Thompson has a brother, Jas., at Middleton, and he can throw no light on the tragedy. Thompson is an old time convict, and that he was a frequent caller to the Jennings home, where the woman lived mostly alone, is known by the entire neighbor-

A blood-stained shirt, white, with a stripe running up and down, was found within a few yards of the Jennings gate, to gether with Ristman's hat. The cuffs of the shirt were torn off, and there was blood all over the garment. Blood was found in the auto, showing that in all probability Ristman was killed while sitting in the machine. Whether he was killed before the machine reached the Jen-Miss Phoebe Perrine returned nings home, or after the woman was slain, is not yet settled in the minds of the sheriff.

An undershirt, taken from the home of a woman in Portland, with whom Ben Thompson lived, contains blood spots, corresponding with the shirt found near Sherwood, and proof that these two shirts are Thompson's would meen that he is the man wanted. There are many other things connected with the case that point to Thompson as the man. The prisoner, however, maintains a stolid demeanor, and contends he will soon be freed.
