Frank S. Grant is out for attorney-general on the Republican ticket. He was formerly city attorney for Portland.

At last the S. P. line has been electrified, and it is certain to help Washington County. May there be more of them in the not distant future.

Even the "big fellows" are praising Wilson's administration, as well as the small fellows. Wilson's popularity is growing daily, for he is conscientious in his executive work.

There are fifteen state offices to fill next Fall, and there are already fifteen candidates for governor—and no one knows how large the crop will grow before primary day.

MRS. EDWARD GRIEBELER

Mrs. Ann M. Griebeler, of Gaston, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Everest, in Hillsboro, January 20, 1914. She was born in England in 1814, and at the age of three years came to New York, with her parents, the family moving to Wisconsin in 1854. She wedded Edward Griebeler in Wisconsin. They moved to Minburn, Iowa. At the age of 18 she joined the Baptist church, at Clinton, Rock Co., Wis. They came to Oregon in May, 1884, settling at Gaston, where they have since resided. She is survived by her husband, four children and thirteen grandchildren. The children are: Mrs. F. A. Everest, Hillsboro; Mrs. Saphronia Child, Boring, Oregon; Mrs. Maud Storey, Gaston, and L. O. Griebeler, Gaston. The following brothers and sisters survive: Mrs. Susan Pye, John R. and W. H. Butler, Wisconsin; Mrs. Mary E. Best, of Sebastopol, Cal., and J. T. Butler, of Forest Grove. The funeral took place today, Rev. B. C. Cook officiating, and interment was at Gaston.

Mrs. Griebeler was a true Christian in spirit, and a large circle of friends mourn her loss.

Born to Ernest Webb and wife, of Forest Grove, Jan. 17, 1914, a daughter.

E. Wenstrom was up from Schools this morning.

Chas. Frick, of Rainier, has bought the Palm Confectionery from C. S. Parkers. He has had experience at this line of business, and asks his share of the public patronage. His family will soon move here.

Frank S. Grant is out for attorney-general on the Republican ticket. He was formerly city attorney for Portland.

At last the S. P. line has been electrified, and it is certain to help Washington County. May there be more of them in the not distant future.

Even the "big fellows" are praising Wilson's administration, as well as the small fellows. Wilson's popularity is growing daily, for he is conscientious in his executive work.

And Mrs. Wilkinson remembered that three days after the day the 17th of February—she would pass another birthday, and this year would bring a round figure; she would be thirty. She had lost her husband five years before, and it was beginning to seem to her that a single life had its advantages. There was no choice for her to marry again, because none ever came into her life. She had one child, Jimmie, who kept her busy, for he was always getting himself and her into trouble. But Jimmie did not fit the whole of her life. She craved the society of one of her own generation, and it is natural for the sexes to prefer their opposites.

Jimmie got his mother into a scrape that appeared to be never ending. In a moment of weakness she had consented to his having a dog. A nicely creature of yellow color came walking about the door one day for something to eat, and Jimmie begged so hard for permission to keep him that his mother consented. That was the greatest mistake of her life. The dog was a barker. He would bark at those he loved by way of salute and at those he hated by way of antagonism.

Jimmie declared that he wouldn't stop the dog barking for the world. He said that the beast was splendid protection against burglars. Perhaps he was, for a warning, but he knew that was the dog's name—was the most cowardly brute in the world.

In a house that backed up against the widow's place lived an old bachelor, aged forty. His rising hour was 8, but his waking hour was 7, for Bob was let out every morning at 7 and frisked and barked till 8. Mr. Barker, the old bachelor, hated Bob primarily; Jimmie, his owner, secondly, and the widow, Jimmie's mother, thirdly. Only Jimmie knew this, for Mr. Barker was too much of a gentleman to let a woman know how Bob annoyed him. Such was the status when Jimmie asked and received money for his annual love offerings.

"I'm going," said Jimmie to himself, "to send a valentine to mamma from Mr. Barker. I reckon that would be a good thing for me to do."

The basic reason for this was, fearing that the bachelor would complain of his dog to his mamma and he would thereby lose him. Jimmie was interested in keeping the peace between the two. So he spent the principal part of the money given him for the prettiest valentine he could find and asked the man of whom he bought it to address it to his mother. On St. Valentine's day he left it at the front door, then ran around to the back of the house and climbed a trellis to his room.

"Jimmie," called his mother, "mamma has got a valentine. Whom do you suppose it's from?"

"I don't suppose it's from any one," grumbled Jimmie, "because I know." "Know?"

"Of course I do. Didn't I see that he would complain of his dog to his mamma and she would thereby lose him?"

"Well, if you know better than I do, why can't you make any difference to me? I don't like that old curmudgeon, any way."

Mrs. Wilkinson could not at once believe what Jimmie had told her, but she had been conscious of being observed by the bachelor when she stood at a mirror near her back window, prinking and he was at his back window shaving.

"Well, Jimmie," she said, "if I had a valentine I might be tempted to return the compliment."

This put another idea into Jimmie's head. If he should send Mr. Barker a valentine from his mother he would re-enforce his chances for keeping Bob. He asked his mother for money to buy another valentine to send to a little girl she very much approved of, and she gave it to him. This time the clerk who served him was a woman, and he asked her to address the envelope to Mr. Barker. Then between daylight and dark, seeing the bachelor looking out of a window, he ran past to the front door, rang the bell and vanished.

The next day Mr. Barker began inquiries among his neighbors for some one to introduce him to the widow, and presently a lady asked permission to bring him to call. Mrs. Wilkinson, believing from the fact of his having sent her a valentine that he had been smitten with her, received him very graciously, and Mr. Barker, believing the same with reference to her, made himself as agreeable as was possible with her.

Mr. Barker was a frequent caller on Mrs. Wilkinson after that. He gave Jimmie candy and even petted Bob. Jimmie was delighted with the success of his rise till one day his mother informed him that Mr. Barker was going to be his new papa. Jimmie was not particularly pleased with this new feature of the case. In speaking about it to a friend he remarked:

"Doggone it, I only wanted to keep Bob, and I got a stepfather!"

J. H. Simpson, of South Tualatin, was over to the county seat yesterday afternoon.

KITCHEN SHOWER

The lady friends of Miss Minnie Hartmann, now Mrs. Earl Luther, tendered her a kitchen shower last Thursday evening, and presented a large assortment of kitchen ware. Ice cream and cake was served, and all had an enjoyable time. One of the features was a primary wedding, in which the hostess was the bride and Mrs. Tozia Cluster the
