HILLSBORO PHILOSOPHER
"TAKE THAT VACATION"

Says it Will Give You a new Lease
on Life and new Nerves

TAKE IT ANY WAY—AND AT ONCE

Animadverts of the Good Results of a
Trip to Hills or Sea

The Hillsboro philosopher was at his best Monday morning, and getting a little grouchy about him, when he had a five minutes breathing spell from business, he uncorked himself from the following words of wisdom:

"Every business man should take an annual vacation, and so should the farmer. The farmer, of course, has all Winter to rest and read, and his choring at that time is just enough to keep up his appetite. But the business man should take an annual rest, anyway. If he can only get out in the hills for four days with a camp outfit, or only spend a few days at the coast, it will put new "pep" in him. A week in the hills with rod and gun will make a man come back to his own. He will get up an appetite that would put a brindle pup to shame, and he will get sufficiently hungry to eat a piece of old shoe-leather. His eye will get brighter, and he will feel so good that clabber milk would taste like cream. Bacon, even of the dry salt variety, will taste better than anything you can get on the menu at the Hof Brau, and the beauty of it is he won't founder or get the gout. I'll tell you—you fellows who slave here year after year don't know what's good for you.

You are going to die some of these days, and when you turn that little trick you'll not see green hills and running brooks for a long time. Go out into the hills for a week, and when you come back you'll have a grip like John L. Sullivan, and you'll think that anything your wife cooks is epicurean. You'll be a better business man for you will have "tang" in your brain and "go" in your legs—what's that? How long since I've had my annual vacation? Oh, well, you see it's like this—my business won't stand my absence, and the last time I had a vacation was my honeymoon, thirty years ago, and we had a week of it, traveling around. It was warm traveling and when we finally came home we didn't hardly speak to each other for a week—and that soured me on vacations. But what I've been telling you is the right thing, and don't you forget it."
