Herman Dumler, aged 38 years, was found dead in a Portland rooming house, New Year's morning. His wife and two children slept in a bed in the same room, and upon awakening in the morning, found that the husband and father had passed away. Mr. and Mrs. Dumler were out here in June, and had visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Beil, Mr. Dumler being a brother-in-law of the Beils. He carried $1,500 life insurance. Dumler was a baker, and had just returned from California, enroute back to New York. He had been looking over the West with a view of locating a bakery. Dumler was a native of Saxony, Germany.

Reduced rates have been granted by all the leading railroads in Oregon for Farmers' Week at O. A. C., February 1 to 7. Twenty passenger trains arrive daily, providing ample traveling accommodations for the hundreds of visitors and students who will attend. Since college will not be in session during Farmers' Week, student living accommodations will be available for those in attendance, and the entire time of the special exercises of the week and to personal interviews on special subjects. No charges or fees of any kind whatever. If you can afford to come you can't afford not to.

T. R. Davis, of Jolly Plains, was in Monday. He says that he sees no injury to Fall sown grain as a result of the heavy freeze just about Holiday time. Mr. Davis states that wheat and oats and vetch all look good in his section, and the frost did no damage unless it caught some of the potatoes. He thinks that, on the contrary, it did considerable benefit in killing the pests that infest the ground.

J. W. Sherwood, of Portland, was out the last of the week, looking after the local Maccabee business. He will place those carrying insurance either at Banks or Portland, as they choose, the local tent being desirous of surrendering its charter. Banner Tent, of Banks, is one of the largest in the state, out of Portland, and the boys have all elected to have their membership transferred over there.

Mrs. R. H. Greer returned Saturday from a short visit with her daughter, Mrs. W. C. Will, and husband, at Cle Elum, Wash., where Mr. Will is Manual Training Instructor in the school. Mrs. Greer was accompanied by her grand-son, Norman.

Chris Gertsch, of Garden Home, was in the city the first of the week, coming up to see Ulrich Hertzog, who worked for him years ago.

J. W. Bailey, E. C. Luce and brother, Sydney, were at the Portland Press Club entertainment, Friday evening, and report a fine program.
