VOL. XXI HILLSBORO, OREGON, JANUARY 21, 1915 NO. 44

JOHN DENNIS WRITES OF PANAMA "EXPOSIT"

Columbia River and Scenery to be Produced in Miniature

FLAG POLE TALLEST IN THE WORLD

News From a Tree That Had a Height of 318 Feet

John Dennis, who is with the Oregon Building at San Francisco, writes the Argus a few pointers about the structure. He says that Ernest V. Jensen, the landscape man, is to reproduce the Columbia River, its noted scenes, and its fisheries in one portion of the building, and all the game birds will be on exhibit in another section. The horticultural section will be 75x75, and so arranged as to best show what Oregon can produce. John says that the flag pole is the tallest in the world—232 feet above the ground. It was cut from a tree 318 feet high, and which contained more than 30,000 feet of lumber, or enough for five 8-room houses. The pole weighs 93,600 pounds, and it cost $5,000 to transport it and put it in position. The stars on the top are 10 feet in diameter, and the flag is 36x49 feet. This was a gift from the city of Astoria.

The 48 columns, of "big trees," as the people call them, contain sufficient lumber to make a small town, each tree having from 40 to 50 M. feet B. M. Each of these columns is dedicated to a state, and there is a flag above each column.

The structure contains 4 large pergolas or booths for the state exhibit; a rest room, with a large Oregon fireplace—you know, John says, Oregon likes fireplace—and a smoking room. There is a moving picture room, a lecture room, and the governor's and commissioners' rooms. There is also a dining room, kitchen and equipment, and this will be in charge of six girls from O. A. C.

The building is just across the street from the California building, which has 72 rooms. Close by is the New York reception building, for New York is going to be here in force, if the war continues.

The New Jersey building is also close to our structure. President Wilson will stay here when he visits the fair.

The bay is to the north of the Oregon building, and the sight is always a beautiful perspective. On New Year's Day, says Mr. Dennis, 76,000 people visited the Fair Grounds, and at least 20,000 visited the structure that will mean so much for the state.

Dennis was the only Oregon man left, last week, as the commission came back to Oregon on business. Mr. Dennis says he will do all he can for Hillsboro, and if the Commercial Club wishes anything he will co-operate with the city. He thinks that something in the advertising line, telling of our resources, the condensers, etc., would be just the thing. He will circulate it, and see that it gets into the hands of the right kind of people.

Henry Anderogg and H. A. Ekstrom, of north of Beaverton, were callers at the court house, Monday morning.

Jas. Turk, well known over in the Nehalem section, as well as in the Buxton region, was the last of the week granted a divorce from Hannah Turk. Jas. is one of the pioneer homesteaders of the Nehalem, and is now over 70 years of age. A few years ago he wedded Hannah as the result of a newspaper courtship. Things went along smoothly for a few years, even if Hannah was a great deal younger than the patriarch husband, but one day Sam came home. Sam was the boy. He was aged 46 years, and the father swore that there immediately ripened a friendship between wife and stepson that soon meant and established that Sam was given the head of the table, the largest piece of pie, etc., and father Turk rebelled. Turk took his decree and it is said that the boy and his step-mother remained away from the tribunal that churned the family affair.

Many local people are looking forward to visiting Portland during Auto Show Week, Jan. 23 to 30. There will be special excursion rates on transportation lines. While the Portland Auto Show has been a social feature in Portland for years, this season will mark a more elaborate interest on the part of Portland Society. Wednesday evening, Jan. 27, will be devoted to a formal reception, when the great halls will be filled with those best known in social life. Some fifty of Portland's social leaders will be patronesses at this reception, which, from all indications, will be a most elaborate and altogether pleasing affair, one of the events of the social season which will be talked about.

Jacob Schneider is congratulating himself that he did not injure a man, and lose a horse for which he would refuse $200. He was blasting stumps the other day and placed a stick of dynamite under a root. The root was loose, and he saw that there was going to be trouble. He called to the man with the team, and the driver looked around just in time to dodge the missile, which sped like a bullet. The wood struck between the horses and tore a bridle off the "off horse." It was a close call for the animal, and did not miss the man more than a few feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schulmerich departed Saturday for their home at Creswell, after a three weeks visit with relatives and friends in this city and vicinity. Their many friends regret their departure, for they have made the old town brighter by their presence. Mr. and Mrs. Schulmerich may return to Hillsboro to reside within the next year.

The delinquent tax list is being published its first time this week. The roll contains many small lots under contract between here and Portland, and is several columns larger than last season's. Quite a few, also, are for taxes where half has been paid by non-residents.

H. Holcomb, of West Union, was a city caller the last of the week. He says that his father, A. L. Holcomb, now at Kerman, Cal., is improving in health.

BERT GAILEY UNDER VERY SERIOUS CHARGE

Said to Have Shown Revolver to Young Lady, and Made Threats

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AT ONCE

Grand Jury Now Investigating an Affair That Needed Attention

Bert Gailey, a young man 22 years of age, was arrested by Deputy Emmett Quick, Friday afternoon, and brought to jail, pending an investigation of the charge that he had made threats to Miss Lucy Bloyd, the popular young school teacher near Seghers. Sheriff Reeves heard of the threats, and upon an information being signed, sent Quick out to get the young man. He was caught wending his way to Seghers, and brought to the county jail to await an investigation. The grand jury heard witnesses the first of the week.

