At the Zoo.
"Why, there's nothing but bees here."
"What did you expect to find?"
"Well, when I asked to be directed to the apary I certainly thought I was going to the place where they kept the bees."—Baltimore American.

Breaking into Society.
"I'm green in society. Would it be all right to shake hands with your distinguished looking individual?"
"I'm green myself. But I'd advise you to go a trifle slower."
"Pshaw! No man can make a serious mistake by being a trifle friendly."
"Yes, he can, too. That may be the butler."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Which Was the Worst?
"When I returned from our card party last night my wife just looked at me. Not a word was spoken."
"My wife looked at me, too, and I don't believe that a word was unspoken."—Houston Post.

A Good Retort.
The head master of a boarding school a few miles north of London is very particular about the behavior of his scholars during meal times, a fact of which the undermasters are fully aware. A short time back one of the tutors observed a boy cleaning his knife on the tablecloth and immediately pounced on him.
"I suppose that's what you generally do at home, sir?" he remarked sternly.
"Oh, no," replied the boy quietly.
"We generally use clean knives at home."—London Mail.

Too Horrible to Contemplate.
"No, Mr. Upp," Phyllis said, with a sigh, "I cannot marry you. I confess that I have much more than a friendly feeling for you, but suppose we were to marry and you should die and leave me in straitened circumstances and I should take in boarders and they should make a pun of my name as landlady, calling me Phyllis Upp?"—London Stray Stories.

A Freak of the Sea.
Like the ribs of a land shark stand the rusty ribs of the ship Waterloo, two miles inland, in the Andes, where the ship was positioned in 1808 by a massive wave. The ship, with its entire crew aboard, was on its anchorage off Ilica and on land, where it was left as a hool, almost uninjured.

Wifely Yuck.
"Darn that editor! He only sent me back all my good writing. Wife—But perhaps you those two, dear—if you don't them."—New York Globe.

Reaching a Conclusion.
"I imagine from your expression you are a taxidermist."
"What makes you think so?"
"Principally because you talk as wise as an owl and then stuff me."—Exchange.

CITY DUMP GROUNDS

Notice is hereby given that the City of Hillsboro has been compelled, at considerable expense, to clear the driveway which leads into the City Dump Grounds for the reason that persons using the same had dumped many things there which were unsanitary.
A gate has been placed at the entrance of the same and has been locked, and the key is kept by John Hensley, Superintendent of streets of said city.
Any person wishing to use the grounds must procure the key from Mr. Hensley and all persons using the same will be held responsible for improper use thereof. Dated this 26th day of April, 1915.
