10P BHORTAGE

The Oregon Hop Growers' Association has seet out a statement of the world hop crop and the futures as to probable prices. England has but a little more than half of last year's yield, while Germany and Austria are from one-third to one-half short. England will be short 230,000 hundredweights, making a shortage of 300,000 hundredweights. This certainly should mean a better price if supply and demand are followed. Of course, the war on in Europe will mean a lesser consumption of beer, but discount that demand and the offerings should be very good. The association urges all growers to join them in holding their crops, and it confidently experts to see a fine price in the not distant future. California is looking at it frum this standpoint. As the United States has but 40,000 hundredweights to export the home and foreign price should commence to strengthen in a very few weeks. Oregon, this season, is raising one-quarter of the hope produced
