CHIROPRACTIC

Dr. M. H. McMAHON

Chiropractor

of Portland, Ore.

HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL--SIXTH YEAR

Now with Dr. F. R. Sizer, D. C. offices in Donelson Bldg., Hillsboro. Fortland office 121 4th St.

Late Testimonial:

To whom it may concern:

I beg to advise that I have taken Chiropractic treatments from the best operators in Portland, Tacoma, and Seattle, but I have yet to meet a Chiropractor who gives as satisfactory adjustments as Dr. McMahon, although one and all did not fail to charge higher rates for much less proficient and specific work.

Dr. McMahon's skill has prevented the necessity of a surgical operation in my case.

HE DID INDEED MISS HER.

The Professor Admitted It, but Was on the Wrong Track. When the intrusive nurse in Bulwer's once famous novel, "The Caxtons," in terrupted the professor's studies to an nounce the arrival of his first born sor with an explosive, "It's a boy!" the absent minded parent merely regarded her with puzzled annoyance, and in quired vaguely, "What's a boy?"

But it was a professor in real life who, some time after the marriage of his only daughter, and her departure from the parental roof, was visited by a cousin, who ventured to condole with him upon his longliness, "How you must miss her!" she exclaimed.

"Miss who?" said the professor, with an air of smiable bewilderment, which presently changed to one of pleased comprehension. "Indeed I do, Margaret! indeed I do!" he declared gratefully. "But I scarcely supposed my complete absorption would be so sympathetically realized. Indeed, you are right; I feel quite lost without her. A most interesting personality. And as to the poisonings, I am sure she has been maligned."

"Poisonings!" echoed his cousin "I am quite sure of it!" repeated the professor firmly. "There has certainly been unpardonable exaggeration in their number, and I very much doubt "I am talking," said Margaret, "of your daughter, Mary."

"Oh!" said the professor. "Dear me! I thought, of course, you meant Lucre-zia Borgia. She's the subject of a monograph that I began the day after Mary went away and finished a week ago. I felt I needed a little something outside my usual routine to occupy my thoughts, and Lucrezia has proved eminently satisfactory."

The brilliant and dangerous Borgia was a startling substitute, certainly, for a gentle mannered daughter of modern civilization, but one less deadly than that chosen in like circumstances by the great French scientist, Pasteur. "After all," he was heard pensively murmuring to himself when a beloved daughter had departed with her hus band to a distant home, "I shall be able to devote myself to typhoid fever. -Youth's Companion.

for you or me?" "Get out of here!" was all the dis gusted politician could say.
