HIGH UNTO DEATH

ALVA R. HUNTINGTON

At a time when the transcontinental country was developing, and the iron horse, with its train flying at the rate of fifty miles an hour, was the stagecoach lumbered at the rate of five or six. One of these coaches left Denver one morning, crossed the mountains at Golden City, climbed to the highest point and moved slowly forward and upward alternately to Georgetown.

On the top of the coach a gentleman and his family were enjoying the scenery. The driver sat on his box seat wide awake, for he had been drinking, while beside him sat a young man whose costume denoted that he was a resident of the region. The coach had reached the top of an ascent, and was in front wound downward through those frequent dips in the road. It had begun the descent, and the young man sitting beside the driver, noticing that he had failed to put on the brake, looked aside at him to see what it meant. The fellow was drunk. He had not only failed to put on the brake, but had let go his hold on the reins, which were now down on the backs of the horses.

The sudden jerk of the reins awoke the driver. He saw that the reins dangling from his hands and that the coach rolling rapidly down the crooked road, jumped from his box, preferring rather to be injured by falling on the stony road than to be carried over a precipice he knew to be not far farther down.

There were shrieks from the women passengers, while the men were paralyzed. But among the latter there was one exception. The young man left alone on the box let himself down on the pole, gathered up the reins, climbed back on to the box and put on the brake. The horses were by this time so wild and the speed so great that it was very difficult to control the one and lessen the other. Not an eighth of a mile distant was the turn in the road, with a gulf a thousand feet deep on one side. The cries and shrieks had ceased with the effort thus far made to regain control, and every eye was fixed on the danger ahead, every breath held in terror.

The man on the box kept a firm hand on the reins and pushed with all his strength with his right foot on the brake. There was a lessening of the speed, but would it be reduced sufficiently to go safely round the curve? The hearts of those whose lives were at stake were throbbing in time with the jumping of the horses. When the turn was reached the velocity was still so great that there was little hope. The women recommenced to shriek.

"Stop that!" said the driver. "You'll excite the horses."

The cries ceased. There was no sound except what came from the horses' hoofs and the creaking of the coach, while every one held with a tight grip to his seat and looked with straining eyes at the gulf before him. The driver guided the horses as near the rock on the inner side as he dared, for should he hit it the coach would be knocked over the precipice. Notwithstanding his effort so great was its swing when it made the turn that a hind wheel slid over a slope a few feet from the edge. The driver gave a yell to the horses and threw the long lash of his whip among them with a crack. Every animal gave a [illegible] wheel rang [illegible] the road [illegible] safety.

The [illegible] caused the horses to break forth again, and again they must be brought under control. But now the road was comparatively straight and soon the inclination began to lessen. In a few minutes the bottom of the dip was reached, and the coach was brought to a standstill. Then the driver was enfolded in the arms of those on the outside of the coach, both men and women.

An hour later the coach drove up to the hotel at Idaho Springs and all alighted. The gentleman who was traveling with his wife and family took the driver aside for a private interview.

"You have saved the lives of a coach load of persons," he said, "including myself, my wife and family. Had it not been for your coolness and courage we would all have met with a frightful death. What can I do for you? I'm rich and my fortune is at your disposal."

"You owe me nothing, sir," said the young man, with a British accent. "My own life was in jeopardy. In saving myself I saved the others."

"You could have left the coach as the cowardly driver did."

To this the young man made no reply.

"Come," resumed the gentleman; "anything you ask that is in my power to grant shall be granted."

The young man hesitated, then said: "I don't belong here; I came from England. You know the younger sons in England must shift for themselves. I came to this country, where I am not known, and can turn my hand to anything. Being fond of horses I drove a stage. I have left that and am going up to Georgetown to start on a prospecting tour."

But the young man's plans were changed. He went to the east, entered the banking house of the man whose life he saved and is now wealthy. He says that he went just near enough to the edge of a precipice to grasp a fortune without going over.

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Washington County.

W. H. Eccles, Plaintiff, vs. J. A. Taylor, Florence E. Taylor, Laura V. Doane, E. L. Doane, Frank Doane and Margaret Doane, Defendants.

