

FESTIVE CANINE GETS THE TOWN EMBARGO

After 30 Days' Can no More Roam on Hillsboro Streets

THE UP DOGS OR PAY A FINE

Two Bids Put in on Macadamized Hillsboro Highways

Thirty days after April 22, a canine that has long held sway on Hillsboro streets will go in eclipse, for the edict has gone forth by ordinance that no dog, pestiferous canine can no longer roam at his own sweet will. Thirty days of grace has been given that all may have time to buy a dog chain and put it on. Tower, for he must be tagged. The canines have become a nuisance and the city fathers have concluded that we are to have a dogless town, so far as street evidence is concerned.

Two bids were offered on the macadamizing of streets. The Rockolite people bid 99 cents per yard, and the Montague-O'Reilly Co. bid $1.08. After the bids were opened the Montague company stated that when their bid was made they were not aware that the council had some time ago secured a cheaper rate for material for municipal purposes, and they thereupon offered to do the work for 33 cents per yard. The council will call for new bids.

There was no bid for the completion of the asphalt-cement block on North Third, so nothing was done on that score. An ordinance was passed requiring cement sidewalks on several blocks and notices appear in this week's paper.

Surveyor Jones of Yamhill Co., wants to bid on the engineering, and City Engineer McGee stated that he would meet any competition, as he was located here, and the work will probably go competitive bids.

MARY L. HARBISON

Mrs. Mary L. Harbison died at the home of her son, John S. Harbison, at LaFayette, Ore., April 19, 1913. She was born in South Carolina, Aug. 3, 1833, and moved to Bloomington, Ind., when she was an infant. She was married to Matthew H. Harbison, Sept. 28, 1851. They pioneered in Iowa until the Civil War broke, when her husband, with his three brothers, enlisted in the Union Army, 34th Iowa Volunteers, Infantry, Aug. 13, 1862. The husband died in the service, Jan. 20, 1863, and rests in an unknown grave in the National cemetery, near Memphis.

Mrs. Harbison moved to near LaCrosse, Wis., in 1875, with her three sons, Luther J., John S. and Robert E. They lived there 17 years and moved to the Pacific Coast in 1885, settling at Hood River, settling there with her two sons, John and Robert. The other son settled at Vacaville, Cal. She resided at Hood River until two years ago, when John S. acquired a place at LaFayette, and Robt. E. moved to Hillsboro, purchasing the Fair Acres property, one of the finest suburban places in Washington County. Since that time she has divided her time between the two sons. Interment was in the LaFayette cemetery. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, and her work along lines of religion and charity was practical and effective.

While at Hood River she planted the first two Banana Apple trees set on the Pacific Coast, and from the product of those trees grew the famous reputation of the fruit.

BEAVERTON FRUIT MAN TELLS OF APPLE SCAB

Advises Fruit Men as to Proper Time to Spray the Trees

WHEN THE BLOOM SHOWS PINK

Says Washington County Can Raise Fruit With Any Section

"In response to many requests from valley as well as Washington points asking for my treatment of apple scab, this letter is sent the Argus. Apple scab is as unsightly as the San Jose scale if not attended to at the proper time. For those who wish to raise clean fruit, and who have followed my articles in the Argus, as well as taken my personal advice, I write this information—for I believe my fruit has stood the test of market and exhibit with any in the Northwest. My method of spraying has never failed me and I do not look for future failure. There are two classes of growers, the class knowing that poor fruit is not a paying investment, and this class use spray, and spray well. The other class must have the fruit inspector tell them 3 or 4 times to spray, and he must stand by and see it done, if it is to be done properly. They reason like the man in Hillsboro, who the other day said to me: 'It is cheaper for me to buy apples than to spray'—which I know is not true. Last year there was overproduction, but if you had good, clean apples it would have paid better than anything else you could produce, with the prices prevailing for hay, potatoes, Hay would have yielded you $12 in the field, with 3 tons to the acre. You would have made that on 4 trees, or better. A man living near here recently planted some fruit trees in a fence corner—and this is a sample of the indifference that can't see profit in fruit growing, and many have that idea. They regard planting as the end, and then complain because they do not get results. Give trees the care you do other crops and you will get results. I am sorry to see so little spraying done in the east end of the county—very little winter spraying. Where 50 barrels were used last year five were used this year. Perhaps Aetna spray has done its work so well that there is no need—but the San Jose scale should be watched each winter. A year ago I left two trees unsprayed in my orchard. There was not a scale perceptible. By Fall they were in bad condition with scale and anthracnose. So you can see it does not pay to 'skip.' Of course, I get all kinds of compliments for my spray, and many say they never got results until they used it—even Hood River people tell me that, as well as California and Washington. My own fruit, which won premiums at the land show—six first premiums—shows what good spray and good spraying can do. And I was in competition with the best of growers of the entire Northwest. I do not tell this to 'blow my bugle,' but to show what Washington County can do with care in handling fruit trees.

