7, 1011, an adult chi attered down a chimney into dy of Ernest Haroid Baynes in N. H., and was promptly anded and released. The band was of the old style and bore the number GDM At 8 o'clock p. m. on June 15, 1912, two er swifts flew from the chimney to the same room of Mr. Baynes where the bird had been caugh a year and eight days before. And lot en these birds were taken in hand and examined one of them proved to e 6326. Remarkable as this may seem this diminutive creature, less than six ches in length, had traveled hundreds of miles to Central America or else where in the tropics where he spent the winter and then had made the long return journey at the approach of sum mer and found again the chimney of his choice in a village in faroff New Hampshire. And throughout his jour-neying the little aluminum ring had traveled with him and had produced not the least effect on the bird's leg. One wonders if the swift lived always in the same hollow tree in South America.-New York Post.

A Youthful Speculator.

Senator John Sherman made his first peculation when he was a boy of six en, and it turned out badly. At th ige of fourteen he was working for the Muskingum Improvement company at $5 a month and at the age of sixteea was superintendent of an important part of the work and had been advanced to $40. During the winter he was idle, as the canal was closed. It was at this time that he attempted his speculation. Sait was very low on the Muskingum river and very high at Cin cinnati. So John bought a lot of salt, londed it on a scow and started it down the river. All went well until within one day's float of the Ohio river, when the thermometer went down to zero and the scow remained right there for two long months. Everybody had a great haugh over the youthful speculator, but he fived long enough to return In the death of Lou Stinson, the hunch with interest. - St. Louis of Salem, Oregon has lost a citi-Globa-Demosrat.

The Horse Chestnut,

Uby the horse chestnut is so called is a celestable point, but at least one Is only explanation of the name may found in a poculiar characteristic of the tree. If, when it is mature, a harf be broken off cleanly at the point where its stem joins the branch, it will he discovered that the base of the stem is the exact shape of a horse's hoof, and if one looks further one will see plainly marked upon the "boof" the nuil marks of the horse's shoe. The similitude of boof and nails is at least remarkable. It might be supposed, in percention to the slares of this tree, that horses were fond of the fruit, but one believes that this is not the case, nor does any other creature, except perhaps the rat or mouse, attempt to at this natural and abundant product.

The Pamily Look

No eloquence of tongue, nothing that stands written in any book, may sway the heart as does that eiusive quality -the race mark in a face. And this is true less of the obvious physical aspect than of its thousand secret connotations. All the world knows the Hapsburg lip, the jaw line of the Bonapartes, the subtler marks of clauship keep their eloquence for their own Consciously or not, each family group stands before these symbols as the small company of the learned might before some inscription on a desert ruin. Mere strokes and scratches to you and me. To the few who under stand here is the key that unlocks the DANE

Fathers and Children.

"In the cariler years," says Pastor Charles E Jefferson in the Woman's Home Companion, "children can be controlled by their mother, but by and by there comes a time when they begin to note the conduct of the father. No eves are keeper than the eves of a child. He sees everything the father does. He reflects on what the father does not do His logic is inexorable. He argues his way to conclusions which cannot be abaken

"If his father does not pray, prayer must be unnecessury. Grown men surely know what is needed. If his father never reads the Bible then the big book can be dispensed with. Fathers know what books are most worth reading If he does not go to church then church attendance is a pastime and not a duty, for men so old and whe as father is would not peglect church if church were of value to them."

Why raise the ordinary farm crops when you can get several times the net returns from walnuts, with less labor, in 8 or 9 years.? While we have sold several thousand grafted trees, only a few hundred, aside from those in our own orchard, have been planted in Washington County, when it is widely known that we have thousands of acres of the finest lands suitable for walnut production. Our trees for the season are about two-thirds sold, and going rapidly. We are placing this advertisement to give Washington County people a chance to order before it is too late.