As near as could be learned young Gailey persisted in paying attentions to Miss Bloyd, and she gave him to understand that she did not want his company. It is said that Gailey insisted that she should marry him, and asked to have the day set. When Miss Bloyd told him that such a thing had never entered her mind, Gailey is said to have shown her a revolver, containing three cartridges, saying in effect, "one of these is for you, one for me, and one to make good, if necessary." When arrested Gailey had a revolver on his person. When Sheriff Reeves asked him why he made such a statement to Miss Bloyd, Gailey said that he guessed because he "was a fool." He also stated that he was going back to "square himself" when he was arrested.

The officials did right in taking immediate steps in this case, for there are altogether too many irresponsible young fellows making threats of this nature, and some of them are being put into execution.

Gailey has been stopping in Hillsboro with an uncle, who bears a good reputation.

PYTHIANS INSTALL

The joint installation of officers by the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters at Pythian Hall, Friday evening, was one of the brilliant social affairs of the Winter season. There was a capacity attendance, and a buffet luncheon was served at a late hour, after a program that was pleasing. Wm. Nelson was the installing officer for the Pythians, and inducted into office the following: W. N. Harris, chancellor; L. W. House, master of exchequer; Geo. Emmott, inner guard; Jas. D. Anderson, outer guard. J. D. Anderson was given the past chancellor jewel.

The Pythian Sisters were installed by Mrs. E. L. Moore, assisted by Mrs. W. N. Barrett and Mrs. L. A. Long, the officers being: Mrs. E. C. McKinney, P. C.; Mrs. Leonard Brown, M. E. C.; Mrs. George Emmott, E. J.; Mrs. Janie Sewell, E. J.; Mrs. Wm. Nelson, M. R.; Mrs. Henrietta Morgan, M. of R. & C.; Mrs. J. B. Wilkes, M. of F.; Mrs. F. J. Williams, protector; Mrs. W. H. Taylor, guard. Miss Georgia Baldwin was Goddess of Flowers, and flower bearers were Ipha Wilkes, Cecil Emmott, Margaret Long and Doris Applegate.

There was a short program after installation, Hon. W. N. Barrett making the principal address. He was followed by R. H. Greer and Geo. Schulmerich, and Mrs. Greer and Mrs. Schulmerich responded for the Sisters. A comedy quartet, consisting of E. L. Moore, Geo. McGee, L. Brown and W. N. Harris, sang several numbers which were received with much applause. Mrs. C. J. Michelet sang a solo in her usual good voice, and was joined in the chorus by several Pythian Sisters. Geo. McGee sang "Mandala," and he was accompanied in the chorus by the Pythian Jubilee minstrels. The violin solo by Earl Donelson was a feature of the musical program. The orchestral numbers were rendered by Earl Donelson, violin; Wade Zumwalt, cornet; Fred Zumwalt, trombone; Vincent Engeldinger, piano; O. Phelps, drums.

After the ceremonies and luncheon, the evening was enjoyed with conversation, music and dancing.

JOHN HOYER FOUND DEAD IN A HOVEL

Brother Joseph is in the County Jail, Charged With his Murder

CORONER BARRETT FINDS FRACTURE

Case is in Hand of the Circuit Court Grand Jury in Session

John Hoyer, a carpenter, was found dead Friday, in a hovel inhabited by himself and brother Joseph on the Portland mountain, between Portland and Beaverton. Coroner Barrett called on Drs. Yeasey and Bailey for a post mortem, and a fracture was found at the base of the skull of the dead man. Joseph was brought to Hillsboro and lodged in jail. The two brothers are carpenters and have been on a protracted spree since before the holidays. Joseph at first told the officers that his brother had fallen, about 9 o'clock Thursday evening, and his head had struck the floor. He said he had picked the brother up and laid him in his bunk. The floor was littered with straw, and there was nothing to indicate that there had been any struggle. The officers, however, believed that a crime had been committed, and the investigation followed. A stick of wood was found which indicated that there had been trouble. It was covered with blood and had been stuck in the stove, being partially burned. When the sheriff arrived at the cabin Joseph was at the Minor home, asleep in an outbuilding. Sheriff Reeves sent for him and questioned him closely. He claimed John had fallen and struck his head, but denied knowing anything about the stick of wood. The fracture is on the right side of the head, showing that if the boys had trouble, the blow was struck from behind. The fact that John had frequently beaten Joseph leads to the belief that Joseph killed the brother—and more than likely, before the case is much older, Joe will admit the slaying.

The Hoyer boys came West from Illinois, and they have had frequent quarrels, and it is said that Joseph once told Pete Vandehy that he would "get" his brother, and this is the first intimation that there might have been something wrong with the first story told by Joseph.

The dugout where the boys lived was absolutely filthy.

ENGAGEMENT RINGS....

"Well, in spite of the war, little Cupid seems pretty busy, judging by the demand for engagement rings." In spite of the war, the whole human program will go on just the same. There will continue to be engagements and weddings, just as in times of peace, and purchasers for these must continue also.

If an engagement ring be an extravagance, surely it is a most necessary one. It is not, however, necessary to pay a big price to get a perfect diamond ring. I have a fine assortment at from $15.00 upward.
