Attendance at circuit court these days is not always fraught with the best of admiration for our vaunted civilization. Many young fellows, just on the threshold of life, in their twenties, are brought before the bar of justice to answer charges of burglary, etc., and the man who is susceptible to sympathy can't help but be impressed with the criminality that turns out the criminally weak. Boys showing evidence of good home training are branded as felons. It would appear that lads of this age would do better to turn their steps to a county poor farm and be objects of charity than to take the crooked path that means they become burdens to society and disgraces to themselves. The wages of sin point almost invariably to the walls of the penitentiary—the adamant that breaks the mother's heart and scorches the pride of the father. It is the problem of the ages—this children business.

All members of both orders are requested to assist in making the entertainment one long to be remembered. E. L. Moore is chairman of the committee, and he has some surprises in store for the occasion.

That the livestock industry in Oregon has been developed to a point which makes the state independent of outside sources is indicated by the annual report of the Portland Union Stockyards for 1914. This report shows that 597,180 head of livestock of all classes was received during the past year, divided up as follows: Sheep, 281,300; hogs, 237,725; cattle, 74,360; calves, 2,506; horses and mules, 1,239. Oregon's contribution to this impressive total was 48,789 cattle; 21,9 calves; 144,901 hogs and 19,425 sheep, leaving only an unimportant balance to be credited to surrounding states.

A pitiable incident was the commitment of Elias Witcher, of Buxton, in Judge Reasoner's court, yesterday. Witcher has been making his home with John Lucas and wife, of Buxton, for all of 15 years. The old gentleman is aged about 85 years, and is the victim of senile decay. He is almost helpless, and this with his mental malady, had made it hard for the Lucas family. He was brought down to Hillsboro by Fred Caldwell, who had to carry the old gentleman from the train to the court house. Witcher is a native of New York, and has been in the Buxton section for many years. He finally became so helpless and mind-stricken that the care of him was so burdensome that he was surrendered to the authorities.
