Two gentlemen of Four Aces, a mining town, were consulting as to how to get rid of an enemy. One demurred at shooting since a court had been es tablished.

"You see, Jim," he said, "they'll keep us in jail forever waitin' to try us." "Don't you worry about that, Pete."

said the other. "This yere community lsu't ready for real law yet."

So they shot their man and stood

The citizens of Four Aces, eager to try the new legal system that had been Satroduced, did not inconvenience the two criminals at all by delay. The murder was committed in the morning. and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon the trial commenced. A limb of the law named Simpson was prosecuting attorney, and one Waterman was assigned by the court to defend the accused. To save time they were tried together. The first hour was occupied in fencing between the prosecutor and counsel for the defense, the latter claiming that the first shot killed the gambler, and the man who fired it was the murderer, while the other could not be tried for killing a corpse. An appeal to the judge established the fact that both were instrumental in the deed and they should be convicted or acquitted together.

Then the prosecutor summoned witnesses who saw the shooting. The first was the barkeeper of the salson, who was standing behind the bar at the time. He testified that he saw the two men open fire at the same moment on the gambler.

Question-What were you doing when the shooting commenced? Witness-Tom O'Brian had list called for some pixen, and I was reachin' to the shelf back o' the bar for it. Question-How could you see the shooting when your back was turned to the shooters? Witness-There was a hig lookin' giass behind the bar. I seen it in "Your honor," said the lawyer, turn Ing to the judge, "I move that this man's testimony be stricken out. He did not see the shooting. He merely saw a reflection." The judge considered for awhile, then decided that a reflection was not a thing in itself, therefore the testimony of the barkeeper was not to be considered by the jury.

There were several other persons it the room at the time of the crime, but counsel for defense proved that the evesight of one was bad, that another was so deaf that he couldn't hear a sannon fired, to say nothing of a reyolver, while a third had been sitting at a table in a jog in the room where he could not see the group in question. Friends of the accused swore that they had known them for years, both had taught Sanday school and neither had and as deep as the Atlantic is broad. ever carried a revolver-indeed, they would not know how to handle such a

The prosecutor endeavored to im peach the veracity of these witnesses. but when he called on citizens present to swear that they wouldn't believe them under oath one of the witnesses announced that If any man dared to question his word or his sacred honor he would let daylight into his carcass. This effectually prevented the impeach ment of any of these witnesses.

When the lawyers had got through with the case there was an impressive stlence in the court. The ludge seem ed averse to instructing the jury to acquit the murderer, but he could not see how he could do anything else. He was scatching his head when Oliver Budd, a prominent citizen of Four Aces and leader of the late vigilance committee that had ceased operations in view of the introduction of law into the place, arose and said:

Your honor, these yere men have been tried accordin' to law, and the evidence shows that they are as innercent as two turtle doves. I suggest that before givin' up our former method we try 'em by the Lynch system. list for to see how the two compare." The Judge accepted the situation and gave up his seat-a cracker box before his desk, a board between two barrels -to Mr. Budd, who took his place and anid: "Let all the witnesses for the prose cution stand up in line."

Wen the line was formed Judge Lynch or Mr. Budd said to them: "These yere two men air charged with the killin' of Charles Benton, gambler. All of you who know for sarten that they done it hold up your

Every witness held up a hand. "That'll do," said Mr. Budd; then urning to the large number of spec tators present, he added:

"Citizens of Four Aces, you have een a trial by court methods and a trial by Lyrch methods. All who are in favor of the fust say 'Aye.' "

Ten minutes later two forms were daugling and the citizens of Four Aces had resumed their usual vocations.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only 6,000 Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation: An inscription in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elljah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years be fore the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth.

In the black letter edition of Foxe's 'Acts and Monuments' (1632) there is a whote sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millen nium, or "Sabbath of a thousand

The parimist says, "For a thousand years are in thy sight as yesterday' (Psalm xc, 4). See also H Peter III, 8, which is even more specific

POISON GAS BEETLES.

