

PORTLAND DETECTIVES GET YOUNG CAMPBELL

Bring Him Near Mountindale, Today, for Portland Robbery

YOUNG CAMPBELL, aged eighteen years, was captured near Mountindale, last Saturday, by Portland detectives, Messrs. Helyer, Goltze and Abbott, at the Campbell place above Mountindale. Young Campbell lives in Portland, but his mother lives in this county. The detectives have evidence connecting the young fellow with at least two Portland robberies, and allege they unearthed more at the farm which will connect him with several other robberies.

The detectives went to North Bend, and from there proceeded to the ranch in the guise of fishermen. A brother of Campbell had to have shouted an alarm, and the officers got to the house and placed the prisoner under arrest. They still think that Young Campbell would have used a gun on them had he known their approach.

Campbell has a bad record and has been in the courts before. The police think the capture will be the breaking up of a gang which has been robbing Portland stores and residences all winter. They also think that Campbell was interested in the stolen and sack thefts to the west of Portland.

S. P. AND P. E. & E.

The county court last Friday settled with Arthur Beveridge & Co., of Portland, the firm that had experts go over the books of the county. Their original claim was for $1277.33, but the court refused to audit the bill. After weeks of parley the court finally offered the company $853.63. The next day the firm came back with an offer to take $900. The court then made the proposal to split the difference and the bill was paid at $876.71. This saved the county nearly four hundred dollars. The experting was done under authority of the state law, and compensation is not fixed under the statute. The county board, however, promptly told the experting company that before they would pay the original sum they would fight the case clear to the Supreme Court on the ground of values.

Dr. Hawke came down from Gaston Monday morning, and examined Mrs. Christina Johnson for insanity. She was ordered committed and two guards came down from Salem the same evening to convey her to the State Hospital. She is aged 54 years and has eight children, the youngest of whom is 11 years. The case is a pitiful one, and Mrs. Johnson slashed herself in an attempt at suicide the other day, inflicting several serious wounds with a razor. She is an Adventist in religion, and says the "Lord ordered her to commit suicide." She also says she has committed the "unpardonable sin," whatever her conception of that may be.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS STARTLE BY THEFTS

Maids 13 and 10 Years of Age Ask for Contributions for Poor GET ACCESS TO HOUSES, THEN STEAL

Tell Story of Collecting for Poor Widow, Mrs. Brown and Children

A strange story is that of Ella Bauer, aged 13 years, and a smaller sister, aged 10 years, who were arrested the last of the week for theft. The little girls reside at Cornelius, and they have been out collecting money and clothing for an alleged poor family, consisting of a widow, using the name Mrs. Brown, and small children. The middle of the week they came to Hillsboro and visited many homes with their plea of charity, saying that either cast-off clothing or money would be acceptable.

They visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Jose, and while Mrs. Jose was looking for apparel, took possession of two small children's banks, in which were a few cents. They also picked up 25 cents while at the Abbott home.

When they left the Jose home they passed J. C. Lamkin's place and asked him to open their bank, saying they were unable to do so. He told them he could not open it without the aid of a screwdriver, and they left. The eldest girl told Sheriff Reeves that they stole no bank, and persisted in the story for some time, but finally admitted they took one, and threw it away.

Many people gave the youngsters clothing, their sympathies being excited by the story of the alleged suffering family.

The case goes to the Juvenile Court. Whether or not the parents, who are very religious, know of the action of the girls, is not known.

That Gov. Withycombe has not lost interest in nor love for livestock since he assumed the duties of the office seems to be proven by the fact that he has purchased a $900 registered Kentucky saddle mare. The governor says it is his intention to use the mare on his trips of inspection about the penitentiary and other state institutions, as well as on rides taken solely for pleasure when it is possible to take a little time away from his official duties.—Rural Spirit.
