F. J. H. STANLEY DIES IN PORTLAND

Prominent as an Oregon Educator For Many Years
Principal in Hillsboro

Stanley, one of Oregon's eminent educators, died in Portland, at his home at 943 Grand Avenue, Saturday, September 25, 1915, from an attack of trouble, with which he had suffered for some months. Stanley was well known in Hillsboro, where, in the nine years he was principal of the public schools, holding the position several terms. He was born in Missouri in 1857, and came to Oregon in 1887, settling first in Polk County, where he attended the State Normal, and in 1895 years taught at Weston. He went East in 1897, and returned in 1902, where he taught with eminent success. From Hillsboro he went to Portland and was elected to the school board there the last 18 years. He was at one time superintendent of the Morrow County schools, and also held the same position in Yamhill.

Mr. Stanley married Susie Lucas, of Monmouth, wife dying in 1887. The following children survive the union: Stanley, Panama; Clifford, Portland; Mrs. Roy Becker, New York; Alice Standish, and Mrs. Sidney Chrysler, of Portland.

Mr. Stanley was for years a member of Phoenix Lodge No. 10, Knights of Pythias, of Hillsboro. He was an able man in all respects, and was very successful in the school room. The funeral took place Tuesday in Portland, interment being in Riverview Cemetery. The services were held under the auspices of the Portland K. of P., the honorary pall bearers being O. M. Plummer, E. D. Curran, W. M. Killingsworth, W. D. Eaton, S. C. Beach and A. F. Bell. The active pall bearers were Frank Lucas, A. L. Lucas, E. Jamison, A. R. Draper, R. Thomas, Jay Lucas, C. H. Bell and W. Crearer.

Prof. McKay, the present superintendent of the Hillsboro schools, says: "I regard Mr. Stanley as one of the really able educators in the state and the loss of Portland suffer a distinctive loss in his death. He was a friend of mine of many years, and I appreciated his personal attainments as highly as I did his educational abilities."

Walter VanDyke, of Verboort, was a city caller the last of the week.

Elmer Scott, of below Dunzer, was up to the city Saturday afternoon.

Paul Landauer, of near West Union, was a city caller Monday morning.

S. Fleischauer, of Gaston, was in town Saturday, on business at the court house.

Henry Beach, of North Plains, and Elmer Mays, of the mercantile firm, of that place, were circuit court attendants Saturday.

CROSSING DANGEROUS SAYS CORONER JURY

Investigating Body Holds Inquest at Tualatin, Last Thursday
BROTHER TESTIFIED GAGE WAS DEAF
Says Hearing Was Good on Auto, However—Motorman Testifies of Act

Dr. Ira E. Barrett, the coroner, went to Tualatin, Thursday last, and held an inquest over the fatality caused by the train-auto collision, last Wednesday morning. He called as jurors John Nyberg, R. C. Payne, J. R. C. Thompson, E. V. Stewart, Frank Austin and G. W. Andrews. Motorman Fred Peebler testified that he was coming at the usual rate of speed, and that when within 75 or 100 feet of the road he saw the auto. He sounded the gong and put on the emergency brake, and at the same time, saw that the machine was endeavoring to cross the track. The machine was struck and the loss of four lives was the toll. The express messenger, H. V. O. Carpenter, testified that he felt the emergency gong and heard Peebler say—"My God, they do not see me."

John Q. Gage, of St. Helens, testified that his brother was slightly deaf, and that he had a habit of watching the lips of the person with whom he was in conversation. He said, however, that he was a careful driver when in a car, and appeared to see and hear things as well as anyone.

Frank Powels, a passenger from Goodin, and his companion, John Ebn, swore that they were talking and did not hear the gong. Geo. Sanders, however, who swore he had his head out the window, said he heard the gong.

Mrs. Janey Galbraith testified that when the men passed the Galbraith place a short distance from the bridge the men were talking and laughing. The jury found the following verdict: "In the matter of the inquest into the cause of death of Chas. Gage, H. C. Dieckman, John Meeck and C. F. Barringer—We, the jury in the above matter, and that the above named persons were killed by an electric train on the S. P. railroad, at Galbraith station on the Boone Ferry road crossing one-half mile east of Tualatin, Washington County, Oregon, at about 8:30 a. m., on Sept. 22, 1915. The cause was accidental on a dangerous crossing, at which sufficient warning signals had not been installed by the railway company."