Fumes With Which Bombardiers Keep Their Enemies at Bay.

Most people think that the use polson gas in warfare is a purely human, or perhaps one should say inhuman, idea. Yet the plan has been adopted by nature. Certain kinds of beetles known as bombardlers and called by scientists Brachinus make free use of poisonous fumes to keep their enemies at bay.

A typical species known as Brachinus crepitans is largely attacked by certain ground beetles. These ground beetles are very active and can easily overtake the bombardiers. Just as they get within reach, however, a very strange thing happens. The bombar dier has the power of ejecting a peculiar liquid, which, when it comes into contact with the atmosphere, bursts into a sort of pale green flame. This is immediately followed by a kind of amoke.

Now, this smoke has a remarkable effect upon the pursuer. No sooner do the fumes come into contact with the ground beetle than the creature is biinded and stupefied. A strange paralysis overtakes the insect, and it seems unable to move any farther, Quite a while clapses before the ground beetle recovers. In the meantime the bombardier makes good his escape -American Hoy.

Fury of Sunstorms.

How can we, who are bewildered and appalled by the fury of our planet's cyclones and volcanic eruptions, form a conception of the terrible en ergy of natural operations of the sun? Newcomb suggested that if we call the solar chromosphere an ocean of fire we must remember that it is an ocean infinitely hotter than the flercest furnace If we call its movements hurricanes we must remember that our hurricanes blow only about a hundred miles an blow as far in a single second. There are such hurricanes as, coming down upon us from the north, would in thir ty seconds after they had crossed the St. Lawrence river be in the gulf of Mexico, carrying with them the whole surface of the continent in a mass not simply of ruin, but of glowing vapor.

In Sir William Butler's autobiogra ply there is an amusing story about six insane soldiers who escaped while the corporal who had brought them on board the troopship left at Durban and who mingled with the 1,800 sane men on the decks. The problem of the voyage was to find who were the six madmen. By the time the boat reached Cape Town twenty-six men were officially under observation, and not one of the six was among them. In the end the crazed half dozen were identified as those who had taken an especially eager part in the lunatic

A young lady in a library job got tired of fussing round in stuffy alcoves. So she chucked it all and went to raising apples. She never made money hand over fist, as she expected. but she always declared she had won out on the exchange. Some New Uses For Yeast. Because it is so essential in the mak ing of bread and beer most of us think that yeast is useful for nothing else. But the Berlin Institute of Fermenta tive Industries calls attention to the fact that valuable flavoring extracts and tonics can be obtained from it and a relatively large percentage of muscle building matter. Its remaining constituent, a mass of cellulose, can be used to make a very hard mass, known as ernolith, an excellent noninflammable substitute for celluloid.-PopuGREAT SOCIAL PROBLEM.

To Get Men Rightly to Adjust Themselves to All Other Men. Our great social problem is how to make the man at the bottom loom so large and seem so important that all other men will cease to think of him as a thing and treat him as a person. The real social problem out of which other minor problems grow and of which they are really only aggravated symptoms is the world old problem of the right relation between persons.

This is a fundamental issue and to solve it would solve all these minor manifestations. The friendly relation of men is therefore not alone the gist of the race problem, but it is the gist of all social problems.

The age long struggle has been how to get men rightly to adjust themselves to all other men.

Right adjustment to other men would below a living wage the laborer who made production possible. It would mean that no laborer would want more wages and shorter hours than the condition of production would stand.

Right adjustment between men would mean that no landlord would be willng to live easy off rents of houses which made health and happiness impossible to the occupant. It would mean in return that no tenant would demand more than that for which he gave a just return, and he would protect the interest of his landlord as he would protect his own interest.

Right adjustment would mean in all walks of life the rule of right, not the rule of might. -Southern Workman

BIRDLAND DANCE HALLS.

Playhouses and Gardens of the Austra lian Bower Birds.

