COL. HOFER GIVES LAGONIC PHILOSOPHY

The Salem Teuton Pens Some Very Trite Remarks

CLEVER SAYINGS THAT TOUCH POINT

A Dissertation That Rivals the Proverbs of Old

Col. E. Hofer has given us a "new departure." He is a terse writer we all know it—but his latest skits are too good to suppress. Here are a few of them:

Closing stores and places of business at night gives a town a dead deserted look.

In a chickenyard nothing is moving after dark, except the rats—and other vermin.

Closing theatres and other places on Sunday makes a town seem like a cemetery.

Empty streets and no one moving about—all in the country or at home asleep—kills all values.

Stopping people spending money and making fools of themselves, is a sure way to put a community on the bum.

Laws and ordinances to that effect deprive about half the people of the incentive to live a strange fact.

It has not yet been determined whether folly, luxury, extravagance produce civilization or vice versa.

One thing is certain—if we only bought necessities of life to eat and wear about half the business of the world would stop.

Millinery stores, tobacco shops, ice cream parlors, high-heeled shoes, high-priced hotels, parlor cars and X-Ray gowns would go.

Those who preach and write against these manifestations of civilization are harking back to barbarism.

We could all wear overalls, eat beans and graham bread, saw our own wood and drink rain water, but we would kill arts, industries and civilization.

Judge Campbell was out the last of the week, and aside from sentencing Herzog, gave a decree of divorce to Mrs. Lara Bailey. Her plaintiff-husband must give her $75 permanent alimony, and the household goods also go to the woman. The case of Lipper vs. Lipper has been dismissed.