The railway findings from the board of inquiry exonerate the motorman. It is more than likely that suit will be instituted against the railway company for damages by the members of the four families.

WILLIAM HALL CUTS UP METZLER CITIZEN

Uses a Hunting Hatchet, and Cuts Flesh of Arm to the Bone
TROUBLE OVER COUPLE OF PUMPKINS
Two Little Hamilton Girls Take Them for Jack o' Lanterns

A warrant was sworn out Monday morning in Judge Smith's court for the arrest of William Hall, a Tennessee gentleman who lives at Metzler, charging him with assaulting J. R. Hamilton with a hunting hatchet, a dangerous weapon. It seems that the two had been at outs for some time over some trivial affair. The other day two little girls, daughters of Mr. Hamilton, went down to the Hall place and took two pumpkins to use as Jack o' Lanterns, this being the season for that sort of child pleasures. Hall took Hamilton to task for it and later went to Hamilton's house and called him out. Hamilton says he did not fear Hall, and went out with the intention of whipping him if he insisted on trouble. Hamilton says that Hall made a feint at him and then struck him with the hatchet and if he had not thrown his shoulder up the blade would have entered his skull. As it was the hatchet made a very ugly wound, cutting the flesh clear to the bone.

Hamilton is a poultry raiser, and recently lost about $100 worth of blooded chickens, some of which were prize winners at the various poultry fairs. The chickens were poisoned, and an analysis show that they surreptitiously had been fed some arsenic.

Hamilton says that Hall comes from the Cumberland Gap section, and that he has feared that he might use a knife or some weapon if they ever came to a mixup.

Hamilton was up Monday morning, carrying his arm in a sling, and swore to the complaint against his neighbor.

Peter Grossen, of near Helvetia, was in town Monday morning.

A. W. Walker, of South Tualatin, was a city caller the last of the week.

George Holzheimer, of Elmonica, was in town Friday afternoon.

J. B. Walker, of below Beaverton-Willsburg road, was up to the city Saturday, on business at the court house.

Jasper Keffer and C. N. McPherson, of near West Union, were city callers the last of the week.

C. E. Hurst, of Tremont, Clackamas County, was over to Hillsboro the last of the week, a witness in the case of State versus London.

Mel Hiatt, of Dille, passed through with a rock crusher, Saturday, enroute for the Toelle quarry, near Phillips. He set the machine up Monday and crushing is now in full blast.

Here you are Mr. Farmer—7 and 8 per cent. money—see me. E. L. Perkins, Room 1 Commercial Bldg., Hillsboro, Ore.

J. H. Rogers, of near Scholls, left two fine Winter Bananas apples at the Argus office, Friday, and if appearances go for anything this section need have no envy of the Hood River apple district.

Van Delashmuth, of Spokane, was down to Hillsboro the last of the week. Van says Spokane still holds up her head in commercial supremacy, and that a big crop has been garnered up his way this year. Van still owns the bungalow and tract down near the Witch Hazel school house.

Ferd Groner, of Scholls, left Corvallis last week, accompanied by Prof. C. I. Lewis, on an inspection of the walnut orchards of the Willamette Valley. They are traveling by automobile, and go as far South as Eugene. They will not only gather data for the 1915 crop, but will take notes on the best results in walnut culture. Ferd's orchards will be quite a factor in walnut production in a year or so and he wants to know just what conditions are over the valley.

J. E. Zimmerman, of above North Plains, was a Hillsboro caller the last of the week. J. E. and his brother George were in the Crater Lake country, in August, and they returned more than delighted with their trip. J. E. says that for scenic beauty it beats anything he has seen in the Northwest. The trip from Medford was made by auto, the departure being made at three in the morning. They reached the lake at 11 the next day, and the Pythians of Southern Oregon had camp ready for them on their arrival.
