A bootlegger who operated around Hillsboro the past Spring flew the coop a few weeks ago and made across the Canadian line, where he is safe from pursuit. Several minors were furnished liquor through him, and as soon as he learned that the officers were close on his trail he made himself scarce. About a dozen youngsters have been before the grand jury this week, and more than likely other in-dictments will follow.

A TIMID GIRL

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Miraoda Jones was the timidest creature I ever knew. Whenever there was a sign of danger she would collapse. In a thunderstorm she would go upstairs, get on a bed and tremble like a leaf till it was all over. If any one taiked of robbers she would listen with wide open eyes and soon get into ness life of Hillsboro will be C. a staver. So much terror did she B. Buchanan & Co., of Cornelius, show at imaginary dangers that everythe firm which last Friday closed body said if anything really happened the deal for the purchase of the she would go all to pieces. Something Climax Milling Plant. The pur- did happen one day, and this is what It was and how Miranda neted:

Miranda was a very good looking girl, with the mill, and Mr. Buchan- had had more grit. I'm a practical an, who recently purchased the sort of fellow, and it never seemed to al years by C. E. Lytle, will a tramp came along, would be scared move to Hillsboro and take to death. I would always be worrying about her till I got back to her. Still The firm of Buchanan & Co. and the principal part of it was that I always had a fiking for Miranda, I felt very sure she had a decided

But, as I was saying, this is what happened: One day all the Jones famrest of them went off in the wagon after the morning chores were done and were to be back about 5 o'clock. a farmhouse with no neighbor nearer Carl Heidel, who has been at than a mile I don't know. Miranda might do a little courting.

The family hadn't been gone very long before a man came down the road and when he got to the house turned in at the well for a drink of water. As he was pulling up the bucket and drinking out of the gourd be kept a lookout on the house. It must have believes in good roads, for Super- looked pretty quiet and as if there wasn't anybody there. When he got ports to the county court that he through drinking he went to the house,

The only way to get the rest of the team, and $9.50 worth of wood story was from Miranda berself, so there's no use in telling whether she acted brave or cowardly. She said she roads. H. C. Carstens gave the she didn't dare do so because she was wood, and the following gave of afraid the man would kill her while she was running. The truth is, when ber grandmother died she had left Mi .21 randa $500 the old lady had saved during a period of many years. It was in . 1 quarters, dimes, nickels and cents, and in the same woolen stocking the grandmother had kept it. Miranda, in seeking a safe place for it, had hit on the big chimney. She had climbed up in it, found a loose brick, taken it out. put in the stocking and covered it with a part of the brick, protecting it from fire and concealing the place where she

I remembered what Miranda had said hadn't said I'd go over. After dinner. Give Me a Trial the weather being fine and the driving good, I allowed I'd harness up my mare, run over and ask her to go for a drive. It's four miles from our farm to theirs, and I jogged along, thinking of the drive I was going to have and wondering what Miranda was doing there all by herself. When I got pretty near the bouse I saw her sitting on the stepping platform in front of the Louise. A moment after I first saw her : e got up and raised a gun she though she was going to shoot a bird off the top of the chimney. "Well, I'll be ded retted," I said to D. E. Blackburn, master-at-arms; myself, "if that isn't the queerest sight I ever saw-Miranda daring to use a

After the installation there was work in the Knights rank, and at the close light refreshments the bird she was trying to get a shot were served. The lodge will go at when I was flabbergasted at seeing

It didn't require more than a few seconds to take in the situation. Miranda had a man up the chimney. Who he was or how she got him there didn't concern me just then. Leaving her on the grass to come to herself Friends and neighbors called at the home of Mrs. F. Bock-

"That gal," he said, "has got the that, finding her alone, I told her if she didn't tell me where the family kept their money I'd kill her. She said they kept it up the chimney. I went up after it, and she barricaded the firepince with heavy furniture so couldn't get out that way, and when I climbed up to get out this way she was watching me with a gun.