There are several species of bower birds, chief among them the Satin and the Newton. The Satin bower bird is the best known. When the bowers were first discovered it was supposed that they were playhouses built by the native children, but as a matter of fact they are the dance halls of birdland.

The nests are built in the trees and have no connection with the playiouses. The male birds build these latter and gather every bright and shining object they can find to adorn the entrance to the bower. When it is completed, according to one who has watched them, little "at homes" are given daily, at which the males meet and pay their court to their ladyloves. now bowing and scraping, now playing hide and seek through the bower and doing an absurdly dignified dance

The master of the bower proceeds with the painful duty of teaching aim how to behave in company, while the remainder of the party ralse a great racket, but never interfere. A naturalist studying them disarranged one of their flowers, but each time he did it the bower master rearranged it with great care.-National Geographic Magazine.

Impeachment Cases.

Although one president of the United States (Johnson), one cabinet officer (Belknap), six United States judges and eight governors of states have been impeached since the foundation of the republic, only one senator, Wilflam Blount of Tennessee, has been arraigned before the bar of the house of congress to which he was elected. Of the eight governors impeached one was acquitted, in three cases the charges were dropped, one was permitted to resign, and three were removed. Three of the impeached judges were removed, and three were acquitted. Both President Johnson and Secretary Belknap were acquitted. Politically the last named impeachment cases were the most important the United States has experienced.-Argonaut.

Leftover Sandwiches.

Sometimes after a party there are andwiches left over. Here is an excellent way of using them up: Make batter exactly like you use for pancakes and add to it either sugar or salt, according to whether the sand wiches are sweet or savory. Then each sandwich is dipped in the batter and fried till a golden brown in fat from which a faint bluish smoke is ris ing. No matter how dry they are they are delicious done in this way.

AN UNFASHIONABLE FISH.

Fine In Flavor and Food Value, Yet

Our Anglers Discard It. It seems as it there are fashions is lish just now as there are in wearing apparel. A fish that brings in German markets nearly four times as much per pound as our fresh mackerel and con ilderably more than haddock is thrown way by our fishermen because no onwatits to eat it. Yet those who eat it praise it for its delicate flavor. Even the English like it. Every year they consume 3,000 tons of it. Yet we will have none of it.

This fish is known as the goosefish, angleriish, deviliish and monkfish. True, its appearance is against it, but till the epicures in England and Germany demand it because it is delicious. Analyses made by the bureau of fisheries on samples show that goosefish contains considerably more protein mean in the economic realm that no than flounder, slightly more than a cod, capitalist would want to beat down a little less than balibut and considerably less than sirioin steak.

The goosedish has an average length of three feet and is broad and flat, somewhat resembling the flounder in general outline. The only way to get it, says a Philadelphia woman, is for the housewives to club together and demand it. At the present time fishermen do not take the trouble to bring it home, but discard it from their nets .-Popular Science Monthly

CLAWS OF THE CANARY.

They Should Be Carefully Trimmed Every Few Months.

As a canney grows old it will be no ticed that its claws get long and catch on the perches and wires us it hops about the cage. In a state of nature the netivity of the bird as it moves about on the ground or among twigs and limbs keeps the claws properly worn down. Confined in a cage, the canary is less active, and, while the rate of growth of the claws remains the same, they are subject to much less abrasion. It is necessary therefore to trim them with a pair of sharp selssors every few months. It is important to watch the condition of the claws carefully, as by catching they may cause a broken leg In each claw a slender blood vessel extends well down toward the tip. may be seen on close examination through the transparent sheath of the claw. In trimming out well beyond this canal and take special care not to break the leg while handling the bird.

In cage birds the horny covering of the bill as well as the claws sometimes becomes distorted through growth without sufficient wear. The tips of the mandibles may be pured down with a sharp knife, but cure must be taken bower with fresh flowers every day, not to cut deep enough to reach the quick.-United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin.