To J. A. Taylor and Florence E. Taylor, two of the above named defendants—

In the name of the State of Oregon: You and each of you are hereby commanded and required to be and appear in the above entitled court and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled cause, on or before the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons in the Hillsboro Argus, the date of the first publication thereof being Nov. 13, 1913, and the date of the last publication thereof being Jan. 1, 1914; to-wit, on or before the 2nd day of January, 1914; and you will please take notice that if you fail so to appear and answer said complaint, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in his complaint, to-wit: For a decree reforming and correcting that certain deed of conveyance made, executed and delivered by J. A. Taylor and Florence E. Taylor, in favor of O. L. Doane, bearing date April 14 1894 filed for record April, 1894, and recorded on page 387 of Book 29 of the Records of Deeds of Washington County, Oregon, so that the fifth course in the description in said conveyance shall be made to read, "thence west eighty rods," instead of thence west ten rods, based upon the mutual mistake and misapprehension of fact of the parties to said conveyance, and not caused by any negligence of the plaintiff in this suit or his predecessors in title or the parties to said conveyance, and for such other and further relief as may be equitable.

This summons is served upon you by publication in the Hillsboro Argus by order of the Honorable D. B. Reasoner, County Judge of Washington County, Oregon, made and dated at Hillsboro, on the 13th day of November, 1913, and which order requires that you appear and answer said complaint on or before the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication of said summons, to-wit, on or before the 2nd day of January, 1914.

SUMMONS.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR WASHINGTON COUNTY.

State of Oregon, plaintiff, vs. Edward C. Luce, County Clerk of Washington County, Oregon, E. B. Sappington, County Treasurer of Washington County, Oregon; D. B. Reasoner, County Judge of Washington County, Oregon, and all persons who claim to be heirs at law or next of kin of Hans Nelson, deceased, and all persons claiming an interest of the estate of said deceased, defendants.

This matter coming on to be heard upon the application of the State of Oregon, by E. B. Tongue, District Attorney for the Fifth Judicial District of Oregon, and by John M. Wall, special attorney for the State of Oregon, specially appointed by the Governor for the purpose of filing information and complaint to escheat to the State of Oregon the real and personal property owned and formerly in the possession of Hans Nelson, deceased, and now under the control and in the possession of the County Court of Washington County, Oregon, in custodia legis, and it appearing to the Court that the said Hans Nelson died intestate in Washington County, Oregon, on the 11th day of September, 1911, leaving no heirs at law or next of kin; that the said Hans Nelson at the time of his death was a resident of said Washington County, Oregon, and at the time of his death left an estate consisting of real and personal property, and described as follows, to wit:

Tract known as 181, being the S. E. quarter of the S. W. quarter of the N. E. quarter of section 29, T. 4 N., R. 2 W. Will. Mer., containing 10 acres, more or less.

Second tract—Lot known as the W. half of No. 8, block 1, in the Town of Spitzenberg, according to the duly recorded plat thereof, all of said property being situate in the County of Columbia, State of Oregon, said conveyance being subject to all mineral rights reserved, but if necessary full compensation for all damages to land or improvements is guaranteed, and a strip 15 feet wide is reserved off one side for roadway. Also personal property consisting of money in the sum of $874.10.

And it further appearing to the Court that the estate of said Hans Nelson, deceased, is seized in fee simple of the said real property and of the whole thereof; that on the 18th day of November, 1911, one Valdemar Lidell was appointed administrator de bonis non of said estate and thereafter said administrator proceeded to take possession of the property of said estate, and after fully administering thereon and paying off all legal claims and demands against said estate, did, on June 26th, 1913, duly file in the County Court of said county his final account by which there was shown to be on hand at said time the real estate above described of an estimated value of $500, and certain moneys in the sum of $874.10; that said court, on the 4th day of August, 1913, duly approved said final account and made an order requiring said administrator to turn over to said court all of the property on hand and fully settle and close said estate, discharging said administrator and his bondsmen from further liability therein;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the defendants above named and all persons who claim to be heirs at law or next of kin of said Hans Nelson, deceased, and all persons claiming an interest in said estate, appear and show cause, if any they have, within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this order, to-wit, on or before six weeks from the 23d day of October, 1913, why the title to said real and personal property should not vest in the State of Oregon, and that said order be published once each week for six successive and consecutive weeks in the Hillsboro Argus, a newspaper published in the County of Washington, State of Oregon, and of general circulation therein.

Dated at Hillsboro, Oregon, this 20th day of October, A. D., 1913.
