will state that I never at any time promised that the County Board would finish up the remaining five miles of road. The law is plain on this subject, and the only promise I ever made was that road would get its just proportion of taxation; I realize as well as any one the importance of this road, but Washington County has myriads of small bridges to keep in repair and rebuild, and taxes are high. We are ready to live up to the old agreement of the board, which was solicited by members of the Portland Club, but we cannot at this time go any further."

"In the two districts through which the Rex-Tigard road passes there are 39 miles of road, and total tax amounts to about $1700, which would entitle the eight-mile stretch to about $300. Further than this we cannot go, except to live up to the old promise of the Board—and this we are ready to meet when the original eight miles of road have been completed. Mr. John Nyberg, now a Commissioner, was the one who was delegated to deal with the club, and he is here at all times to assert the truthfulness of the statement as to the original agreement."

HUMPHREYS BROTHERS HANGED AT THE CAPITAL

Attempt of Attorneys to Get Men Reprieved Without Avail

WERE ARRESTED IN THIS COUNTY

Each Confessed and Conviction Followed at Corvallis

George and Charles Humphreys, brothers, were hanged at Salem, last Saturday, paying the penalty for the murder of Mrs. Eliza Griffith, at Philomath, over two years ago. It will be remembered that the Fall after they murdered the Griffith woman they moved to Washington County and bought a place above Banks, buying from Rev. Garrigus. The two men were quiet, unassuming fellows, and were considered more or less recluse. Portland detectives were on the hunt for them and in some manner found that they had trailed to this section. Geo. Humphreys was the first to be arrested and he confessed to District Attorney E. B. Tongue. Two days later Chas., the brother, was brought to Hillsboro, and confessed the crime, corroborating the brother's confession.

Later each tried to repudiate the confessions, and their attorneys sought to make the authorities and the jury believe that their admissions had been secured through "third degree" methods.

This was futile, and neither the court nor Gov. West believed this estimate of the affair. As a matter of fact the only third degree used on either was a dozen, long, black cigars, and these were used on Charles. He was an inveterate smoker, and would tell of the crime as long as he had a cigar to smoke. He related the crime, not only to the authorities, but also to the Oregonian representative and to the Argus reporter.

Both men were degenerated in their last word, as was evidenced by the treatment of the dead body of the woman.

The Humphreys have never paid the balance due on their farm purchase and the land will more than likely revert to the holder of the mortgage.

Judge Campbell the last of the week gave Jephtha C. Garrigus a decree of foreclosure against Humphreys, and the place will go to sale. The mortgage was for $2100 and interest, and Mr. Garrigus was given judgment for a $250 attorney fee. Garrigus will more than likely bid in the place.