For Apple Scab
For spraying apple and pear scab—when the blossom is about ready to open, I use 11 gallons of lime and sulphur solution to 50 gallons of water and nothing else added—as it is not necessary to add arsenate of lead at this time. Now, don't use bluestone and lime, or Bordeaux mixture, as this will russet the apple and will make it as unsightly as the scab itself. The apple scab is almost as bad as the scale, with the exception that it does not kill the trees. Spray when your bloom is as above stated, and you will get results this Fall.

Thirty head of registered and graded Jerseys. The foundation stock for my herd came from the West, Lynn, Cary, Withycombe, and O. A. C. herds, among the best in the Valley. With two exceptions the stock is young; most of the cows being from 2 to 4 years old, and have given from 25 to 30 lbs. of milk with first calves. There are 13 fine calves, ranging from 1 to 10 months old; 2 fine young registered bulls, one 10 the other 6 months old. The young stock is sired by Maro Marigold, whose dame made 2 1/2 lbs in one day and had a record of 600 lbs. butter per year. Ten of the herd are registered; the rest, almost full-blooded grades, and have been averaging nearly $13.00 per month per cow. If you are looking for beauty and utility combined, you will find it in this herd.

The Argus does not know how the present county court stands on the matter of an exhibit at the coming state fair, but it believes the county should see to it that there is an exhibit, and a creditable one. This can be done with very little expense. L. D. Westfall, of Tualatin, who knows how to put up an exhibit, went to Salem last year, without financial assistance, and captured fourth prize. He is honest, reliable, and has had experience in an affair of this kind. An appropriation would not be out of place, and the county could then be represented at the state fair. As we pay tax for the institution anyway, a little more added to the sum total would make but very little hardship on the taxpayers, and the Argus believes it should be done.

Guns, fishing tackle, knives, ammunition, at cost. Am retiring from business, Hillsboro Gun Store, opposite Court House, and two doors east of Hillsboro Mercantile Co., on Main Street.

A representative of the Indian Agency at Yakima, accompanied by an assistant were here all week, accompanying an Indian who owns a bunch of horses on the reservation. About fourteen months ago, parties by the name of Henderson & Laidler were here and sold about twenty head of animals. Quite a number of these were stolen from the visiting Indian, and others, on the reserve, and the government is assisting in getting the animals for the owners. The horses were found scattered all over the county and quite a number have turned them over without any litigation. Henderson & Laidler have shipped quite a few horses from the Yakima to valley points, and it is supposed that they bought the horses from rustlers.

For sale—Young high-grade Jersey cow. Will soon be fresh. Of good dairy form.—F. F. & A. E. Hanley, 3 1/2 miles northwest of Hillsboro, Ore., Route 3, Box 17. Phone 319.

Dr. Elmer Smith was called to the home of J. H. Gertenschlaeger, of near Witch Hazel, Tuesday night, to attend the head of the family. He had been kicked by a mule while returning from Portland, Tuesday evening, and was unconscious. The animal was shot, and the man's skull had been crushed, and his face badly lacerated. Death was expected at any time at last reports. He has a wife and four children.
