The county court will levy no more than three mills for the road district tax money this year, and this will mean that districts wishing rock road work will have to consider the advisability of voting a special tax.

Washington County will win some when it pays that $18,000 university tax next Spring. But the "old guard" sees to it that people are taxed. The coming delegation at the legislature next Winter, from this county, at least, will be sure to make trouble for that millage bill or else the Argus misses its guess.

The Oregonian this morning, in its Washington despatch, admits that the Columbia River and other North Pacific coast points get over one-tenth of the river and harbors appropriation—but it failed to tell Chamberlain's connection with this. With Senator Borah fighting the appropriation on "pork barrel" grounds, it would appear as though Chamberlain did well to get so large an amount for Oregon's waterway.

FREE STATE OF OREGON vs. S. (STATE) W. (WIDE) PROHIBITION

Foreword

The trial of S. W. Prohibition by a prosecution against the theory of the proposed state-wide amendment and is not an attack against the supporters of the measure whose motives are, no doubt, above reproach.

In opening the case against S. W. Prohibition we propose to submit the first charge of Intemperance. We call Mr. Experience, formerly a resident of Vermont and now domiciled in the State of Oregon.

Mr. Experience testified as follows. I have known the defendant for 53 years. I met him when he came to Vermont in 1850 and knew him intimately up to the time of his eviction in 1902, when he was thoroughly discredited.

He was welcomed after he had made the same promises and professions that he now makes in Oregon. Vermont accepted in good faith his theory under the BELIEF that it was practical in the following applications.

- (1) That it would stop the use of liquor in the State.
- (2) That it would stop drunkenness.
- (3) That it would stop crime.
- (4) That business conditions would be improved.
- (5) That Taxes would be lowered.

After the adoption of State Wide Prohibition we found the following conditions in the State of Vermont:

- (1) That intoxicants were still accessible and indulged in not only by those addicted to its use before Prohibition but by those who were attracted to its influence by its secrecy as in all human nature we are prone to crave that which is forbidden.

(2) Drunkenness in its chronic state increased by reason of the fact that liquor was obtained in bulk and when a man came in contact with it he drank by the wholesale at one sitting.

(3) Whereas practically overnight through the adoption of the prohibition law it was made a crime to indulge temperately in a beverage which before was NO CRIME, there were thousands whose moral character was weakened by being compelled to connive and sneak a privilege he was told was a crime. He lost his respect for law when in his heart and mind he realized his Personal Freedom was trampled. The records show that violent crimes against property and persons did not decrease but rather INCREASED. All was largely brought about by the increased sale of liquor brewed in illicit stills not inspected by the United States Government and which was FATAL to humanity. THE USE OF DRUGS INCREASED ALARMINGLY.

(4) Thousands of men were thrown out of employment into an already overcrowded labor market. Real Estate values tumbled. Stores became vacant. Money ordinarily circulated in the State leaked away into nearby licensed states, where general purchases of supplies INCREASED.

(5) Revenue from licenses having been cut down by thousands the deficit caused in State, city and county funds had to be met by INCREASED TAXATION. Property rendered valueless WITHOUT COMPENSATION became dilapidated. This with the slackening of business conditions resulted in comparative stagnation.

I have seen Statewide Prohibition in other States where the same conditions have been met. From my KNOWLEDGE OF HIM, I say that his representations and promises are intemperate. I further charge him with Intemperance in attempting to foist on Oregon theories that are not new but which have been tried for over half a century and then REJECTED as FAILURES.

N. B.—This trial will proceed from day to day.

CHARGES

Intemperance.
Obtaining Recognition Under False Pretenses.

Bringing into the State of Oregon Paid Agents for the Purpose of inoculating her citizens with the Germs of Hysteria.

Offering for acceptance in Oregon broken theories rejected by 15 Eastern States where defendant was ordered "out" after years of bitter experience.

Attempting to Rob Independent Communities of their Rights of Self Government.

Attempting to Kill the Hop Industry of Oregon.

EXTRACTS

One of the Jurors asked Wisdom, "Why is it necessary the same prohibitions and being made here were made in Eastern States and Iowa?" The Judge replied that there were some people who profit by the experience of neighbors.

S. W. Prohibition as the Representative of Day of the Year

Bishop Neely of the Episcopal Church says: "Intemperance is the cause of Intemperance in the State. Intemperance is only over indulgence in liquor." Speaking of Intemperance, a paperman yesterday drew attention to the fact that there was newspaper so Intemperance would not allow their readers to both sides of the argument.

Facts About the Loyal Order of Moose

The Loyal Order of Moose initiated more members in 1913 than all other fraternal organizations in America combined.

The Supreme and subordinate lodge assets of the Loyal Order of Moose are three and one-half millions.

The Supreme Lodge recently purchased 1000 acres at Mooseheart, Ill., where a vocational and industrial school has been estimated, also a home for the aged and widows and orphans.

The sun never sets on the Loyal Order of Moose. A large percentage of our leading citizens, including the President and Vice-President of the United States, are members of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The Loyal Order of Moose gave the sick, distressed and needy, over $2,000,000 in 1913.

A correspondence school will be started shortly at Mooseheart, for the benefit of members, and the lodge rooms will be converted into instruction rooms, where traveling teachers will give special instructions to promote, by education and organized effort, a higher public spirit and better social and fraternal order.

We welcome any white man of good moral character to become a member of the order.
